District Leaders Press for House Sales Tax Vote

Passage Possible Monday; Measure Exempts Food for Home Consumption

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

House District leaders yesterday began stepping up their tempo in the drive for early passage of a District sales tax, while opposition forces mapped efforts to block it in the House.

A revised sales tax bill, drafted and backed by joint House and Senate District fiscal affairs subcommittees, will be introduced in both houses today. It will call for a 2 per cent levy, in which the chief exemption will be food for home consumption.

House District Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) said he hopes to get the House District Committee together this week for a meeting on both the sales tax and pay-increase bills.

The pay bill, to give police, firemen and teachers a $330 annual increase retroactive to last July, was delayed yesterday in an executive session of the House District Committee, pending receipt of the sales tax bill.

District committee action this week on the sales tax and pay raise bills could send them to the House for a decision Monday. Best indications were that both the bills would clear the District Committee without a tie-up, although Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) served notice he will start there to fight the sales tax. He said he expects some support in the committee for his view that new revenue should be sought by stiffer income tax rates and a broader coverage of the District personal income levy.

Representative Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.), one of the members who fought the sales-tax bill in the House last year, said he will enlist support in a drive to force a roll call on the sales levy this year. It passed last year without a roll call—116 to 71.

For Bigger U. S. Payment

Two freshmen House members also spoke out again yesterday against the District sales levy proposal.

Representative Sidney Yates (D., Ill.), member of the House Subcommittee on District Appropriations, said he "definitely will vote no" on the bill, and will "feel compelled to take the floor if people start telling us that the sales tax is the only way to raise needed additional funds."

"In my opinion," Yates added,

Red Cross Report Luncheon to Hear Army Aide Today

Tracy S. Voorhees, Assistant Secretary of the Army, will be chief speaker at the second Red Cross report luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building, 1615 H st. nw.

Seven of the nine campaign divisions turned in $102,325.97, or 11.07 per cent of the $924,000 Washington Red Cross goal, at an initial report luncheon last Friday.

Armed Forces representatives will be honor guests at today's campaign luncheon, where representatives of defense establishments will make specific reports. Comedian Dick Leslie, now master of ceremonies at the Band Box, 900 H st. ne., will entertain.

Add Authority To Commerce, Hoover Urges

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

More drastic changes were suggested for the Commerce Department by the Hoover Government Reorganization Commission yesterday than the commission has recommended for any other agency in its 10 reports so far.

The Commerce Department, headed by former President Herbert Hoover from 1921 to 1928, would take over activities now in seven other agencies, if the Hoover report were adopted. It would be divided into two main categories:

1. Transportation services.
2. Industrial and commerce services.

The transportation section would include the following present agencies of the department: The Civil Aeronautics Administration, the Coast and Geodetic Survey and the Weather Bureau.

Would Transfer Coast Guard

From other offices would come:

1. The Coast Guard and the Customs Bureau from the Treasury Department.

2. All operations except regulatory functions from the Maritime Commission and certain safety activities only from the Civil Aeronautics Board.

3. The railway and motor carriers safety and car service facilities from the Interstate Commerce Commission.

4. The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

5. The Public Roads Administration from the Federal Works Agency.

6. The Office of Defense Transportation from the Executive Office of the President.

The Industrial and Commercial Services section would gain one new agency, the Division of Commercial Fisheries from the Fish and Wildlife Service of the Interior Department.

The sweeping changes proposed, the commission stated, were designed to remedy "present defective administrative and organizational structure."

Senate Plans Night Work In Filibuster

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senate Democratic leaders yesterday ordered night sessions starting tonight in an effort to slow a Southern filibuster, but the long-distance talkers simply loosened their collars.

Well rested by a two-day intermission, they still claimed enough time, votes and marathon oratory to beat a two thirds vote limit on Senate debate.

There was some Administration talk of "trading" with the Southerners to accept the two third rule in exchange for a guaranteed sidetracking of majority cloture.

Southerners Confident

But after some dickering between camps by Senate Rules Chairman Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.) this "compromise" was virtually abandoned. The Southerners simply said they had the votes to beat a test cloture petition without trading.

In addition to the night sessions, which may hold the Senate from eight to nine each evening for the remainder of the week, Democratic leaders disclosed one new debate-limiting wrinkle.

Instead of simply moving to shut off debate on the pending motion to call up the rules change, they are considering what one leader described as a "double-barreled" cloture petition.

This in one swoop would limit debate not only on the pending motion, but on the proposed two-thirds rule itself, and all amendments to it.

Without Precedent

Such a sweeping cloture move has never before been attempted and there was some question last night whether it would pick up or lose votes for the Administration.

Leaders argued in favor of such a course that it would get away from the "Vandenberg precedent."

While President pro tem, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), ruled cloture does not apply to a motion to call up a bill.

As things now stand, Vice President Alben W. Barkley would have to overrule Vandenberg to permit leaders to file a cloture motion and Barkley's decision would be appealed to the Senate.

Alternative Suggested

Most Republicans have indicated they would go along with Southerners to override Barkley and sustain the original Vandenberg precedent.

Democratic leaders said the "double-barreled" cloture attempt would submit a completely new question to the Senate, and squarely put Republicans on record on the proposed two-thirds rules change.

One alternative course under consideration last night would be to proceed with the traditional cloture petition in the initial test, and, if that fails, follow up with the combination cloture try in a last resort effort to stop the talk.

Second Day's Respite

Southern opponents of the rules change gained one day's respite when the Senate recessed over Sunday. Yesterday they picked up a second day's rest when the Senate recessed after a round of tributes to the late Senator J. Melville Broughton (D., N. C.), who died Sunday.

Traditionally the Senate "adjourns" overnight when a Senator dies. Technically an "adjournment" wipes the slate clean of legislation and launches the Senate on a new legislative day. So yesterday the leadership set another precedent. To prevent any break in the rules fight, the motion was to "recess." Technically, that kept the rules fight right where it was when the Senate quit Saturday.

With the cloture try tentatively set for Thursday, Senate leaders

Rep. Sol Bloom Dies Unexpectedly at 78

Representative Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.), chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, died of a heart attack last night at the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Representative Bloom, who had served continuously in the House since 1923, entered the hospital Friday for a checkup.

Comdr. W. R. Miller, officer of the day at the Naval Hospital, said Representative Bloom's death was "totally unexpected." He died at 8:50 p. m.

Representative Bloom had already circulated invitations to practically everyone at the Capitol to attend his seventy-ninth birthday celebration in the Foreign Affairs Committee room Wednesday.

His birthday celebrations were an annual event, attracting both Democrats and Republicans.

President Truman, advised at Key West, Fla., of the death of Representative Bloom, telegraphed condolences to Vera Bloom, the Congressman's only child.

The President said in part: "I am shocked and saddened by advice of the sudden and unexpected death of your distinguished father.

"As a member and twice chairman of the great Committee on Foreign Affairs, he was a tower of strength to his country in the most critical period of our international relations.

"He will be greatly missed and

Pay Holiday For 4829 Seen In Filibuster

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

With the Senate civil rights fight threatening to kill Federal rent-control extension, nearly 5000 employes of the Office of the Rent Control Administrator face payless paydays after next Monday, it was disclosed yesterday.

Rent Control Administrator Tighe E. Woods told the Senate Banking and Currency Committee he would have "to scrape the bottom of the barrel" to meet next Monday's payroll.

Altogether there are 4829 employes on the annual $18,733,000 payroll of his office, with 279 located in Washington.

This does not include the District of Columbia office of rent control, established under separate legislation which, however, like the national law will expire March 31 unless action is taken by Congress.

Additional funds for the operation of rent control were intended to be supplied in a deficiency bill now before the Senate Appropriations Committee. But this bill, like all other legislation, is stalled behind the battle over changing the Senate rules to halt filibusters.

The deficiency appropriation measure is further complicated by another fight between President

Sun Fo Quits As Premier in Surprise Step

Nanking, China (Tuesday) March 8 (U.P.).—Premier Sun Fo and his cabinet, targets of bitter denunciation and criticism by legislative leaders, resigned today.

Sun announced the resignations to the legislative Yuan, members of which were the leaders in the campaign to oust the son of the "father of the Chinese republic," Sun Yat-sen.

Competent quarters saw in Sun's action the removal of one of the greatest obstacles to peace with the Communists, and restoration of unity within the nationalist government.

Sun told the surprised legislators that the resignations had been submitted to Acting President Li Tsung-jen, who had accepted them and was considering a successor.

Sun's resignation will give Li an opportunity to choose his own government, one willing to cooperate wholeheartedly with him in his quest for peace. Sun became premier last November under strong urging from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

The resignations were not expected. Up to late yesterday, Sun had appeared adamant in his refusal to step down voluntarily. Lawmakers who called on him to Culpeper, Va., March 7.—State police here tonight broadcast a general lookout for a paroled rapist wanted in conection with the slaying near here early today of a 24-year-old tenant farmer and the rape of his 21-year-old wife.

Police said the man they want for questioning in the gun-killing of James G. Brown, is Thomas Brown, 30, a Negro, who disappeared from his job at a lumber mill in Lignum just before noon.

The suspect, police said, is about 30 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs about 140 pounds. Reportedly paroled in 1947 from a Federal penitentiary where he was serving time for rape, Thomas

Red Warns Germans of War Danger

Berlin, March 7 (NYHT).—Wilhelm Pieck, the veteran Moscow-trained leader of the German Communists, announced today the emergency convening of the German Peoples Congress to consider "the great danger of a new war."

It is the first time that a politician close to the Russians has so directly intimated fear that a conflict with the West might flare up soon.

Pieck said in an address at Leipzig that the time had come to tell the German people and the whole world of the war danger and to force people everywhere to choose up sides.

Must Decide on Course

"The German people must decide whether to go along with the policy of the Western powers or with the policy of the Soviet Union," Pieck said.

Pieck's speech immediately set off speculation as to whether this might not be an explanation for a number of recent Communist tactics, including perhaps the removal of Viacheslav M. Molotov as Foreign Minister.

A number of officials in Berlin who make it their business to study Russian and Communist tactics put it this way: "If Russian war fears are really acute, then there is more sense to recent demands for Communists everywhere publicly to declare their allegiance to the Russians.

"This move—which subjects Communists everywhere to charges of being traitors—probably seeks to accomplish two purposes. First, it consolidates the reliable Soviet Fifth Column in all Western lands just in case the fear of war is realized. And secondly, the move is intended to discourage the West from war or firm action against the Soviet Union by demonstrating that Russia has many reliable supporters in the Western Allied ranks.

"Thus the move would serve the double purpose of seeking to deter the imagined Western drive toward war but at the same time consolidating a group of reliable Soviet supporters."

Avoiding Difficulties

There were indications in Berlin that the Russians may be going out of their way to avoid difficulties with the West at this time. Among them was the cancellation of Russian plans for aerial target practice directly in the path of airlift planes, following a Western protest. The cancellation was highly unusual, since all previous protests—with one exception—have been grandiosely ignored.

In discussing Communist plans for combatting the alleged Western war drive, Pieck said that the meeting of the Peoples Congress—a Russian-sponsored organization which claims to represent all political faiths from all of Germany—would be called late in March. The People's Council, executive agency of the Congress, already is scheduled to meet March 17 and 18.

The big question is, of course, how far the Russians themselves believe the propaganda they are putting out about the determination of the West to war. But there is no doubt, according to highly reliable reports reaching the Western Allies in past months, that the propaganda is being hammered in the Soviet Union to a degree not fully understood by Western public opinion.

The universal report, for instance, of deserters from the Red Army is that throughout the Soviet Army and the Soviet Union the possibility of new war and the sacrifices that must be made in case of it are stressed. The Russian propaganda concerning sacrifices for war is as intensive now, according to these reports, as it was in the era when Hitler was considered the potential aggressor.

Spellman Doubles Number Of Clerics Digging Graves

New York, March 7 (AP).—Francis Cardinal Spellman today doubled the force of young priests and seminarians burying the dead at Calvary Cemetery despite pleas of striking gravediggers' wives for a change in attitude.

The cardinal was on the scene again as 200 young men began a fourth day of gravedigging.

He came to the Catholic Cemetery in Queens from a conference with five women who represented the families of 240 striking gravediggers.

Twenty-three other strikers' wives knelt in prayer at St. Patrick's Cathedral while the conference went on.

Mrs. Sigmund Czack, spokesman for the committee of five, said Cardinal Spellman was "adamant" and that "we got no place." She added that the women were "discouraged and disgusted."

The strikers are demanding a five-day week at $59.40, the same pay they now receive for a six-day week.

Cardinal Spellman, after watching nearly 1000 bodies pile up at the struck cemetery, ordered his young seminarians to take the places of the strikers. About 100 were at work last week.

He charged that the union's parent organization, the CIO Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers Union, is "Communist dominated."

Attorney John Harold said the women's committee "assured the cardinal that they and their families were good, practicing Catholics and that communism was a false and unfair issue."

The strikers have voted to try to end their affiliation with the parent union to which the cardinal objects.

Mrs. Czack said the cardinal's only offer to the women was to permit the strikers to come back to work "as individuals, not as union men."

She said Cardinal Spellman offered to raise the strikers' wages 8 per cent with no change in the work week.

Supreme Court Upholds States In Curbs on 'Union Security'

The Supreme Court ruled yesterday that the States may impose tougher curbs on "union security" contracts than are provided in Federal laws.

The court split, 7-2, in holding that neither the Taft-Hartley Act nor the Wagner Act which preceded it bans States from regulating union security agreements.

The majority said the only limit is that "the State shall not impose a policy inconsistent with national policy."

There are three common forms of union security: (1) the closed shop, in which an employer hires only union members, (2) the union shop, where new employes must join the union, and (3) maintenance of membership, where employes who join the union must remain in good standing with the union during the life of the contract.

Specifically, the court upheld an order of the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board. The order directed the Algoma Plywood & Veneer Co., of Kewaunee, Wis., to disregard a maintenance of membership clause in its contract with a local of the AFL Carpenters and Joiners Union.

The board based its order on a Wisconsin law which requires that two thirds of the workers in a plant must vote for maintenance of membership before it is included in an agreement. The Taft-Hartley Act permits such agreements when a majority of the workers approve.

Justice Frankfurter said for the majority that both the Taft-Hartley and Wagner Acts make it clear that "the States are left free to pursue their own restrictive polices" in the matter of union security agreements.

Justice Black wrote a dissent, in which Justice Douglas joined.

Black said that the section of the Wagner Act involved "has a history of administrative interpretation counter to the one that the

15-Month Funds To Operate ECA Are Approved

Senate Committee Votes Unanimously For Authorization Of 5.5 Billion Dollars

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

A $5,580,000,000 authorization to finance the European Recovery Program for the next 15 months was unanimously approved yesterday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

In reporting the Economic Cooperation Administration bill to the Senate, the committee authorized the full amount of funds sought by the Administration, although Committee Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) told reporters later:

"Several Senators made reservations that when the appropriations bill comes up they are reserving the right to vote as they wish (on the actual cash outlay)."

Position Explained

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), ranking Republican on the committee, and Senator Connally both said that a number of committee members felt they should not alter the requested authorization figure because of the present unsteady condition of commodity prices.

If dollar prices drop, said Connally, it may be possible to reduce the financial aid required by the countries receiving the Marshall Plan aid.

Senator Connally said the bill would be brought up in the Senate as soon as the present filibuster permits, declaring, "Whenever we get the gate open we're going to go right in."

Passage Predicted

In view of the unanimous approval of the legislation by his committee, he predicted the bill would be approved by the Senate without major change, noting, "We've got a pretty good cross-section of the Senate right here."

Present legislation for the Economic Cooperation Administration to administer the recovery program carries authorizations which expire on April 3, and prompt congressional action would be required to prevent a break in the program.

The bill approved by the committee yesterday authorizes $4,280,000,000 to pay for Marshall Plan aid during fiscal 1950; $1,150,000,000 for the three months from April 3 to the end of the current fiscal year on June 30, and an additional 150 million dollars to give ECA authority to plan ahead for carrying the program over the end of the fiscal year 1950.

While funds are not stated on a country-by-country basis in the legislation, Great Britain is expected to receive the largest amount—940 million dollars. The committee's action thus seems to

Accused Girl, Russian Linked Romantically

Judith Coplon, 27-year-old Department of Justice employe, took a romantic interest in Valentine A. Gubitchev, 32-year-old Russian engineer on the United Nations staff, it was learned authoritatively yesterday.

The two were arrested by FBI agents in New York last Friday and charged with conspiracy to commit espionage to remove Government documents relating to national defense.

How and when Miss Coplon and Gubitchev met was not disclosed by the Department of Justice in its announcement of the arrest. It is known, however, that the couple had been shadowed long enough and thoroughly enough to establish the existence of a romance.

FBI Man Only Witness

A Federal grand jury began delving into the case yesterday, but Miss Coplon and Gubitchev were not called. The only witness was an unidentified FBI agent. The grand jury adjourned after a three-hour session and will continue its investigation Wednesday.

Meantime, here in Washington, Senator Mundt (R., S. Dak.) said the United Nations had hired some Americans who were fired by this Government because they were regarded as "security risks."

Senator Mundt said that the names of several such persons are in the files of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, of which he was once a member.

He said that the committee had for some time been trying to determine whether foreign governments have been using the United Nations as a shield for spying on this country.

"I believe," he said, "that we

Society Burglar Charged With 12 California Jobs

White Plains, N. Y., March 7 (AP).—A West Coast police captain said today that Gerard Graham Dennis, accused society burglar, has admitted robbing the homes of screen star Loretta Young and 11 other Californians.

Dennis' biggest burglary in the Los Angeles area, Capt. Emmett Jones added, was the $257,775 jewel robbery of Thomas R. Winans, apartment house manager, in West Los Angeles.

The dapper 29-year-old Canadian is said by police here to have netted about $600,000 during a cross-country burglary career.

A Westchester County grand jury has voted 11 indictments against Dennis for burglaries in this area.

$1,700,000 Theft Laid To Former Monsignor

Rome, March 7 (AP).—Charges of fraud and forgery totalling some one billion lire ($1,700,000) have been filed against former Msgr. Eduardo Cippico, former Vatican employe, and three alleged accomplices, it was announced today.

Cippico was unfrocked by the church and arrested last March after discovery of the frauds and forgery. He formerly had charge of the archives in the Vatican secretariat of state. His trial is due to begin in May.

26 Sue to Halt Loyalty Probes

Douglas Abstains

Marzani's Conviction Reaffirmed

Repeating a previous 4-4 vote, the Supreme Court yesterday upheld the conviction of Carl Aldo Marzani on a charge that he concealed Communist connections from his State Department superior.

A former wartime employe of the Office of Strategic Services, Marzani was sentenced to one to three years in prison by the District Court here.

Nine of the 11 counts charging him with having made false statements were thrown out by the U. S. Court of Appeals, which decided they were barred by the statute of limitations.

The two counts which he appealed to the Supreme Court accused him of falsely denying that he had been a member of the Communist Party and that he had used the name of "Tony Whales."

By 4-4 vote last December 20, the Supreme Court affirmed the conviction, with Justice Douglas disqualifying himself. Marzani's lawyers asked and obtained a rehearing, argued on February 28, but Justice Douglas again remained off the bench, and the tie vote was sustained.

Allan R. Rosenberg, Marzani's attorney, said yesterday after learning of the Supreme Court vote that he did not know what action, if any, he could take in the situation.

Marzani, who is 37 and served in England, Germany and Italy with the OSS, has been free under $2500 bond, and lives in New York. He and his wife have two children. He has been earning money since he left the State Department by lecturing about the case, he told a reporter recently.

The mandate of the court becomes effective in 25 days.

In New York, the Associated Press quoted Marzani as saying "I can't feel happy about going to jail, but I don't think that it is as serious as the kind of justice that is being handed around. I don't want to go to jail—it's bad enough for my family—but worse for the people who'll be going to the Supreme Court for justice."

He added: "If this is the kind of democracy we're exporting, I am afraid we won't be very persuasive abroad." He said the Supreme Court's 4-4 split vote "on the prosecution of the Justice Department indicates how the Justice Department is seriously stretching the law."

"It may be," Marzani said, "that the Justice Department should read last fall's election returns."

The constitutionality of President Truman's loyalty order was challenged here yesterday by 26 postoffice employes.

A test suit, filed in the United States Dstrict Court, also asked an injunction against any further loyalty proceedings against Government employes until the case is decided.

The court was also asked to reinstate all suspended employes with back pay.

The postal workers, who took the action on behalf of all Federal employes facing possible dismissal for suspected disloyalty, have themselves all received notices of proposed removal action.

Represented by Rogge

Represented by O. John Rogge, former Assstant Attorney General, they named as defendants Attorney General Tom C. Clark, Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson and Chairman Seth W. Richardson and 21 members of the President's Loyalty Review Board, and three members of the Postoffice Loyalty Board. The latter are Edgar B. Jackson, chairman; Roy C. Frank and Hugh E. Alford.

All the plaintiffs are members of the Federal Employes Defense Committee, recently formed to defend workers facing action under the loyalty order, Rogge said. The committee itself is under study by the Justice Department to determine whether it should be listed as "subversive."

The suit charged that Postmaster General Donaldson and the members of the Postoffice Loyalty Board or their agents, have "wilfully, intentionally and deliberately pressed charges against Postoffice employes who have been most active and militant in combating racial discrimination in the Postoffice Department."

More than 50 per cent of the Postoffice employes who have received proposed removal notces are Negroes and more than 30 per cent are Jewish, according to the suit.

On constitutional grounds, the suit contended that Federal workers are being suspended or dismissed for exercising their right to free speech, press, assembly, religion and association.

The suit said that in many instances, local loyalty boards have reached decisions on the basis of hearsay, rumor and gossip.

The accused employe is assumed to be guilty until proved innocent, the suit charged, adding that employes are being punished for past membership in organizations which were legal at the time.

From Several Areas

The suit attacked "extraordinary and dangerous" powers of the Attorney General of deciding what organizations are subversive, without holding hearings and without judicial process of review. Such action violates the Constitution in giving judicial powers to the Executive Branch, it was asserted.

The 26 postal employes, whose length of service ranges from 2 to 28 years, are from various parts of the country. Nine work in Cleveland, six in Philadelphia, four in Plainfield, N. J., two in other New Jersey towns, three in Detroit, one in New York and one in Chester, Pa.

should take up with the United Nations the question of Americans who are employed by it and get an agreement that when Americans are hired, they will be screened by the State Department."

Mundt said that the method of hiring in the U. N. is a "serious flaw" in that organization's practices. The chief deputy of Secretary General Trygve Lie, he said, was a Russian who appoints most of the personnel to the various boards, commissions and study groups.

"At the present time," he said, "Americans with left-wing sympathies, people who left the Government just ahead of an investigation and people who were fired as security risks are popping up as employes of these groups."

Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) proposed that the Senate declare itself opposed to "unrestricted diplomatic immunity" for foreigners who come to this country on U. N. business.

He said he had in mind persons like Gubitchev, who now is held in jail until he can raise $100,000 bail.

Alexander S. Panyushkin, the Russian Ambassador, has demanded Gubitchev's release on the ground that his U. N. status gives him diplomatic immunity. A State Department spokesman said yesterday that the department still is not ready to reply to the Soviet demand.

Senator O'Conor said he was drafting a resolution that would represent the Senate as expressing "great concern over the threat to our Nation's security which might arise out of unrestricted activities of foreign agents serving with secretariats or delegations of international organizations which have their official residence within the United States."

The resolution would instruct the State and Justice Departments to take such action "as may be necessary to prevent occurrences prejudicial to the safety and interest of the United States."

When Miss Coplon and Gubitchev will be summoned before the grand jury in New York is a question that remains unanswered. If convicted under the peace-time espionage laws, they face maximum penalties up to 30 years in prison.

At the Women's House of Detention in New York, where she is held in $20,000 bail, Miss Coplon was described as "cheerful and smiling" by her attorney, Bertram Adams.

"She asked me to arrange to get some clothing sent to her from her dormitory ni Washington," he said. "All she has here are the clothes she is wearing."

Adams said his client spent the day listening to the radio and playing a game of shuffleboard.

The Daily Worker, Communist newspaper, suggested in a story headlined "UN Aide Held In Frameup" that Miss Coplon was a FBI agent herself.

Miss Coplon's parents, an invalid couple in Brooklyn, were in seclusion. The father, a retired toymaker and lifelong Republican, was reported to be determined to "stick by Judy."

Miss Coplon, an honor graduate of Barnard College in New York, first came under suspicion during a routine government loyalty check. Found in her handbag when she was arrested, FBI agents said, were typed extracts from Department of Justice records.

"However, the committee received a complete explanation of all features (and), is satisfied that all sections of the proposed legislation are fully justified," said the group.

Statutory Authority

The bill would give Central Intelligence full statutory authority, including the right to spend money and hire and fire without the usual public accounting and Civil Service regulations. It now operates under executive orders and emergency war powers of the President.

One controversial section would permit the CIA to bring aliens into the United States who furnish vital information to American intelligence agents. A maximum of 100 such aliens a year could be admitted and become eligible for citizenship.

The proviso aims at encouraging officials of countries behind the Iron Curtain to talk. Promise of sanctuary in the United States for themselves and their families would be a great inducement, it is believed.

Celler Protests

Most of the opposition on the floor yesterday centered on that proviso. Chairman Celler (D., N.Y.) of the House Judiciary Committee protested it would "throw out of the window all immigration restrictions."

"Fascists, Communists, syphilitics and lepers could be brought in," he declared. "This bill illustrates how the cold war is unhinging the nerves of some of our high military authorities."

Representative Marcantonio (ALP, N.Y.) declared that the secrecy surrounding the measure "makes every section suspect." He said Congress never before had been asked to vote on a bill without an explanation.

Marcantonio joined with Representatives Powell (D., N.Y.), Bosone (D., Utah) and Morris (D., Okla.) in voting against the measure on the final roll call.

Closing Arguments in Axis Sally's Trial Presented Before Tight-Lipped Defendant

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Tight-lipped and seemingly emotionless, Miss Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars yesterday heard herself referred to variously as a traitor "carrying out the stinking policies of the Nazis" and as a loyal American unfortunately caught in the Nazi vise.

The contradictory pictures were painted by Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr. and Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin as they moved into closing arguments in the treason trial of Miss Gillars which opened last January 24.

Kelley completed his summation in 1 hour and 35 minutes. Laughlin still held the stage after 2½ hours of argument. He will conclude today after which Kelley will speak in rebuttal. The case is slated to go to the jury Wednesday.

'Sally's' Motive Analyzed

After reciting a list of early German victories in Europe, Kelley referred to broadcasts made by the defendant in which she praised German culture.

"She felt the joy of conquest," he said, "she believed they couldn't lose and she made up her mind which side to be on. She broadcast time and time again that she had chosen the German side and said it was the right side."

(In one of the broadcasts intercepted by United States monitors, the voice identified as that of Miss Gillars had said: "I'm on the German side because it is the gentile side." In another broadcast the voice repeated that sentiment adding that the German side was "the right side.")

The prosecutor portrayed Miss Gillars as "a stupid" and selfish woman intent only on her career.

Flight From Paris Cited

"Lock, stock and barrel, she sold herself to the Nazis for 3000 marks a month," Kelley told the jury softly, "she had a nice apartment, antiques, flowers, lovers aplenty, cocktail parties and the press club and the Adlon with traitors like Best and Chandler."

Recalling testimony that Miss Gillars fled France as American troops battled their way in, the prosecutor asserted: "If she didn't have a rotten conscience why didn't she stay and be liberated? She knew what she had done as a traitor to her land."

Reading from broadcasts tlleged to have been made by Miss Gillars, Kelley cited one which called American airmen "murderers" and praised the "courage" of the Germans.

"Can there be any doubt in the minds of anyone what was in the traitorous heart of this woman?" he demanded.

Kelley reminded the jury of a broadcast in which the voice graphically described the death of an American soldier following the amputation of his legs. The broadcast was one beamed to America.

"In God's name," Kelley cried, "What can excuse that? Only one thing—treason. The Germans wanted her to say that. She sold out to them and said it for them . . . she got a sadistic joy out of it!"

At the conclusion of Kelley's address, Laughlin took the floor.

"Mr. Kelley has referred to isolated passages in 22 broadcasts out of 1000 intercepted," he said. "Where are the other 978? You can bet your bottom dollar if there were anything in the other 978, they'd have them here."

Aid to America Called Motive

Asserting that Miss Gillars was attempting to aid American families by giving them news of their men overseas, Laughlin, standing at the defendant's side, shouted across the room to the jury: "Here is this lady—taking her chances with the bombs falling' 'to deliver messages to soldiers' kin.

Referring to threats allegedly made to Miss Gillars by Horst Cleinow, once her superior on the Nazi radio, Laughlin said: "Refusal (to obey orders) meant death. Cleinow by a wave of his finger could have sent her to a concentration camp and death—not immediate perhaps—but slowly—of starvation!"

The lawyer, referring to anti-Semitic, anti-British and anti-Roosevelt matter in some of the broadcasts, declared that they did not constitute treason and continued: "If she is convicted, the right of free speech could easily be impaired."

Alluding to her flight from Paris, Laughlin asked: "What would any of you have done? With bombs dropping, would any of you have stayed there?"

Laughlin emphasized that Miss Gillars' material was prepared by someone else. He asserted that Dr. Max Otto Koischwitz, former German radio official and Miss Gillars' sweetheart, now dead, was high in Nazi circles.

"Suppose she had crossed him," the attorney said. "He could have had her put away in a moment."

At other times, Laughlin touched on the Civil War and stated there were no treason trials stemming from that conflict. He also referred to the burning of the White House by the British in 1812, the "false charges" against Cardinal Mindszenty, and at one point told a joke about an Irishman named Pat. Miss Gillars was not amused. She continued to stare straight ahead.

House Passes Bill For Defense Aide

A bill to create the office of an Undersecretary of Defense passed the House yesterday and was sent to the Senate.

The measure, sponsored by Representative Short (R., Mo.), would establish the position as an administrative aide to the Secretary of Defense.

Stirs Speculation

Top Russian At U. N. Ill, Reports Say

Lake Success, March 7 (AP).—Russia's top United Nations delegate, Deputy Foreign Minister Jakob A. Malik, was reported ill in bed today in New York.

Greater attention was paid to Malik's absence from U. N. meetings because of changes in the top brackets of the Foreign Ministry in Moscow and because of the arrest on suspicion of spying of a Russian national employed by the U. N.

Malik is the highest ranking Russian in the United States but his assignment ostensibly is for United Nations matters only.

He took the place left by Andrei A. Gromyko when Gromyko was recalled to Russia last spring for a vacation. Last Saturday the Soviet government announced Gromyko's appointment as First Deputy Foreign Minister under Andrei Y. Vishinsky.

Chicago, March 7 (U.P.).—The Chicago Sun-Times said tonight in a copyright dispatch from London that the proposed North Atlantic Security Pact binds signatory nations to "the use of armed force" in case any of them is attacked.

In a dispatch from Frederick Kuh, Sun-Times London correspondent, the newspaper published what it described as the first known details of the proposed alliance, listing 12 articles.

The key to the entire treaty, according to Kuhn, is the provision which states:

"An attack against one or more of the parties both in Europe and North America, will be considered as an attack against all. In consequence they will assist the party or parties attacked by taking immediately, both individually and collectively, such action, including the use of armed force, that is deemed necessary to restore and maintain security."

The dispatch said the pact set forth that the "armed force" provision should not be interpreted as affecting mechanisms provided in the United Nations Charter and that "any armed attack will be reported to the Security Council." It said the signatories "solemnly declare that this treaty does not contradict any engagement now in force between any of the signatories and any third party."

Kuh said the "armed force" provision has caused some flurry because some members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee believe it goes too far in committing the United States, and partly because it does not go far enough to suit other powers, such as France.

Code Secrets Tightening Is Approved

Legislation tightening existing law protecting American secret codes and code-breaking techniques was approved yesterday by a Senate Armed Services subcommittee.

The group acted unanimously after adopting amendments which would safeguard the press, radio and magazines from unwarranted criminal prosecution under the measure.

The amendments eliminate a threat to the freedom of the press brought to light by The Washington Post.

Provides Stiff Penalties

Publication of any classified information dealing with American or foreign codes, ciphers, cryptographic, code and code-breaking machines and communication intelligence activities (code-breaking) would be punished by 10 years imprisonment and a fine of $10,000.

The same penalties would be imposed upon anyone who publishes classified information on any subject if it were obtained by code-breaking activities, provided he did so with knowledge that it had been obtained by such methods.

Suggested by Kenney

The latter provision and another amendment requiring that violators do so "knowingly and wilfully" were the changes added by the subcommittee. The amendments were suggested by Undersecretary of the Navy W. John Kenney after The Washington Post discovered a "joker" in the original bill.

The committee made public a letter from Erwin D. Canham, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, which said that with the changes "the bill is entirely unobjectionable from our viewpoint."

As originally submitted by the Navy in the last Congress, the bill would have made it a crime to publish classified information which had been coded, if publication endangered security, regardless of intent. This was removed after protests.

As amended yesterday, the bill would punish only those who "knowingly and wilfully" breach security, knowing of its source.

Draft of Atlantic Pact To Be Ready in Week

By the United Press

Negotiators on the North Atlantic pact said yesterday they will finish drafting the mutual defense treaty this week, or early next week at the latest.

The State Department announced after a drafting session lasting almost three hours that "excellent progress was made." There will be another meeting, probably on Friday, and maybe a session early next week.

Similar optimistic reports were made by French Ambassador Henri Bonnett and British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks. Bonnett said "really good progress" was made and Franks described the session as "most satisfactory."

Neither the British nor French Ambassador would say whether the negotiators had reached any decision on including of Italy in the pact. The problem has been studied for several weeks with the United States and France the chief supporters for Italy's participation.

Denmark's participation also may be decided soon. Danish Foreign Minister Gustav Rasmussen will arrive in the United States this week for talks with Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson.

Officials said the pact still is open to Denmark, Portugal and Iceland if they want to join. Participating nations now include the United States, Canada, Britain, France, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and Norway.

Senator Warns Truman To Release Text of Pact

By the United Press

Senator Arthur V. Watkins (R., Utah) last night urged President Truman to release the text of the North Atlantic defense pact or risk its defeat in the Senate.

In a telegram to Mr. Truman, now at Key West, Fla., Watkins maintained that the Senate is "kept in the dark" on the treaty's terms while a "general debate" rages in the press and on the radio.

He urged Mr. Truman to make the pact public at least 60 days before its is signed to give the public a chance to study "this proposed departure from our historic policy of "no entangling alliances.'"

More Clerics Are Arrested

Sofia, Bulgaria, March 7 (U.P.).—A government spokesman announced today that security police had seized more Protestant clergymen and he said it is "possible" as many as 50 are in jail.

The latest roundup was disclosed as 15 other Protestant pastors waited in bleak Sofia central prison for their sentences Tuesday on charges of treason, espionage and black marketing. All are liable to death by hanging.

Asked to comment on reports circulating in Europe that 50 more clergymen had been arrested yesterday, the government spokesman said:

"I don't know how many are under arrest or are being questioned. It is possible they number 50. As you could see during the present trial proceedings, some witnesses were pastors under detention. Others also were named as involved in the spy ring."

Four days ago church circles reported that 25 ministers, in addition to the 15 on trial, were held by authorities. The spokesman did not say whether yesterday's arrests brought in 50 or whether that was the total number.

indicate, at this time, satisfaction with explanations given it in the controversy over Britain's recovery needs.

ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman testified at a special hearing on February 28 that reports Britain has already reached virtual economic recovery had been misconstrued, and that she is still seriously in need of dollar aid. Hoffman was before the committee for nearly four hours of its executive session yesterday, and Senator Connally said the committee appreciated his cooperation.

In reporting out the bill, the committee yesterday added to it the following amendments:

1. For the first time, the European recovery legislation would declare that it is the intention of the program "to encourage unification of Europe."

This is a highly compromised version of efforts by Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) to place the United States on record as favoring a "federation" of European nations.

Senator Connally said Fulbright proposed that the legislation specify, "to encourage political unification of Europe." Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wisc.), sponsored the motion to strike out "political," said Senator Connally.

Both he and Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.) opposed the unification amendment, said Connally, for it "just gives Russia a hollering point when they say it (the Marshall Plan) is an imperial plan for the control of Europe."

2. ECA is instructed to provide that, wherever practical, at least 50 per cent of all purchases from the United States shall be shipped in United States vessels if such ships are available at market rates of United States vessels.

At present, existing legislation provides for such shipment when vessels are available at "market rates." ECA has interpreted this to mean competitive world market rates, bringing loud protest from the United States shipping industry and seamen's unions.

3. ECA is authorized to pay ocean cargo costs of relief packages shipped to Europe by CARE and similar relief groups, with uniform rates to be established.

4. ECA is authorized to act as an agent for the Bureau of Federal Supply, to enter into contracts extending up to 20 years, for purchase and production of strategic materials.

5. Up to 10 American ships would be made available by the United States Maritime Commission to transport Italian immigrants from Italy to Central and South America, if Italian ships are not available. Italy would pay operation costs of the vessels.

The committee rejected an amendment which would have added an additional 100 million dollars to the aid legislation for the purchase in the United States of such surplus foods as apples, peaches, citrus fruits, etc.

In place of this, the Senate committee approved a statement for the record, by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.), which reemphasizes that ECA should give "sympathetic consideration" to surplus commodities in the United States in authorizing recovery purchases.

Trade Experts Agree On Recovery Plan

Paris, March 7 (AP).—Western Europe's trade experts have agreed on a long-term recovery plan which will probably be announced Tuesday.

The trade leaders are seven cabinet ministers and one diplomatic envoy who make up the executive committee of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation. In addition to serving as a board of managers for administration of the Marshall Plan, they are mapping steps to be taken after the scheduled expiration of that plan in 1952.

Announcement of their long-range plan had been expected tonight, but the meeting broke up without any statement.

The plan is known to call for increased exports, curtailment of dollar imports, increased intra-European trade and coordination of investments.

Royall to Resign In 10-20 Days

Key West, Fla., March 7 (AP).—Word came from President Truman's associates that Secretary of the Army Royall is stepping out within 10 to 20 days.

There was no official comment for the record on the forthcoming Administration change, but two of Mr. Truman's highly placed aides disclosed that Royall is leaving his post soon.

Truman's Label of 'Traitor' Fails to Halt 11 Reds' Trial

New York, March 7 (AP).—Defense attorneys today tried—but failed—to halt the conspiracy trial of 11 high United States Communists because of President Truman's remarks about "traitors."

The attorneys said the President's remarks made a fair trial impossible.

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina denied a motion to dismiss the conspiracy indictment against the 11.

Demonstrators, estimated by police to number 420, sang and chanted outside the court.

The courtroom itself was noisy at times as the defense exhausted motion after motion in other efforts to stop the trial.

"I will have no shouting at me in this court," Judge Medina warned Defense Attorney Abraham J. Isserman at one point.

The defense charged that President Truman "expects" that the jury to be picked in the case will "return only one verdict—that of guilty."

Mr. Truman was asked last week to comment on statements by Eugene Dennis and William Z. Foster that they would oppose any war provoked by "Wall Street."

"I have no comment on a statement made by traitors," the President told his news conference.

In denying the motion, Judge Medina said he intended to see to it that any jury chosen becomes thoroughly familiar with the words of the indictment and the issues in the trial.

Then, he moved to get the trial under way by saying "let's have the jurors in here."

But Isserman already was on his feet to ask dismissal of the indictment on another ground—that it failed to charge an overt act.

Judge Medina denied this motion also, pointing out that it had been turned down already at a pretrail hearing

The 11 Communist leaders face maximum penalties of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fines if convicted. They are accused of conspiring to advocate overthrow by force of the United States Government.

Pope Asks Envoys To Cancel Fetes On Coronation

Vatican City, March 7 (U.P.).—Pope Pius XIII, "because of the sorrowful condition in which the Catholic Church finds itself in many countries today asked the Vatical Diplomatic Corps to cancel the traditional receptions next Saturday on the tenth anniversary of his coronation.

The anniversary, the announcement said, will have a "purely religious character," it will be an official church holiday, and the "ceremony will be faithful to the traditions of the church."

The Pope, it added, will attend the solemn thanksgiving mass which Benedetto Cardinal Aloist Masella will celebrate in the Sistine Chapel on the morning of the anniversary.

European Union Constitution To Be Drawn Up in London

London, March 7 (U.P.).—The Foreign Ministers of 10 western European countries will meet in London, probably on March 28, to complete a formal constitution for the European Union, it was announced today.

Invitations to the conference were sent by the five Brussels Pact powers—Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—to Denmark, Eire, Italy, Norway and Sweden, according to Star Busman, secretary-general of the permanent Brussels Pact Commission.

"It is provisionally suggested that the conference should meet on March 28, but the date cannot be finally fixed at present," an official announcement said.

A French Foreign Office spokesman in Paris said the proposed constitution will establish: (1) a European Union Council of Ministers, or cabinet; (2) a European Union consultative Assembly, with headquarters in Strasbourg, in eastern France.

The spokesman indicated that at least six other European nations, including Western Germany, probably will be invited to join the pact at a later date.

Rebellion Report Surprises Envoy

Rene Schick, charge d'affaires at the Nicaraguan Embassy, yesterday termed reports of a revolution in Nicaragua "very surprising." A Sunday dispatch said a rebellion was reported in progress under a man named Julio Olivares.

"Julio Olivares," Schick told The Washington Post, "has been in jail in Managua for the last few days, awaiting trial for the murder of his stepfather, and other crimes."

Burmese Oil Town Falls in Civil War

Singapore, March 7 (AP).—Dissident Burmese forces have seized Yenangyuang, the biggest Burmese oil town, British sources said today. They added that Burmese censorship is suppressing the news.

Yenangyuang, on the Irrawaddy, 270 miles northwest of Rangoon, was said to have been taken by members of the People's Volunteer Organization (PVO), formerly the private army of the assassinated Nationalist leader, U Aung San.

The PVOs revolted last summer but patched up an accord recently when rebellious Karens, supported in some cases by Conimunists, became a menace.

The bands which took Yenangyuang were said to have entered without opposition on the grounds that they were protecting the town from Communists. The oil properties are British-owned.

British Plan to Fight Asia Communist Drive

London, March 7 (U.P.).—An emergency conference of British Commonwealth Prime Ministers will be called soon to plan strategy to counter the Communist drive in Asia, it was made known today.

High officials said the situation was especially "acute" in Burma, Malaya and Siam.

Soviet Organizes Albanian Airlift In Tito Blockade

Frankfurt, Germany, March 7 (AP).—The Abendpost said today the Russians are organizing their own airlift—to beat a Tito blockade of Albania.

The American zone newspaper said four-engined bombers will fly the 450-mile route over Yugoslavia from Budapest, Hungary, to Tirana, and the Albanian capital, twice a week with freight and passengers.

Russia has no air corridor over Yugoslavia. What would happen if she tried to fly planes over Yugoslavia was anybody's guess. But Yugoslavia heretofore has guarded her air frontiers zealously.

A dispatch from Washington said some diplomats believe Soviet Foreign Ministry changes involving V. M. Molotov may mean that Russia is getting ready for a spring showdown with Marshal Tito.

Libel Trial

Kravchenko Swears Book Is His Own

Paris, March 7 (U.P.).—Victor Kravchenko swore "in the name of liberty and my country" today that he wrote the book, "I Chose Freedom."

His statement ended testimony in the six-week-old 1,000,000 franc ($3160) libel suit which he brought against the Communist weekly Les Lettres Francaises for saying he was not the best-seller's author.

Lawyers' pleas are expected to take up Tuesday's and Wednesday's sessions this week and part of next week.

Kravchenko spoke after Dr. Frederic Joliot-Curie, Communist and head of France's atomic energy program, denounced the book as "full of lies." Joliot-Curie also told the court he had become a Communist because "I love my country."

Kravchenko was the last in a long parade of witnesses.

The defense tried to depict Kravchenko as a traitor and a tool of imperialists who had ghost-written "I Chose Freedom" as the opening gun in their campaign for a third world war.

After Joliot-Curie concluded his testimony, Kravchenko himself took the stand to announce he plans to write another book from material left over from his wartime best seller.

Kravchenko told reporters his next book will concern scientific research in Russia."

"There are more atomic bombs than you dream," he said cryptically.

Sun Fo Quits As Premier resign were met with a stern "No."

He was greeted with weak applause which was drowned out in a sea of hissing as he mounted the platform today to make his administrative report.

Before reading it, however, he announced the en block resignation of his cabinet.

He then began his report, while the lawmakers sat in apparently stunned silence. The report was almost similar in contents to a statement he handed to newsmen at a press conference last week.

In his report, Sun attempted to justify the removal of the executive Yuan to Canton, one of the moves which had caused considerable criticism.

The resignation ended the political tug of war between Nanking and Canton, but at the same time gave Li the job of finding another man to fill the post —a task which has proved difficult in the past.

Slavs Make 7 New Austria Pact Demands

London, May 7 (AP).—Big Four deputies finally agreed today on one point of Yugoslavia's demands on Austria, but found their work load boosted by seven new Yugoslav claims.

The deputies are trying to write an Austrian independence treaty.

The new demands of Premier Marshal Tito's government include the expulsion of anti-Tito refugees and other displaced persons in Austria who do not wish to be returned home.

Representatives of the United States, Britain and France jointly proposed inserting into the projected treaty a clause guaranteeing the social, economic and cultural rights of all Austrian minority groups. Russia's deputy, Georgi N. Zarubin, agreed.

This was an answer to Yugoslav's demand that Austria guarantee the rights of Slovenes living outside a Slovene-populated Carinthian area which Yugoslavia proposed be made a politically autonomous province.

Yugoslavia also has gone on record as wanting certain unspecified frontier changes and "substantial" cash reparations.

Russia backed all these claims in principle. The three western powers opposed all of them except the minority rights proposition. The deputies will take up the reparations demand Tuesday.

New demands of the Tito government propose:

Austria must undertake to prohibit all Germanic and anti-United Nations propaganda.

All displaced persons and refugees who do not wish to be repatriated must leave Austria within three months after the conclusion of the treaty. (These would include thousands of Yugoslavs opposed to Marshal Tito, who still is in the Kremlin doghouse).

Austria must demilitarize her frontier with Yugoslavia to a depth of at least 20 kilometers (12 2/5 miles).

Austria must replace works of art and culture looted from Yugoslavia in the war years.

Austria must assume responsibility for paying her prewar debts to Yugoslavia.

Government Wins Chile Vote

Santiago, Chile, March 7 (AP).—Almost complete returns tonight gave government parties victory in both senate an dchamber races of Chile's congressional elections.

The National Democratic Front of the Communists, whose own party was outlawed last September, elected only six deputies and no senators in the balloting Sunday

Fifteen Communists deputies and five Communist senators sat in the old congress. Two of the Communist senators, however, still have four-year terms to serve as holdovers.

Chileans elected 147 deputies and 20 senators.

The four parties in the government won 76 of the chamber seats and 11 of those at stake in the senate.

These are the Radical (34 deputies and 5 senators); the Liberal (32 deputies and 6 senators); the Moderate Democrat (seven deputies) and the Socialist (three deputies).

The Independent Conservative Party won four seats in the senate and 33 in the chamber of deputies. A reform party came out with but one seat in the chamber of deputies.

The four-party opposition bloc appears to have won five seats in the senate and 30 in the chamber.

The Farm Labor Party led with 3 senate seats and 14 in the chamber.

IT'S at the top of Miss Burke's list of "best sellers"—not a work of fiction, but a beautiful fact that gets better looking every pay day.

Miss Burke, like hundreds of other Government girls, has discovered that the relatively small amount she's able to put aside from every pay check has an exhilarating way of "growing up!" Columbia Federal's liberal dividend policy ($237,934.10 paid in 1948 alone) helps a lot. And there's never any question about assured safety—for, in addition to Columbia Federal's careful policies, every account is Federally insured up to $5,000 by the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp.

You're invited to open a savings account at convenient Columbia Federal. It can be as small—or as large—as you wish to make it. We'll be pleased to tell you about the various plans available.

ILO Probe of Slave Labor Voted by U.N.

Lake Success, N. Y., March 7 (U.P.).—The United Nations today instructed the International Labor Organization to begin a world-wide investigation of slave labor.

The U. N. Economic and Social Council adopted an American resolution inviting the ILO, a U. N. affiliate, "to give further consideration to the problem of forced labor and its nature and extent."

The resolution was passed, 14 to 3, over the opposition of Russia, Poland and Byelorussia. These nations supported a Russian resolution calling for an international commission of trade union members to conduct a slave-labor investigation. The Russian resolution was defeated, 15 to 3.

The American resolution setting up the ILO investigation carried an Australian amendment instructing Secretary General Trygve Lie to ask all governments to cooperate in "an impartial inquiry into the extent of forced labor in their countries."

Since Russia is not a member of the labor organization, it was taken for granted that no ILO investigating teams would be permitted to enter the Soviet Union or its satellites.

American Delegate Leroy D. Stinebower criticized the proposed Soviet resolution because the Russians would not offer any guarantee that a U. N. investigating team would be permitted to look into charges that slave labor is widespread in Russia. These charges were laid before the economic and social council by the American Federation of Labor. The ILO was instructed to take special note of the AFL charges.

Russia's Semyon Tasrapkin replied that while slave labor did not exist in the Soviet Union, there might be some confusion in delegates' minds between slave labor and "convict labor." And he said no outside power had the right to investigate convict labor in any country.

Rector's View

Social Laws Not Enough To Stop Reds

"No social legislation will stall off communism . . . it's nonsense to talk of making the world more perfect," the Rt. Rev. John K. Cartwright, rector of St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Cathedral, declared last night.

"Nothing will down this false religion of communism except a war of shot and shell and the atom bomb, God forbid—or else a war of ideas," Msgr. Cartwright told a "Anti-Communist Town Hall" meeting at Gonzaga auditorium, 27 I st. nw.

"It's futile talking about saving the world by making it more perfect by legislation—the world will always remain imperfect," he told the capacity audience at the meeting sponsored by the Washington General Assembly, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus.

The "atheistic religion of communism," he said, has filled up "with the husks of swine" the void left in many members of "the intelligentsia" by a lack of true religion.

WBAL Fined $200, Announces It Will Appeal Gag on News

Baltimore, March 7 (AP).—A fourth radio station was convicted today of violating Baltimore's unique court rules which restrict crime news.

Judge John B. Gray imposed a $200 fine on Hearst Radio, Inc., owner of Station WBAL. Karl F. Steinmann, attorney for the company, announced the decision would be appealed.

Three other stations and a news commentator were convicted and fined for similar violations several weeks ago and also have appealed.

The cases grew out of the arrest in July of Eugene H. James, 31-year-old janitor who later was sentenced to hang for the knife slaying of 11-year-old Marsha Brill.

The radio stations were cited for contempt because they broadcast that James had confessed to police or that he had served an eight-year prison sentence previously for knife attacks on women.

Both are violations of the special code, which is designed to protect the right of an accused to a fair trial.

WBAL argued that it used only the fact that James had a previous record and that it could have learned this by going to newspaper files and court records rather than from the announcement attributed

One section of the special code prohibits statements by police officers about the conduct of an accused and publication of news obtained in violation of the rule.

Judge Gray, assigned here from his circuit in Southern Maryland to hear the case, found that WBAL actually got its information about James' criminal record from Atkinson, by way of a United Press dispatch.

The judge said he made the WBAL fine less than the $300 penalty he imposed on some of the other stations because the broadcast material "came from a reliable source and was made in good faith."

Steinmann argued that the violation was part of a 25-second news announcement about the sensational murder case and de- to Police Commissioner Hamilton R. Atkinson.

clared it "sheer nonsense to say that it had such consequences that the entire jury panel would have been disqualified.

Attorneys for the bar association of Baltimore, which entered the case in support of the court rules, acknowledged that the violation was technical.

Steinmann attacked validity of the court rule. He said it gravely endangers freedom of speech and the press.

Californian Wins Science Talent Prize

Dwight Taylor, 17-year-old Altadena (Calif.) High School senior, last night was named the winner of a $2800 scholarship in the eighth annual Science Talent Search.

Caroline Littlejohn, 16, of Oklahoma City, won second honors, a $2000 scholarship, in the Nationwide competition among 16,000 high school students.

The awards were made by the Westinghouse Corp. at a banquet at the Statler Hotel, given for the 40 finalists in the talent search.

Two Washington youths, Walter Gilbert, 16, of 3309 35th st. nw., and Carl Werntz, 17, of 620 Nicholson st. nw., each won $100 scholarships.

Parking Rules Are Changed At Hyattsville

The Hyattsville Town Council last night voted to change parking regulations along Hamilton and Gallatin sts. and to recommend installation of a traffic control light at Hamilton st. and 38th ave.

Parking will be prohibited on the north side of Hamilton st., between 40th and 41st aves. It will be restricted to two hours on weekdays only, from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. on Hamilton st., between 43d ave. and the point where parking meters are already established in front of private residences.

Two-hour restrictions will be maintained on weekdays also on Gallatin st., from 42d pl. to parking meters, the council decided.

The traffic light recommendations go to the State Roads Commission.

The Council voted to allocate $6500 to its Roads Committee to buy a road-patching air compressor; and granted licenses to the Hyattsville Volunteer Fire Department to hold a carnival in July and to St. Jerome's Church to hold a carnival in August.

Civilians Given Say On Munitions Board

Two on One

President's Aides Tell Big Fish Tale

By a Washington Post Reporter

Key West.—President Truman made news by sleeping until 9:30 a. m. today, swam, worked a little, took a fish story in stride, and prepared for his trip Tuesday to Winter Park to receive the degree of humanities from Rollins College.

He remained in bed in the little White House at the naval base here at least three hours beyond his accustomed early time of rising.

His Air Force and Military aides, Robert B. Landry and Harry Vaughan recounted that, fishing off the Florida keys this morning, Landry and Vaughan both got bites at exactly the same time. Reeling in their lines, they discovered that a 19½-pound grouper had taken both baits. The fish, they said, was boated without entangling their lines.

Mr. Truman's comment on this story was reported to have been "no comment."

After lunch, the President worked until 4 p. m. then napped briefly before returning to work.

British Production Of Plutonium Revealed

London, March 7 (AP).—Britain has produced its first plutonium, the rare substance used in creating atomic power.

The Ministry of Supply announced the news today and called it "one of the most important steps forward in the country's atomic energy program."

Munitions Board Chairman Donald F. Carpenter yesterday announced a reorganization of his agency to give civilians a greater voice in its affairs.

As this action was disclosed, aviation builder, J. Carlton Ward, jr., proposed holding "war maneuvers" for American industry to test its readiness for an emergency.

Ward, board chairman of Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corp., spoke here under the auspices of the National Air Council and Library of Congress. He declared that the period for industrial mobilization today in a war emergency is "reduced to days and hours" and therefore mobilizing tests are as important as war games to prove logistics and weapons.

The Munitions Board's primary job is to see that the armed services are assured of getting supplies they will need.

Civilians to Head Activities

It has many functions requiring business experience, such as industrial mobilization and purchasing of materials for stockpiling.

Under the new plan, civilians will head board activities that are of an industrial nature. They will have military assistants.

Activities dealing chiefly with military problems will be directed by military officers with civilian assistants.

All board activities come under four main offices with Lt. Gen. Leroy Lutes as director of staff or general manager.

These offices are: industrial program, military program, military supply and the committee on facilities and services.

Carpenter is chairman of this latter committee. J. Clawson Roop, former vice president of Pan American Airways Corporation, has been designated as deputy chairman.

Former Model Held in Slaying

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
MRS. MONETTE BURNS
Charged with husband's murder

'Dare' Killer Of Husband Is Indicted

Towson, Md., March 7 (AP).—A murder indictment was returned today against Mrs. Monette Burns, 40-year-old former model, who told of bringing a date home and finding her estranged husband behind a bedroom door.

She is charged with shooting Emmett T. Burns, 38-year-old building and loan association teller from whom she had been separated four monhts. She was quoted as saying she shot him on his dare.

Officers found Burns dying of four bullet wounds at the Burns home in a Baltimore suburb about 4:30 Sunday morning.

Mrs. Burns was identified as a former Athens, Ohio, model who had appeared on the stage in Cleveland.

Officer Edner Story said the slim brunnette told him of coming home with Capt. Daniel Lynch, jr., an Army officer stationed in Washington, D. C. They had met earlier in the evening at a bar in downtown Baltimore.

[Authorities at the Army Medical Research Center here said a Capt. Daniel J. Lynch, jr., an administrative officer in the research and graduate school, is stationed on the base and lives in officer quarters there. He could not be reached last night.—Editor's Note.]

"I was showing Daniel around the house," Story quoted her. "In the north bedroom I found my husband standing behind the door."

Lynch left after a scuffle and Mrs. Burns said she picked up her coat in the living room and tried to leave.

"Emmett struck me several times, tore my clothes and called me vile names," the statement continued.

"I went upstairs and took my .25 automatic from the dresser drawer.

"When Emmett saw the gun he said: 'Go ahead and shoot.'"

When he fell, the statement went on, Mrs. Burns cradled him in her arms and he said: "I loved you and you shot me and I am going to die."

Lynch was taken into custody when he returned to his hotel in Baltimore and was released after questioning.

Junior Board Map Plans for Accident Prevention Week

Plans were drawn for an Accident Prevention Week, March 28 through April 3, by the Junior Board of Commerce at a luncheon meeting in the Burlington Hotel yesterday.

Charles H. Burton, chairman of the Board's traffic and safety committee, said that during the week placards would be placed in the front of street cars, and that private trucks would carry bumper displays.

Traffic Director George A. Keneipp and Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett pledged the cooperation of their departments at the luncheon.

Burton said that during a similar week in Baltimore last year, accidents were reduced 25 per cent.

Parolee Sought In Va. Slaying

Brown was employed as a lumber stacker at Martin Bros. mill about three miles from the scene of the killing.

Police said they found a .38-caliber revolver at Thomas Brown's home with three of the shells fired. They also learned that the lumber mill worker did not return to home this morning until about 4 a. m.

According to Dr. J. L. Stringfellow, Culpeper County coroner, the young tenant farmer was killed by a .38-caliber slug in his heart. The dead man's wife told police the shooting happened a little after 2 a. m. and that she thought the killer was a Negro.

James Brown, tenant farmer on William Smith's 630-acre dairy farm on Rt. No. 3, known as Ashland Farms, about 3 miles east of here, was killed by a shot fired into the bedroom from outside the house, according to his wife. She said the murderer then ordered her outside and raped her on the ground.

After treatment by a doctor for a head wound, Mrs. Brown took her two small children from their shabby four-room stucco home to the house of her father, John Fincham, a mile west of Culpeper. There she told a reporter this story:

"I was in bed with the two children. My husband was lying beside the stove on a mattress.

"I thought I heard a shot, but then I thought I was dreaming, so I dozed back to sleep. A little while later I woke up and my head was sore. I turned on the light over the bed, and put my hand up to the back of my head. It came away with blood on it.

"When I woke my husband and told him my head was bleeding, he turned on the ceiling light and another shot was fired. Then he got right in front of the door to turn on the porch light and another shot was fired, and my husband fell down.

"Then a voice outside said, 'Cut out those lights and come out here.'

"He grabbed me by the arm, but I got away and tried to take off my slip so he couldn't see me in the dark. I ran back of the house, but I fell over the woodpile and he caught me.

"Then he took me back by the side of the house and raped me."

Mrs. Brown said that after the man had raped her she got away and ran a quarter of a mile, dressed only in a brassiere, to the home of her husband's brother, Clarence Brown. She said it was 2:35 a. m. when she reached his house.

The only description Mrs. Brown could give of her attacker was that he wore an overcoat and hat, was short and she thought he was a Negro.

Stringfellow could not say definitely that Mrs. Brown had been raped. The coroner said he did not think the cut on Mrs. Brown's head had been caused by gun fire, but rather by a blunt instrument.

Smith said James Brown had worked for him as a general farm hand since last summer and was a "good worker." Brown married Elsie Fincham four years ago. Their two children are Nancy May, 3, and Bobby Lee, 8 months.

Brown was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Brown of Rixeyville, Va., and would have been 24 years old tomorrow.

The investigation is being conducted by State police from Second Division headquarters near Culpeper and the Culpeper County sheriff's office.

'Eat-More' Program Asked of Congress

The National Planning Association Agriculture Committee yesterday called upon Congress for a long-range farm program that will encourage the American people to eat more food.

Increased consumption will take care of threatening food surpluses, and thus avert a serious farm depression, it asserted.

Even in good times the United States has underfed people. The NPA committee's case for increasing consumption to reduce food surpluses, is based on that fact.

"The underfed," it states, "those who can't afford to buy food and those who can afford the food but do not buy intelligently because they do not know the nutritive values of different foods—provide an enormous potential market for meat, dairy products and for fruits and vegetables."

Four suggestions were made ot bring about stepped-up consumption:

1. Education in nutrition, so that consumers with money can spend it usefully. "A national effort on a big scale might accomplish more than any other one thing to improve our diets," it says.

2. Increased efficiency in marketing, to improve quality of food and cut costs of distribution. Lower costs for marketing reduce the ultimate cost to the consumer or increase the farmers' return, the report points out.

3. Federal aid to supplement diets so that people with low pay get the right things to eat. One way to build national health and each proper nutrition is through the Federal school lunch program, NPA says, which is still "only experimental in size." It also recalls the food stamp program of 1939-1943.

4. Shifts in farm production away from staples not needed at home and toward protective foods that are needed. If the people are to eat better rations, changes in farming must come, too, the statement says. Methods may have to be found to help farmers change from cotton to dairying, or from wheat to beef production.

The discussion centered about three ways to avoid food surpluses: (1) eat them up at home, (2) send them overseas, and (3) refuse to produce them. The argument gave preference to the first.

While the dollar shortage abroad makes it impossible for American farmers to count on exporting food which cannot be marketed profitably in this country, the report suggests that it may be sound American foreign policy to use occasional surpluses to relieve economic pressures in danger spots of the world.

The committee suggested: "You can't always buy peace with food. But sometimes you can buy a little time while folks are working for peace."

The Jet Age

Electronics Yield Drink Of Water

New York, March 7 (AP).—You can get a drink of water from noiseless noise at the Radio Engineering Show.

Sound waves which you can't hear create a drinking fountain, sending water spurting up 3 inches high. The jet rises in a continuous fountain from the middle of a glass tub partly filled with water.

There's no pump to force the jet up. The water is simply kicked into the air by sound waves, created at the speed of 500,000 a second. It demonstrates a new step in making and focusing supersounds which promise many kinds of scientific magic.

A shallow bowl, 4 inches in diameter, lies hollow side up in the middle of the glass tub, and is covered with a few inches of water.

The bowl is made of barium titanate, resembling porcelain. When high-frequency current is sent through it, all parts of the bowl start vibrating, sending out beams of sound waves. Due to the bowl's shape, like a reflector, the waves meet at one point, at the surface of the water. So much energy converges there that the water is shot upward.

4829 Face Pay Holiday

Truman and members of his own party.

President Truman had asked the committee in this measure to repeal a 1948-passed rider which would, in effect, bar Reclamation Commissioner Michael W. Straus and Regional Director Richard L. Boke from employment in the Reclamation Commission.

Downey Gains Support

Senator Sheridan Downey (D., Calif.) has been actively opposing Strauss and Boke and is understood to have won considerable support on the committee, not only from Republicans, but also from Southern Democrats, whose ire against President Truman has been mounting higher and higher.

Meanwhile, a verbal slugging match is in progress between Southern Democrats and the Chief Executive's leaders in the Senate over who will be responsible for killing rent control if it is allowed to expire without action March 31.

Majority Leader Scott Lucas (D., Ill.) and Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.), chairman of the rent control subcommittee, were in agreement only on one point—that if rent control is allowed to die March 31 it will be impossible to renew it.

Legislatures of a number of States, including Maryland, are scheduled to end their sessions soon. A suggestion was made yesterday that State Legislatures, anticipating the absence of Federal legislation, had better act on State laws.

Hearings May Be Blocked

Sparkman warned yesterday that if the Administration leadership, as threatened, schedules night sessions—or even around-the-clock sessions—in order to break the filibuster over changing the rules of the Senate it will be impossible to hold hearings on rent control.

The subcommittee, he said, had hoped to complete hearings this week, and have a bill ready by March 18. He added, however, that Senate committees cannot meet while the Senate is in session.

He added that it was discouraging for the committee to "work diligently" to get a bill—such as the housing bill—on the Senate calendar only to have it remain there because of a fight over the rules.

Two CIO Witnesses Heard

Senator Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.), chairman of the full committee, took over the questioning of two CIO witnesses yesterday—John W. Edelman, Washington representative of the Textile Workers of America, and Leo Goodman, director of housing for the CIO.

Maybank made the point that it was the people in the industrial cities of the North, East and West, the very ones who talk most about civil rights, who would be "hurt the worst" if rent control expired.

Edelman said he agreed with him "1000 per cent." He commented dryly that his organization had been "exercising self-restraint" and confining its lobbying efforts to housing and rent control.

Presence of some 500 demonstrators against rent controls forced removal of hearings to the large Senate caucus room yesterday. The landlords' group clapped wildly each time an anti-rent-control witness concluded his statement.

Donaldson Asks End to Mail Subsidy

By The Associated Press

Postmaster General Donaldson told Congress yesterday that "subsidies must stop" for mail users if the service is to be businesslike. He called for a rate hike of 250 million dollars a year.

The highest increases would be in second class mail which carries newspapers, magazines and other publications.

Donaldson cited some large magazine revenues and said:

"There's no reason why the Postoffice Department should subsidize businesses of this character."

The issue, he said, is "whether the Postoffice Department is to be a service agency subsidized by Government, or a business operation as recommended by the Hoover Commission."

No Drastic Bill, Says Murray

Donaldson appeared before the House Postoffice Committee which plans a month or so of hearings on the bill to raise postal revenues $253,275,000 in the face of an anticipated deficit of 500 million dollars this fiscal year.

Chairman Murray (D., Tenn.) said it would not be practical or in the public interest now to raise rates enough to make the department self-sustaining. But he said there should be "a fair and reasonable increase in certain rates" to trim the deficit.

The committee doesn't intend to approve a bill "so drastic as to hurt business," or work undue hardship, he said.

The proposed increases would not affect 3-cent letter mail, but it would raise the penny postcard to 2 cents. Parcel post rates would go up, along with money orders, C.O.D., registered and insured mail. So would third class mail which carries advertising circulars and the like.

Credit Ruling Allows Loan 'Stretching'

By The Associated Press

You can get a whole, extra 21 months to pay off the balance you now owe on a car bought some time ago—if your dealer is willing.

Federal Reserve Board officials said that can be done under the easier installment credit terms made effective by the board yesterday. They give the owners of cars partly paid for a break as good—or better—than those buying cars today or later.

The same allowance of a full, extra 21 months to pay off the balance due applies to those who already have partly paid for the other articles under installment credit controls—radios, refrigerators, washing machines, etc.

But the extra time for past buyers can be obtained only if the dealer is willing to write a new contract permitting it.

If the money is owed to a bank or finance company instead of a dealer, then if the bank or finance company is willing to make a new contract.

That, however, is all that is necessary. The buyer does not have to show that "changed circumstances" or unexpected hardship make it impossible for him to continue making installment payments under his present contract.

For those who can make such a showing, a special provision in the regulations makes possible a full 24 months extra to pay off the balance. But again, that applies only if the dealer is willing to make a new contract.

Reserve Board officials warn, however, that the new contract possibilities carry these limitations:

1. They cannot be "prearranged." That is, you and your dealer are forbidden to make any installment payment contract so as to stretch out the payment time.

But the extra time for past buyers can be obtained only if the dealer is willing to write a new contract permitting it.

2. Cash down payments already paid cannot be affected by a new contract.

Cars Still Third Cash

The relaxed regulations themselves keep the cash down payment required on autos at one third, as previously. They lower the down payment for other controlled items to 15 per cent instead of 20 per cent as before.

No one who made a 20 per cent down payment on a television set, for example, can make a new contract in which the excess of the down payment over 15 per cent can be counted on future installments.

Dealers willing to make new contracts providing for an extra 21 months or shorter period to pay off balances due on past deals can arrange the amounts of the installment any way they wish, so long as payment is completed within 21 months.

Miss Frances Perkins, Civil Service Commissioner and former Secretary of Labor, will speak on "A Real Career Service" before the Society for Personnel Administration at 7:30 p. m. today in the Archives Auditorium, Pennsylvania ave. at 8th st. nw. The public is invited.

Coal Strike Hinted If Boyd Gets Job

By The Associated Press

A hint of a new coal strike "soon" over safety in mines was hurled at a Senate committee yesterday by one of John L. Lewis' chief lieutenants.

John Owens, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers, was testifying against President Truman's appointment of James Boyd as director of the Bureau of Mines. Owens said:

"We ask that you do not confirm Mr. Boyd, who will be in charge of a Federal agency which is responsible in part for the safety of the coal miner.

"The miners are becoming impatient and angry over the delay in action on safety, and there may soon come a day when they will refuse to go down in the mines until these things so long complained of are corrected."

Before the Senate Interior Affairs Committee he frequently referred to the Centralia, Ill., mine explosion of March 25, 1947, in which 111 miners were killed.

The shift in directors of the Bureau of Mines took place in 1947. Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug released Dr. R. R. Sayers as head of the bureau. Sayers had supported Lewis' position on safety, and Lewis later hired him.

Boyd was named by Krug and President Truman. Lewis fought the appointment from the first. His opposition has been sufficient to block the confirmation up to now. But yesterday Mr. Truman sent a long letter to the committee urging quick action on the appointment.

If Boyd is rejected, the President said, "there is not a reputable mining engineer or trained technical administrator who would accept the directorship of the Bureau of mines without serious misgivings.

"It has been claimed that since Dr. Boyd has not worked in a coal mine, the miners' have no confidence in him," Mr. Truman said. "I wish to point out that coal mining experience has heretofore never been considered an essential qualification for this position."

5 Fire Barrage At T-H Act

By The Associated Press

House hearings on the Truman labor bill opened yesterday with a shower of Democratic attacks against the Taft-Hartley Act and one of its coauthors, former Representative Fred Hartley (R., N. J.).

All six opening-day witnesses were members of Congress. Only one, Representative Frances Bolton (R., Ohio), had a good word for the Taft-Hartley law.

The top-ranking Republican on the committee, Representative McConnell (Pa.), took this approach:

"The Wagner Act was one-sided. Maybe the Taft-Hartley Act went too far. Somewhere there is a happy medium."

A Truman Administration substitute bill has already been approved by the Senate Labor Committee. It would repeal the 20-month-old Taft-Hartley law and replace it with something much closer to the Wagner Act, which unions have always called "Labor's Magna Carta."

Hartley's name was brought up by Peter W. Rodino (D., N. J.), who now represents the district that Hartley represented for 20 years. Hartley didn't seek reelection last November.

Rodino said the reason Hartley isn't around any longer is that "he could not have won running on the issue of Taft-Hartley."

Representative McConnell denied this was Hartley's motive in not running.

Later Hartley denied it, too. In a statement dictated over the telephone from Frenchtown, N. J., Hartley said he announced during the 1946 campaign that if elected to his tenth term it would be his last.

Heads Tool Owners

Representative Powell (D., N. Y.) and Representative Bailey (D., W. Va.) brought out that Hartley has become president of a citizens' organization known as the Tool Owners Union, which offered testimony in favor of Taft-Hartley provisions before the House Labor Committee in 1947.

Representative Wint Smith (R., Kans.) demanded: "Is Fred Hartley on trial here?"

But Bailey went on to read sections of a report by the board of standards and appeals, New York State Department of Labor. The board recently refused to grant the Tool Owners Union a "certificate of authority" to operate in New York State.

Bailey quoted the board as saying: "No moe fascistic organization . . . has yet come before the official attention of this board."

Called Nonpartisan

The Tool Owners Union has described itself as a nonpadrtisan, nonprofit group designed to protect the interests of investors, farmers, small businessmen and other owners of the tools of production.

court gives it today."

In other actions yesterday, the court:

1. Refused to review its recent 5-4 decision that the Federal wage-hour law applies to the United States' leased base on Bermuda.

The Justice, State and Defense Departments had all asked that the court reconsider its decision, announced December 6. The court then held that the base is a "possession" of the United States for purposes of the law.

2. Ruled unanimously that the Federal eight-hour work law does not apply to Americans employed abroad under a contract between the Federal Government and a private contractor. The statute is a declaration by Congress that eight hours constitute a day's work for all persons employed by or on behalf of the Government.

3. Overturned a series of earlier decisions and held that Oklahoma may tax oil produced by companies operating on Indian lands. The decision was unanimous.

Arlington Board Picks School Site

By D. C. Heads

School Fire Box Decision Study Asked

The District Commissioners have been asked to review their decision requiring use of master fire alarm boxes inside all new District public schools.

S. H. Ingberg, former chief of the fire resistance section of the Bureau of Standards, urged the review in a letter calling the remote control type of equipment "undesirable and unnecessary."

The commissioners approved the remote control type boxes last December after closed hearings in which Fire Chief Clement Murphy opposed such installations, and Superintendent of Communications Herbert A. Friede advocated them. The hearings were held on use of such boxes in the proposed Birney Elementary School.

The street-type alarm box can be pulled only from the street. The remote-control box has a connection within the building, and may be pulled either inside or outside.

Ingberg pointed to the high cost of the remote-control boxes, and the "really very minor" differences between the effectiveness of the two types of boxes as reasons for a review by the Commissioners.

The Arlington School Board last night selected a site on S. 24th st., at Ode and Nash sts, as the spot on which to build a new 8 to 10 room elementary school.

The board instructed School Supt. Fletcher Kemp and School Consultants E. J. Braun and Frank Ball to acquire the property of approximately eight acres from the owners, Mrs. Frances Lee Sickel and Peter Kenigonis.

Architects Designated

At the same time the board named Allen J. Dickey and John Graham, jr., as architects for the new building, which will replace the present overcrowded Hume Elementary School.

In addition to the 8 or 10 classrooms, the new building will include an auditorium, a clinic and offices. Funds for the structure were included in a $1,766,000 bond issue floated in October.

The 24th st. site has been the center of a controversy for some time between the school board, adjacent home owners and local civic groups.

Two Others Bypassed

Two other possible sites were bypassed by the board. They were a 10-acre tract on S. 23d st. near Army-Navy dr. and a five-acre tract in the Shirley Homes development fronting on Arlington Ridge rd.

A factor in the board's selection last night was a recent survey of all three locations made by the school buildings division of the State Department of Education.

The survey recommended selection of the 24th st. property, which was described as having a better, safer approach, free from traffic.

It also would be possible to build more economically on the 24th st. site, the survey found.

The numbers in the sketch indicate: (1) Parking lot; (2) Private property; (3) Swimming pool; (4) Bath house; (5) Baseball diamond; (6) Multipurpose court for tennis, basketball and volleyball; (7) Tennis courts; (8) Softball diamond; (9) Small children's playground; (10) Softball diamond; (11) Fieldhouse. The tract is now owned by the county

$300,000 Negro Play Project Is Proposed for Arlington

A 10-acre recreation area for Arlington Negroes, with everything from a swimming pool to picnic area, was proposed yesterday by the County Recreation Department.

It would cost approximately $300,000 to build the facility on land now county-owned and bounded by S. Nelson, 27th st., Seminary rd., and Four-Mile Run in the Green Valley section.

The recreation area would be the only one of its kind for Negroes in the country.

It would offer softball and baseball diamonds, a picnic area, parking lot, swimming pool with bathhouse, football field, and a small children's playground.

Its field house would be built in three stages, the first providing storage rooms, office space, and space for handicraft work. Later additions would offer two small assembly rooms and a large room for meeting purposes.

Recreation director W. A. Richard admitted that most of the funds are not now available.

But he said the department is putting the proposal before Arlington residents, "who can have it if they're willing to pay for it."

Senate Plans Night Sessions

Taft States Position

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), chairman of the Senate Republican Steering Committee, let it be known that he will vote to sustain Barkley if the Vice President rules debate can be limited on the motion to call up the rules change. But Taft made it clear that he was speaking only for himself and that he doesn't regard the cloture issue as a "party matter."

Actually, the Taft statement did not greatly alter the bleak outlook for cloture. A score of Republicans, including Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.), have already said publicly they will support the Vandenberg precedent. Southern Democrats claim these Republican votes, combined with a few allies on the Democratic side, will give them a majorty against cloture.

Purse Theft Charged

Herman E. Carter, 18, purse snatching suspect, of 1117 8th st. ne., was ordered held in $5000 bond for action of the grand jury yesterday when he appeared in Municipal Court.

Although Carter was arraigned on only one count of robbery, Raymond Baker, assistant United States attorney, told Judge Armond W. Scott that police have charged the youth with seven other thefts.

Carter was arrested after a victim, Mrs. Lucy Baker, 30, of 1007 18th pl. ne., furnished police with a description.

Snow, Overcast Plague Odom Flight

Boise, Idaho, March 7 (AP).—Bill Odom battled bad weather and possible ice conditions over the Rocky Mountain States tonight in his attempt to better a nonstop distance record for light planes.

He told the Civil Aeronautice Administration radio station here as he pushed along on his gruelling Honolulu-to-New-York flight:

"I feel fine. Think I'll make it okay if the weather doesn't foul me up."

Odom already had crossed the Pacific from Hawaii to the California coast in 16 hours and 46 minutes and had surpassed his own record of 2401 miles as he pushed northward through California.

Swinging far north of his intended eastward course, Odom droned on. After flying over the Golden Gate well ahead of schedule this afternoon, he swung over Mount Lassen, Calif; Lakeside, Oreg., and on into west-central Idaho.

He passed somewhere north of this southwestern Idaho city but said he could not tell exactly where he was because of a solid overcast beneath him. That contact, at 8:24 p. m. (EST), said he flew into a snowstorm in that area.

He reported his altitude was 13,000 feet and that he was using oxygen.

Because he was wearing the oxygen mask, he was reluctant to reply to other radio queries from the CAA station here.

The CAA said the overcast in central Idaho had lifted about 2000 feet in the preceding hour and by the time Odom reached the Pocatello area, in eastern Idaho, his weather should have cleared.

But when he passed over Burley, Idaho, at 9:42 p. m. (EST), Odom reported he was fighting light icing on his sturdy little craft, at altitudes between 13,000 and 15,000 feet.

He said he was "concerned" about the fact his wide detour, intended to avoid storm conditions, had used more gasoline than he anticipated.

Odom passed over Rock Springs, Wyo., at 11:26 p. m. (EST), flying on instruments at 13,000 feet.

Regional Air Route Opened

By The Associated Press

A new airline service—passenger, mail and express—began yesterday over a Washington-Pittsburgh route.

It was the first step in an elaborate regional schedule All American Airways expects to evolve by summer.

Intermediate stops at present include Baltimore, Frederick, Hagerstown, Cumberland, Martinsburg, W. Va., and Connellsville-Uniontown, Pa.

Besides a ceremonious sendoff for the 7 a. m. inaugural flight from Washington, brief celebrations were held at several points along the route.

Ouster Voted For Vestrymen In Melish Case

New York, March 7 (NYHT)—A meeting of members of the congregation of Holy Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church in Brooklyn voted 261 to 27 tonight to oust the nine vestrymen who had petitioned the bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Long Island to remove Dr. John Howard Melish as rector of the church.

The overwhelming vote against the nine vestrymen came as no surprise. When the Right Rev. James Pernette de Wolfe, the bishop, ordered the removal of Dr. Melish on March 2 after hearings before the bishop's standing committee, it was predicted that the pro-Melish elements among the congregation would retaliate against the vestrymen.

The congregation vote added more confusion to the battle that has been going on for months over Dr. Melish and his son, the Rev. William Howard Melish, associate rector, who has been opposed by the vestrymen because of his left-wing outside activities, especially his chairmanship of the National Council for American-Soviet Friendship, which is on the Attorney-eGneral's list of subversive organizations.

Dr. Melish has indicated that he would not relinquish his pulpit if the majority of his petitioners supported him.

agencies in the department, it said, was "the original intent of Congress in creating the Department of Commerce."

By assigning to the Commerce Secretary "the duty of making over-all programs for air, land and water transportation" the report said, much "waste and overlap" would be eliminated.

Research activities, it said, are carried on "in narrow segments of certain areas of transportation. In some areas, they overlap; in others they are deficient."

"The amount of subsidies to carriers included in mail contracts is not clear under the present system of appropriations and accounting.

"In operating the Government-subsidized merchant marine, business activities are directed by a full-time board . . . good administration requires a single executive.

"Safety regulations are too often administered by regulatory groups rather than by executive agencies.

"Transportation planning for national defense is inadequately centralized."

One commissioner, Representative Brown (R., Ohio) disagreed with the proposal to group all nonregulatory transportation activities in the department. He asserted such consolidation is "dangerous unless pertinent regulatory functions are also merged in a single independent regulatory commission."

Brown's report will be made public later by the Commission on Regulatory Commissions.

The Coast Guard, the commission stated, "is obviously misplaced in the Treasury Department."

"There is need to coordinate its activities with those of the CAA, the Maritime Commission, and the work of the transportation agencies."

Muddying The Atlantic

Senator George is confusing the issues by his remarks about the North Atlantic Security Pact. "The treaty will not have a chance of passage," he said on Sunday, unless the Administration also tells Congress the "dollar cost" of rearming western Europe. The Senator has seen the still-secret draft of the proposed treaty, and he has discussed with Secretary Acheson the coming bill to authorize military help to European and other countries. He must know, then, that the treaty is one thing and the military assistance bill another.

The treaty will proclaim our intention to resist aggression and to combine with friendly nations in the process. It is not something with a dollar price-tag on it, like a vacuum cleaner in some bargain basement. To talk of the "dollar cost" of this treaty makes about as much sense as to have debated, in 1945, how much it would cost the United States in dollars to join the United Nations. The military assistance bill, on the other hand, will cost whatever Congress sees fit to appropriate. It is up to Congress to decide the amount, treaty or no treaty, when it authorizes the shipment of armaments and then appropriates the funds.

We are sorry to see a mind as keen as Senator George's so dollar-conscious in approaching the problem of American security. It was not always so. When President Roosevelt submitted the Lend-Lease bill in January, 1941, there was no estimate of "dollar cost" in it, and there could be none. Yet at that time Senator George said the bill "must candidly be accepted as the conviction of the country, that it must do whatever seems wise and best for the preservation of its own peace and security." Is the issue any different today? Are the stakes any smaller? The cost of timidity now would be far greater than any possible "dollar cost" which seems to loom so large in senatorial minds.

Whittling Salaries

Legislation to increase the pay of top executives in the Federal Government is progressively losing weight as it goes over the congressional hurdles. It got left behind early in the session when the sections raising the salaries of the President, Vice President and Speaker of the House were lifted out and rushed to passage. Now Senator O'Conor's Civil Service Subcommittee has taken another and more severe whack at it. The chief alteration from the Administration bill introduced by Senator Lucas reduces the pay levels from $17,500, $20,000, $22,500, and $25,000 to $16,000, $18,000, $20,000 and $25,000.

As compared with the niggardly or nonexistent adjustments in past years, this lower scale is good, of course. The salaries of Cabinet secretaries, for instance, have remained at $15,000 since 1925, a situation which the Hoover Commission called "indefensible." And while the cost of living has gone up for everyone, many of the most important Government officials have had no increase over the $10,000 salary fixed for them many years ago. The resulting inconsistencies in the Federal salary scales for executives, both internally and in comparison with outside employment, have contributed to the outflow of some of the most competent men in Government.

But the very infrequency of adjustment of these salary scales emphasizes the necessity of making an adequate change when a revision is undertaken. The purpose of increasing executive pay is not only to reward faithful public servants now in office for what they have done. It is also to make the public service attractive to competent men, now and in the future. The effect of whittling down the pay levels generally supported by authorities in and out of Government is simply to demonstrate congressional reluctance to make Federal employ an effective magnet for talented men.

The subcommittee's proposal to include within the $16,000 pay bracket 25 additional career officials, including the director of the FBI and a number of other highly deserving people, has our complete approval. Perhaps this could best have been done in a revision of the Classification Act, but this is no compelling objection. These raises are as long overdue as the others. They will tend to make the career service a stronger attraction. Consistently, Congress should show the same concern for the top brackets of executive offices, since this is where the President has had extreme difficulty in getting and holding top-grade people. Good government is at stake, and the somewhat greater cost of holding to the original rates would be worth the gain in efficient management.

Espionage Again

The arrests of Miss Judith Coplon, a minor employe of the Department of Justice, and of Valentine Gubichev, a Soviet Russian national in the employ of the United Nations, afford another illustration of how far conspiratorial communism has succeeded in remaking the non-Communist world in its own image. It points up again the discouraging fact that where the passive loyalty of citizens and the active loyalty of persons engaged in confidential Government work cannot be presumed, a considerable advance must be made in the direction of the police state.

The revelations by Igor Gouzenko in the Canadian spy cases was clear proof that oaths and other solemn obligations are an insufficient protection against treacherous conspiracy. It began to appear that henceforward every Government employe must be held suspect until suspicion had been removed by a secret inquiry into his private life, interests, associations and family affairs. This was to say that no Government employe, and perhaps no citizen, would have any longer the right to a private life, since he could never feel himself free of surveillance. This belief was strengthened by testimony of Mr. Chambers and Miss Bentley concerning Communist espionage in very high places in the Government of the United States. An atmosphere began to grow in Washington which was not altogether unlike that of Sixteenth Century Spain, where it was believed that under the mask of formal Catholicism, innumerable infidels and heretics were secretly plotting the overthrow of church and dynasty.

The various inquisitions and investigations set in motion in this country by the report of the Canadian Royal Commission were characterized, not inappropriately, as witch hunts, both by the spokesmen of the Left and by persons fearful of any further extensions of the already enormous police powers of the government. But behind all the smoke there was certainly some fire, just as there was in the case of the European witch hysteria of 400 years ago, according to the judgment of so cautious an historian as the late Sir Charles Oman.

It is obvious that without an elaborate system of counterespionage the association between Miss Coplon and Comrade Gubichev could not have been discovered nor the trap which closed about them last Saturday prepared. How many secret agents of the FBI were required for the purpose, and how much of their time was absorbed by the case there is no way of knowing; but it cannot have been other than an expensive business. If there are many other Miss Coplons in the Government, and many other Gubichevs on the loose in the United States, it is not difficult to imagine a day when undercover police work of this sort will become a principal activity of the Government.

We should be much grieved, however, if the mention of this possibility should be construed as in any way reflecting discredit upon the FBI for its work in this or any similar case. We merely seek to point out the dilemma which is presented to all free governments in the very existence of the Communist conspiracy with its peculiar attractions for certain minds. To fight communism by its own methods, that is, by stealth and duplicity or by intimidation, is to risk a gradual and unwitting drift toward a society in which Communist hunting will become a vested interest. Yet not to fight it, by every means possible under our democratic system, would be to invite destruction.

Lobbying Engineers

Howls of anguish have greeted the reported proposal of the Hoover Commission to divest the Army Engineers of their civil functions. These protests probably played a substantial part in inducing the House to exempt the military establishment from the reorganization authority granted the President. If this action should be upheld by the Senate, it would virtually rule out the possibility of any change in the scope of the Corps of Engineers, since any separate measure for that purpose would have to be approved by the Armed Services Committees.

The primary argument for removing essentially civil functions from the Army Engineers is that these bear little or no relation to the military establishment. The engineers' part in such programs is a holdover from the days when there was no other governmental agency to work on the rivers. This is no longer the case. But, because of the congressional habit of log rolling on rivers and harbors appropriations, the engineers have become virtually untouchable either by other Government programs or the Secretary of Defense.

The result is a lack of coordination on projects employing both the engineers and other agencies. There is practically no flood control or navigation project that is not vitally related to reclamation or conservation. But the engineers have refused to be unified. An example is the Pick-Sloan plan in the Missouri Valley, where the engineers and the Reclamation Bureau are going their separate ways with little attention to the valley's over-all resources or needs. Certainly any program for comprehensive development of the Nation's natural resources demands unified regional direction and a cohesion that is impossible when the engineers retain such autonomy.

Congress might usefully inquire into the source of the many protests that have flooded Capitol Hill and the Hoover Commission since the proposal was first broached. Some of these letters strongly suggest that officers of the Corps of Engineers have engaged in stirring up community sentiment against the change. Congress has been diligent in reprimanding other governmental agencies when they have overreached their powers in lobbying. Particularly because of its special position the Corps of Engineers ought to be similarly scrutinized.

Streamlined Defense

President Truman took an obvious cue from the Hoover Commission in recommending to Congress a fundamental overhauling of the administrative structure of national defense. What the President asks would, if enacted, make substantially easier the job of the new Secretary, Mr. Louis Johnson. For the President would give to the Secretary of Defense something Secretary Forrestal never had—power commensurate with his responsibility. The changes would give to the Secretary of Defense authority over policy similar to that held by other major department heads. Areas of responsibility would be defined; the military weighting of the National Security Council and the end runs by the individual armed services would be eliminated.

But the President seems reluctant to follow his own recommendations to their logical conclusion. Against the advice of the majority of the Hoover Commission, he seeks to retain the separate service secretaries, at least in title, though he would definitely subordinate them to the Secretary of Defense. These positions are important, to be sure. But the very existence of separate secretaryships implies a sort of independence which is precisely the flaw the Hoover Commission seeks to correct. Even divested of authority, they would thus remain an obstacle in the way of real unification.

The same may be said for the President's recommendation for a chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff—though here he has a majority of the Hoover Commission with him. Mr. Truman calls for a principal military assistant to the Secretary to preside over the Joint Chiefs. But he avoids giving the chairman the authority and prestige he would need to enforce decisions. A single Chief of Staff would, in our opinion, actually facilitate civilian control of the armed services; moreover, his post would be a symbol of unification to which military careerists could aspire.

What Mr. Truman recommends is a good start toward taking the bugs out of unification. But if Congress is going to make the changes which experience has shown are necessary, it ought to go all the way and not temporize with half measures.

Change In The Air

If the predictions of enthusiasts come true, the new Boeing Stratocruiser now being introduced to commercial airline traffic may revolutionize aviation in much the same way as the DC-3 did a decade and a half ago. Washingtonians had a chance to look over the Stratocruiser during the weekend when Pan American Airways christened its Clipper America at the National Airport. It would be difficult not to sing the new plane's praise. Faster and more commodious than other craft now in service, this civilian version of the B-50 bomber carries 75 passengers comfortably at altitudes of 25,000 feet or more and speeds of 340 miles an hour.

The present forte of the Stratocruiser appears to lie in international travel. But an even greater potential, it seems to us, is in domestic long-distance coach service. Some of the luxuries such as berths and snack bars could be eliminated to accommodate, without strain, 100 or more passengers in coach service. Indeed, Pan American has been talking about an international coach service with materially lower rates. These would, of course, depend on sanction by the International Air Transport Association.

The advent of the Stratocruiser reflects what has been happening in aviation generally. While there are still plenty of the DC-3 workhorses in service, they are being feplaced gradually by planes designed during the war. American Airlines next month will have retired all its DC-3s in favor of the Douglas DC-6 for long-distance travel and the Convair for shorter hops. The four-motored DC-4 is still the staple of many lines, but even it is giving way to the Lockheed Constellation on longer domestic runs as well as in transoceanic flights. The new Martin 202, similar to the Convair, also has found favor with some lines.

The postwar air travel boom has not come so rapidly as at first anticipated, and there is still plenty of red ink on airline books. But the early disillusionment and resultant shakedown probably has been a healthy thing for solid growth. The irregular carriers, now forced to the wall, have put the older lines on their mettle. The new planes will really prove their worth when the airlines pass on the benefits to the consumer in lower-cost mass-base air travel.

TRANSIENT

Her step is light, she leaves no trail through the grass,
Less than a wake through water.
Do not seek to snare her feet as they pass:
She is not the wind's daughter.

She will not notice the nestlings as she goes,
Or young fruit on the trees,
But the feel of feathers against her breast she knows,
Young apples her wild heart sees.

And if she is careless of storm, she is not brave;
And giving, not free of heart.
She will not fear for the fruit she may not have,
Nor keep what was lost from the start.

Maryland Subversives

That which many loyal Americans have feared will have come to pass with the passage of Maryland's proposed Subversive Activities Act of 1949. This bill if passed in its present form mocks its alleged purpose, for it is the beginning of a police state. It is aimed at communism but strikes at the heart of freedom itself. The article by Benjamin Bradlee in The Washington Post of March 6 makes this plain.

How is it that such legislation could be prepared and presented without serious challenge before the eleventh hour? Where were those in power elected to represent our democratic way of life when the bill was first proposed? Are they the watchdogs of democracy, those 26 Maryland Senators who passed the bill through the State Senate without a dissenting vote?

Such a lack of discrimination is a threat to democracy, not to communism. I hope that enough Marylanders will see this to make themselves heard in time.

Gallup On Oleo

Even casual reading of newspapers since last October 25 would have informed Dr. George Gallup (poll published March 5) that taxes are no longer the issue in the butter-oleo controversy. Since that date leading dairy and farm organizations have called for repeal of oleo taxes in policies adopted by three major annual conventions and literally hundreds of local and State meetings. All such organizations urge a ban on the outright imitation of butter through yellow coloration of oleo at the factory or in public eating places.

The issue now is yellow coloration. The Gallup poll dates back to the election of Grover Cleveland, which may be a safer ground for Gallup than the last election proved to be.

It is incredible that Mr. Gallup could take a poll without making the slightest effort to find out the issues involved or what had happened in the past six months.

Non-Communist Oaths

On behalf of Local 209 of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes International Alliance I wish to make a correction of your article of March 2 pertaining to the results of the union shop election at the Olmsted Restaurant.

I want to make it clear that at no time did the officers of Local 209 refuse to sign the non-Communist affidavits, including W. S. Johnson, who was removed from office by the international president and not by the local union.

These union shop elections were agreed to by management of Olmsted Restaurant and Fan & Bill's Restaurant as per contract, prior to the removal of W. S. Johnson.

These are the true facts and I, as secretary-treasurer and business agent, on behalf of our membership, feel that a gross injustice has been rendered to our Local 209 and demand a retraction and correction.

JOHN H. MARTINI.
Washington.

Editor's Note: The regional office of the National Labor Relations Board held up certification of the two union shop elections until the officers of Local 209 complied with the Taft-Hartley Act by signing anti-Communist affidavits. The seven officers of Local 209 withheld their signatures while seeking clarification of the NLRB order. W. S. Johnson, business agent, was one of the officers. Meanwhile the international president of the union suspended Johnson on Communist charges and ordered the other officers of the local to go ahead and sign the affidavits. The affidavits were filed in the latter part of January and NLRB then okayed the union shop elections.

Segregation Report

At a meeting of the Catholic Interracial Council last week, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"The Catholic Interracial Council, recognizing the importance of the work of the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital and the essential accuracy of the description of segregation set forth in the report prepared by the research staff of the committee, urge that the report be made the basis and point of departure for renewed efforts to do away with the evils which it so effectively describes."

Franco As An Ally

Homer Bigart's February 27 article on Spain gives all the reasons why we should not support and aid Franco, then says we should support him.

Bigart favors aid to Spain because of the military aid its army could give us and the secure base for military operations it would provide in case Russia overran the rest of Europe. Against aid to Spain are these reasons taken from his own article. Spain now has an army of 350,000 and can call up about a million. Their equipment is an obsolete jumble of types from five countries, and they have only enough for a half million men.

As a military base he says the Pyrenees would make Spain secure. Perhaps he never heard of amphibious or aviation war; and also forgets what happened in the mountainous Balkans when the Germans attacked there. He admits that 10,000 miles of new roads would have to be built and the railway system completely overhauled before a decent defense of the Pyrenees could be made.

Franco is committed to an anti-Russian policy and his Catholic dominated government would never allow him to make any break with the Pope. In case of a war, he has no choice but to fight on our side or stay neutral. Any aid would be better spent on England and France who could then hold Russia back and provide us with good land, sea and air bases already built and available.

"Abuse Of The Schools"

The editorial of March 1, "Abuse of the Schools," ought to be read, inwardly digested, and memorized by every resident of Arlington County.

Secretarianism can never be kept out of any religious course taught in any public school. The teacher who is voicing religion will always betray his particular version of the subject, no matter how hard he may try not to do so. Any Protestant, except a Unitarian, who did not teach the supremacy of Jesus Christ as the indispensible center of faith would be false to his own faith.

To advocate that sectarianism must be taught in the public schools in order to make the younger generation behave, is an almost incredible confession of weakness on the part of the clergyman whose business is the inculcation of the principles of good conduct; on the part of fathers and mothers whose primary responsibility is the character of their children, and most of all on the part of the religious teachers who volunteer to supply what ministers and parents omit. One would suppose that such admission of failure would be too shameful to utter.

Opposition to the use of tax-supported schools for such purpose is "in no sense antireligious." It is a "matter of principle, as stated in the Constitution of the United States."

EDMUND STEVENS.
Arlington.

Your editorial writer has once more abused historical and legal fact in his statement: "The issue is one of principle as stated in the Constitution. To say that the framers of that document were predominantly Protestant is not to say that they condoned intermingling of religion and public education."

The historical truth is that the framers not only condoned this so-called "intermingling" but actually took it for granted. Certainly in writing the Constitution and the first amendment they did not undertake to interfere with the activities of the States in either education or religion. Religion was taught in tax-supported schools and disabilities against Catholics were in some States retained until well into the last century.

The legal truth is that it is only by a dubious interpretation— unsupported by precedent —that the first amendment has been made to apply to the question of released-time. The eminent constitutional scholar, Prof. Edward S. Corwin, has exposed the legal fallacies on on which this application rests. It is only by reading personal predilections of a secularist character into the "principle as stated in the Constitution" that the plain language of that document can be construed in the manner of your editorial.

The wisdom of released-time as a matter of policy may be a subject for debate, but the repetition of historical and legal errors at this stage of the controversy over the subject is hardly excusable.

C. J. NUESSE.
Arlington.

I admired your forthright discussion of the Arlington public school religious instruction plan.

The opinion of the Arlington County solicitor, Frank L. Ball, jr., shockingly ignored the facts of the Arlington plan. He purported to rely on the opinion of Virginia State Attorney General Lindsay Almond. But Almond's advisory opinion clearly referred only to "nonsectarian religious instruction."

The Arlington plan clearly involves sectarian instruction, and many of its earnest supporters candidly admit this. It is extremely appropriate, therefore, to point out as your editorial did that the Arlington officials were attempting "to bootleg sectarianism" into the public school system in defiance of the Supreme Court. GAIL HOLT.
Arlington.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Freeze On Initiative

IN THE long days and nights of waiting and boredom, in the tense intervals between combat, a lot of young men in the last war thought about what they wanted to do when they got back home. Many dreamed about starting a little business that might become a good-sized business. They were tired of being ordered around, they wanted to be their own boss.

One who came back with that dream was Lewis C. Burwell, jr., of Charlotte, N. C. He had a very definite idea of the business he wanted to start.

Having been a combat pilot for most of the war—10 combat citations and three Distinguished Flying Crosses—he wanted to stay in aviation. His idea was for an airline that would take tourists on all-expense excursion trips.

Burwell formed Resort Airlines. Stock was sold, most of it to veterans, some of it to wealthy men who thought well of the proposal. Working intensively, the young promoter got operating safety certificates from the United States, Canada, Mexico and most of the Caribbean and Central American countries.

It was soon apparent the idea would take hold with the public. In the summer, Resort Airlines carried parties to the American West and the Canadian Northwest. In the winter, the tours were to the Caribbean and Central America.

MOST OF Burwell's customers were people who had never flown before or who had never taken a long trip. They liked having everything done for them —hotel reservations, air schedules, the whole thing wrapped up in one package at reasonable cost.

Before long, Resort Airlines had three DC-4s and seven DC-3s. It was a going concern. The dream seemed to have come true.

Then Burwell began to have trouble with the Civil Aeronautics Board. The temporary operating authority issued by the CAB was modified. A long series of negotiations with the tourist industry, studies, hearings, briefs and, finally, a report by the trial examiner cost the company approximately $150,000.

After eight months, a trial examiner recommended a certificate of public convenience and necessity for Resort. Exceptions were filed, including the protests of the big scheduled airlines. Their spokesmen argued that Resort was taking business they would otherwise have.

Burwell's reply is that most of his passengers are new to travel and they would not be likely to make their own reservations and take themselves from place to place. Having once made an all-expense, conducted tour, however, they are far more liable to go again on their own.

In spite of the constant struggle with Government red tape, Burwell could point to the fact his line had flown 25 million passenger miles without an accident of any sort. He could also point out that Resort had voluntarily adopted the same safety standards as the big lines, and in some instances the requirements were higher.

IF EVER there was an example of small business, of enterprise, of ingenuity, of hard work, this seems to me to be it. Yet now Resort, along with all other unscheduled lines—most of them operated by veterans—are shut down by a CAB order.

The other day the CAB awarded the scheduled lines an additional eight million dollars in subsidy. The unscheduled lines get no subsidy and have never asked for one.

The big lines claim, of course, that the little fellows want to skim off the cream and take no responsibility for regularly operated routes. It is a highly significant fact that not one new domestic trunk line carrier has been licensed since Congress passed the Air Regulation Act in 1938.

The drive originating with the big lines is to cut down competition. The small lines are trying to present their case to the Government and the public, but they are handicapped by lack of funds.

Resort, unlike most unscheduled lines which have no foreign ports of call, has one final appeal. That is to the White House.

This Administration professes to be for small business and for the veteran, although many of its acts have a contrary look. President Truman has a chance to prove all the professions of good intent toward the struggling small businessman that he has made from time to time. It is too early to freeze the pattern of air transportation.

Catholics And Freedom

Letters questioning the Roman Catholic idea of freedom frequently appear in this column, indicating a sad lack of knowledge of the facts. For the benefit of all those readers who believe that the Catholic idea of freedom is not in accord with our American concept of freedom as contained in the Constitution of the United States and the Declaration of Independence, a reading of the following book is recommended: You Can Change the World by Father James Keller, the young Maryknoll priest who is responsible for the Christopher movement, now gaining such popularity.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Key To The Riddle?

IN CONNECTION with the Molotov-Vishinsky affair many have recalled the famous saying of Mr. Churchill's that the action of Russia "is a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma." The rest of what Mr. Churchill said on that occasion is worth recalling, too. He was speaking on October 1, 1939, four days after Warsaw had surrendered and nine days after the Red army, by agreement with Hitler, had occupied eastern Poland.

LIPPMANN

The event, said Mr. Churchill, is "the assertion of the power of Russia. Russia has pursued a cold policy of self-interest. We could have wished that the Russian armies should be standing on their present line as the friends and allies of Poland instead of as invaders. But that the Russian armies should stand on this line was clearly necessary for the safety of Russia against the Nazi menace. At any rate, the line is there, and an Eastern Front has been created which Nazi Germany does not dare assail. When Herr von Ribbentrop was summoned to Moscow last week, it was to learn the fact, and to accept the fact, that the Nazi designs upon the Baltic states and upon the Ukraine must come to a dead stop."

MR. CHURCHILL, who was speaking 20 months before the Nazi invasion of Russia, then went on to say, "I cannot forecast to you the action of Russia. It is a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma; but perhaps there is a key. That key is Russian national interest. It cannot be in accordance with the interest or the safety of Russia that Germany should plant itself upon the shores of the Black Sea, or that it should overrun the Balkan states and subjugate the Slavonic peoples of southeastern Europe. That would be contrary to the historic life-interests of Russia . . . Thus, my friends, at some risk of being proved wrong by events, I will proclaim tonight my conviction . . . that Hitler, and all Hitler stands for, have been and are being warned off the east and the southeast of Europe."

Mr. Churchill was not proved wrong by events. He had in fact found the key to the riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma. He found that key not in the writings of Marx and Lenin and not in the turgid literature of the Communist International but in the "historic life interests of Russia."

NOW IT may be, of course, that the key to Soviet policy is no longer the historic life-interests of Russia, and that Stalin, at the age of 70, is no longer pursuing a cold policy of Russian self-interest. But there is as yet nothing to suggest that the old leopard has changed his spots, and that Soviet policy is not now dictated, as it has been ever since Stalin overthrew Trotsky, by the Russian national interest.

Now the essence of Stalinism has been the conviction that the future of communism in the world depends on the future of Russia in the world, that communism abroad must serve the Russian interest, and that when there is a conflict between communism and the Russian interest, as for example in Yugoslavia and in China, the Russian interest is paramount.

USING this key, which has now been tested by the experience of 10 years, we may note that Mr. Vishinsky was in Czechoslovakia in contact with the Cominform leaders before he became Foreign Minister. We may note also that his visit to Czechoslovakia coincided with the final negotiations of the Atlantic Pact, and particularly the adherence of Norway, and that it was followed by the defiant declarations of nonresistance and collaboration by Thorez, Togliatti, and of Communist leaders in all the Atlantic nations, and also in Germany.

It is a reasonable assumption that Vishinsky is to administer the Russian reaction to the Atlantic Pact. The character of that reaction is indicated by the sequence of events—namely that nothing much happened until after Norway came into it. All through the summer and autumn when the pact was confined to western Europe, and the discussion was about building up defenses on the Rhine, the Russians did little more than express their dislike of it. But when Norway came in, the Russian national interest was involved. For while Russia cannot be attacked by land armies from France and Belgium, it can be attacked by bombers from southern Norway.

ONLY PART of the Russian reaction to this formidable development has thus far been disclosed. There will be some, we must suppose, in Scandinavia. But the Thorez-Togliatti declarations are a more direct move against the pact.

To appreciate the force of this action, and to understand why Thorez and Togliatti dared to say what they did, we have to realize how great is the European horror of invasion and occupation. It is so great that while the western Europeans would fight on their frontiers to prevent invasion, the great mass of the people—those who could not escape and become refugees—do not expect to resist another occupation.

AS RECENTLY as last November 17, General de Gaulle, who is an authority on French resistance, said in a press interview that "if one day the Reich, be it sovietized or something else, were to join the Russian power, do not imagine that one will find again a man to perform the action of the eighteenth of June." June 18, 1940, was the day on which General de Gaulle proclaimed that France had lost a battle but not the war.

There are limits to the will to resist an occupation. Mr. Churchill, to quote him again, has recently published a dispatch he sent to Lord Lothian in Washington on June 9, 1940, just after Dunkirk: "If Great Britain broke under invasion, a pro-German government might obtain far easier terms from Germany by surrendering the fleet, thus making Germany and Japan masters of the New World. This dastard deed would not be done by His Majesty's present advisers, but if some Quisling government were set up it is exactly what they would do, and perhaps the only thing they could do."

THIS SAME warning was repeated, in other terms, only a few weeks ago by the Prime Minister of France. He reminded us that unless France can be defended against invasion, no eventual victory by strategic bombing will save France from utter destruction. What the French say is what all the continental peoples think.

This is the situation which Thorez and Togliatti, actuated no doubt by Vishinsky, are exploiting. It will not be resolved by calling them traitors though, of course, they are proclaiming treason. It can be resolved only by an American policy which would make the frontiers of western Europe impregnable—or, if that is not feasible, by an American policy which combines the military force to deter an invasion with a diplomatic policy designed to relax the tension and reduce the fear of war.

Congressman Sol Bloom Dies; Planned Birthday Celebration

second member of Congress to die within two days. Senator J. Melville Broughton (D., N. C.) succumbed Sunday after a heart seizure.

A genial personality and a flair for showmanship brought Bloom early success in business and later made him nationally known as a legislator.

When the country was in the depths of its worst depression in 1932, Representative Bloom took over the direction of the George Washington Bicentennial Celebration. With his ability as a showman he soon was crowding depression news off many front pages.

Although boasting that he had little schooling, he delved into Washingtonia. His efforts to "debunk" what he described as myths about the father of his country soon had him in hot water with students of traditional history.

The cherry tree story, announced Representative Bloom, was a myth, an invention of a Parson Weems who, the Congressman added, "should have been ashamed."

And that one about Washington tossing a silver dollar across the Rappahannock River in Virginia. Well, Representative Bloom had his doubts about that. He dug up some old Colonial maps which he said showed the river so wide in those days that Washington would have had to toss the dollar a distance four times greater than Babe Ruth's longest home run. And anyway, he added, they didn't have silver dollars in those days."

To settle the argument, Representative Bloom induced Walter Johnson, the famous "Big Train" of the Washington baseball team, to try his hand at tossing a silver dollar across the river at the exact spot where Washington was supposed to have done the trick. Johnson obliged and made the toss successfully and with ease. Some people then began to wonder whether Bloom hadn't stirred up all the fuss just to get publicity for the bicentennial.

Representative Bloom was born in Pekin, Ill., on March 9, 1870, but it was in San Francisco, where he was taken at an early age, that he began his astonishing career. He was apprenticed to a brushmaker at 8 and by the time he was 19 had made enough money to retire.

He moved to New York in 1903 and became a successful operator in real estate. He joined the Tammany Hall Democratic organization and in 1923 was elected to Congress. When Representative Sam McReynolds of Tennessee died in July, 1939, Representative Bloom succeeded him as chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

While a music publisher in Chicago in 1897, Representative Bloom met Evelyn Hechheimer of San Francisco, a music composer, and married her after a whirlwind courtship. Mrs. Bloom died in 1941. He was devoted to their daughter, Vera.

Under Representative Bloom, who had served continuously in the House since 1923, the House Foreign Affairs Committee assumed an important role in matters of state.

He was a member of the inner circle of House leaders to which President Roosevelt confided military strategy of the highest secrecy.

Representative Bloom was the author of the bill which revised the Neutrality Act soon after the outbreak of World War II in Europe. He piloted the Land-lease bill through the House in 1941, and in 1943 pushed through the Fulbright resolution which called for this country's participation in the United Nations.

REP. JOHN P. KEE
. . . will get chairmanship

Representative John Kee (D., W. Va.), ranking majority member, is in line to succeed Representative Bloom as chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Advised of Representative Bloom's death, his long time associate, House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) said:

"I think Sol Bloom was one of the finest men I ever knew and one of the best friends I ever had. Everybody who loves a great soul will grieve at Sol Bloom's passing. He performed a great service to his State, his country and his generation."

Speaker Rayburn said the House will take up no regular business today but will instead devote the session to eulogies of Representative Bloom. Capitol flags will fly at half staff.

Others who joined in tribute to Representative Bloom included Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; Representative Joseph W. Martin (R., Mass.), House Republican leader; Representative Vinson (D., Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, and two House colleagues from New York, Representative Celler (D.), and Representative Wadsworth (R.).

Southern Europe Suffering Worst Drought in Years

Paris, March 7 (AP).—A long drought is turning out the lights all over southern Europe. Water taps are running dry and crops are drying up.

For five months virtually no rain or snow has fallen in France. Worse conditions are reported from Portugal, Spain and, until recently, Italy.

Reservoirs have not been at such low levels in a long time. Electric plants are being told to cut down. Portugal is rationing power. Italy goes without lights 11 hours a day two to three days a week. France does the same.

Liquid Oxygen Device Cuts Size, Weight of Installation

A new liquid oxygen converter for use in high-altitude flight was described here yesterday by Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards.

The converter, with its fuel, weighs about one-fourth the present oxygen supply facilities, and takes up about 1/25 the plane space now required for aircraft oxygen gas tanks.

Oxygen is needed for aircraft crews and passengers at flights above 10,000 feet because of the rarified atmosphere.

The liquid oxygen converter was developed by the National Bureau of Standards in cooperation with the Navy Department's Bureau of Aeronautics, Dr. Condon said.

"In addition to its use in aviation," Dr. Condon said, "liquid oxygen has many other applications in modern science and technology. These include the welding and cutting of metals, manufacturing and refining processes, the operation of certain types of engines and rockets, and uses in medicine.

"For all these uses," he said, "both weight and bulk of containers can be reduced enormously if the oxygen is stored in liquid form."

Bureau scientists said the converter, successfully flight-tested at altitudes up to 40,000 feet, is a flask-like apparatus encircled by two coils.

In operation, it was said, it could supply enough oxygen for 10 men for 10 hours on high altitude flight, yet it takes up but 3 cubic feet of plane space. By contrast, present operations with gaseous oxygen require 22 aviation-size oxygen tanks for a total of 74 cubic feet of plane space.

Other advantages of the converter, the scientists said, include its simplicity of design, economy in use of oxygen, and sturdiness. Although the advantages of supplying oxygen in liquid form long have been known, technical difficulties previously had prevented practical application.

Second Victim of Boat Blast Dies in Florida

Fort Myers, Fla., March 7 (AP).—Mrs. Edmund F. Ball, wife of the president of Ball Brothers, Muncie, Ind., died today. She was the second victim of a fishing boat explosion at Fort Myers Beach Saturday. Mrs. Ray Applegate, also of Muncie, died shortly after the boat blast.

Their husbands were injured, but the hospital said today their conditions had improved. Elmo Santini, owner of the vessel, was released from the hospital today.

30-Million School Bond Issue Favored

Annapolis, Md., March 7 (AP).—More than two thirds of the members of the Legislature recommended tonight a 30 million dollar State bond issue to help Baltimore City and counties of the State to build new school buildings.

Nineteen senators and 20 House delegations submitted identical bills which would, besides providing for the 30 million dollars, increase the so-called incentive fund for school buildings by four times the present limit.

Senators Turnbull (D., Baltimore) and Kimble (R., Allegany) also had a bill which would require that the money raised from Maryland's two per cent automobile titling tax go toward paying for part of the school building program. The House did not get such a measure.

Calls For State Levy

The 30 million dollar loan bill calls for a State levy of 1.75 cents on each $100 property valuation in 1950 and 1951. The State real estate tax in 1952 would go to 9 cents on the $100 and remain so until the bonds are paid off.

Baltimore and the counties would have to meet certain requirements before they got any of the State's money to spend on school buildings.

As it is now, the State allows Baltimore and the counties to put on taxes up to 5 cents on the $100 to raise the school building money which the State matches.

The new bills would increase that tax figure to a maximum of 20 cents on each $100 valuation and work out a new formula for passing it out. The amounts would be worked out by multiplying by $2 the number of cents levied by Baltimore or a county, and then multiplying by the number of students. The money raised by Baltimore or a county would be subtracted from this total figure and then the State would pay the rest.

The law now says the most the State will guarantee is $10 multiplied by the number of pupils. The new bill would quadruple that contribution to $40.

Used For School Program

The Senate's title bill merely says that all the money coming in from the levy is to be used to meet the school program, instead of being spent for road purposes.

The senators sponsoring the two main school bills were Turnbull, Guy Johnson (D., Worcester), Phoebus (R., Somerset), Davis (R., Montgomery), Stromberg (D., Howard), Bailey (R., St. Mary's), Shallcross (D., Cecil), Kimble, Carter (D., Balto. 3d); Fraley (R., Garrett), Hoff (R., Carroll), Dudlin (D., Anne Arundel), Goldstein (D., Calvert), O'Neill (R., Harford), Monroe (R., Charles), McAllister (R., Dorchester), White (D., Wicomico), Thomas (D., Queen Anne's), and McLaughlin (R., Washington).

The county delegations on the House bills were Allegany, Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Calvert, Caroline, Carroll, Cecil, Charles, Dorchester Garrett Harford, Kent, Montgomery, Prince Georges, Queen Anne's, St. Mary's, Somerset, Talbot, Wicomico and Worcester.

For Incorporation

Morningside Measure Is Revised

By Phillip J. Austensen
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md. March 7.—Revision of the bill providing for incorporation of Morningside in Prince Georges County has been prepared and is expected to be introduced in the Maryland General Assembly here Tuesday.

A new bill will be substituted for that already introduced which was the subject of a hearing last Tuesday night by the Prince Georges delegation.

Boundary lines for the incorporated community are being set by a surveyor and will be completed in time for submission of the bill Tuesday, Edwin A. Glenn, one of those representing the committee seeking incorporation, said. Acreage outside the built-up areas will be left out of the incorporation. A 20 per cent recall provision also has been deleted. The new bill also provides borrowing power for the town council.

Compromise Indicated

Meanwhile, compromise in the controversial proposal to prohibit persons under 21 from entering beverages in Prince Georges County after 9 p. m. was indicated.

Prince Georges delegation members indicated they would support a new proposal by the County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations which provides that no person less than 18 years of age will be permitted to enter establishments selling liquor unless accompanied by their parents.

The bill also is expected to be ready for introduction today.

Fire Tax Proposed

A bill providing a 10-cent fire tax rate for property adjacent to the city limits of Takoma Park was presented today to the delegations from Montgomery and Prince Georges counties.

The proposed legislation provides a referendum by which the property owners in the areas affected would vote on whether or not they want to pay the tax for the fire service, at the next general election in 1950.

The areas are now served by the Takoma Park Fire Department, financed by the city and partially manned by volunteers.

Time Mark Claimed In Tampa Flight

Canary Authority, in Prison 40 Years, Seldom Sees a Bird

San Francisco, March 7 (U.P.).—Except for four hours each week, one of the world's foremost authorities on canaries is kept by prison walls from seeing even a bird.

Then, during brief twice-weekly airings allowed him by the terms of his solitary confinement, Robert Stroud gets only a glimpse of the sea gulls that wheel over the parapets of Alcatraz Island.

Twice a murderer, Stroud has spent 40 of his 59 years in prison—33 of those in solitary. Since he was trapsferred to the prison rock in the middle of San Francisco Bay five years ago, he has been allowed no canaries in his 6-foot wide, 12-foot long cell.

In Leavenworth, he had 300 of them and became the author of magazine articles and a 500-page volume on birds and their diseases.

It was hailed as "a pioneer work" and a milestone in bird therapy.

"He became the greatest authority on canary ailments," said Mrs. Minnie T. King, North Hollywood, vice president of the National Association of Canary Breeders.

She wrote Stroud recently asking his advice on how to cure a sick canary. Her letter was returned unopened. She promptly mailed the dead bird to prison officials to show her displeasure with prison rules.

"He is a menace to society, a dangerous killer and must be kept locked under maximum security precautions," said United States Assistant Attorney Joseph Karesh, who has fought Stroud's numerous appeals.

Stroud killed a bartender in Alaska over a dance hall queen and went to Leavenworth for 12 years. In 1916 he stabbed a guard to death with an ice pick and was sentenced to hang.

President Woodrow Wilson commuted his sentence to life imprisonment—in solitary—in 1918.

Then Stroud began to raise and market canaries from his cell, building up a flock of 300 that kept Leavenworth's corridors filled with song. He was forbidden medical instruments or any knife by prison regulations. But he dissected fatalities from his flock with his fingernails to study their organs.

In 1939 he published "Stroud's Digest of Bird Diseases," a volume that is highly valued by such institutions as the California Academy of Sciences.

When he was transferred to the Alcatraz cell, which looks out on a gloomy corridor and which he once described in a petition as "a private purgatory where a few carefully chosen victims can slowly be driven mad," all that changed.

Under strict prison rules, he is allowed no pets in his cell. He is denied access to newspapers, radio, uncensored magazines and forbidden to correspond with anyone except relatives or authorized persons.

A movement by bird lovers to get him a parole collapsed in 1930 when his mother, Mrs. Eleanor Stroud, announced "I will not participate in any parole campaign for Bob."

600 Performers In Unique Show

By Richard L. Coe

WHAT A SHOW THAT was the stars of the show world put on Sunday night at New York's handsome Ziegfeld Theater!

Some six hundred performers you'd never again find on a single program grossed over $32,000 for the running expenses of their own organization—the American National Theater and Academy.

There were marvels aplenty in this "ANTA Album," but I suppose the real marvel was in the production skill that ran off 23 turns as though they formed a revue which had rehearsed for weeks. Producer John Houseman and his supervisor, Ben Krantz, engineered some production numbers that brought bursts of cheers from a packed house largely peopled with showfolk who know a solid job when they see it.

As a musical comedy fan, I got a great bang out of the opening. While Max Meth's zingy pit orchestra played a parade of show tunes, the curtains opened on a drop of a theater front advertising last year's first "ANTA Album." Gradually, on a scrim in front of this, fresh lighting revealed a similar setup for this evening's parade. Shortly Mary Jane Walsh glided through the curtain to sing, "There's No Business Like Show Business."

And as she finished the verse, one chorus after another of six current musicals danced on to do production highspots of their own shows. All got rounds of applause, but the smallest band of the lot stopped the show—that mad group from "Lend an Ear," who did their frenzied memoire of the '20s, "Doin' the Old Yahoo Step." I'll tell you more someday about "Lend an Ear," but this number is the rage of Gotham and on its abandoned entrance the 100 bux a seat set went wild.

Gilbert Miller, Actor

So the first number ended with some 200 chorus folk banking the stage shouting Irving Berlin's lively, sentimental tribute to "Show Business." After this you got Sledge and Davis of "Kiss Me, Kate" buck-and-winging to "I'm Just Wild About Harry"; Norma Terris back on the stage where she created the lead in "Show Boat" singing, "Only Make Believe"; William Lynn, Sam Levene and Shirley Booth doing a scene from "Three Men on a Horse" that had made them famous; Carol Bruce reviving "Louisiana Purchase"; James Barton doing his "Mad Dog" turn, a reach back to his vaudeville past; Ray Bolger making the pros out front and backstage marvel at his facile "Old Soft Shoe."

Three more plays were in the first act, including two "Cyranos." Jose Ferrer did the first act dueling scene, to be succeeded by Walter Hampden's celebrated death scene. Robert Morley, John Buckmaster and Gilbert Miller acted final moments from "Oscar Wilde," the latter getting laughs that were hardly in the script, for everyone knew Producer Miller hadn't acted in 30 years.

Some performers had run overtime, so by the first act closing Tallulah Bankhead had a coughing audience to face for the last scene of "The Little Foxes," with Carl Benton Reid and Howard Smith. In the ten years since Tallu had done this, several stars have had a crack at Regina Giddons, but Tallu reminded you that hers is tops of them, despite a disconcerting hive of coughers in the house.

After intermission brought a stagefull to recapture the lovely "Easter Parade" number of "As Thousands Cheer," followed by the evening's second ovation, to the blonde, lovely Frances Starr's recreation of her first hise, "The Easiest Way." This was the evening's emotional highlight, an example of the rich-blooded dramatic style that was the hallmark of David Belasco at his peak. Louis Calhern, master of ceremonies, broke the evening's rule to bring back Miss Starr for a second bow; at that the house cheered to the reaches of Joseph Urban's handsome rafters.

Lost From "Mister Roberts"

Act II brought another highlight, the "lost" scene from "Mister Roberts," a sequence that had to be dropped from the Thomas Heggen-Joshua Logan play during the tryout simply because something had to be cut for time. Henry Fonda and David Wayne played this amusing dialogue of two Navy cabin-mates, whose boredom set them to a nonspeaking relationship but who got to talking again with the first whiff of breeze that relieved the heat and monotony. It's a playlet in itself, and these two could mint a fortune doing the sketch any time they please.

The ballet and music worlds were part of the evening, too. Harold Lang, John Kriza and Jerome Robbins did the latter's "Fancy Free" and Gene Buck convoyed a rare duo from ASCAP. Genial Harmon Hupfield delighted with a medley of his tunes that included his Havana tuba player and "As Time Goes By." J Rosamond Johnson's highlight was that number he wrote for Marie Cahill, "Under the Bamboo Tree," and W. C. Handy was a wow with his magnificent offspring, "St. Louis Blues."

Here is the end of the column and I've not told you that while Mae West's broken ankle kept her at Doctors Hospital and Bobby Clark's physician had ordered him to bed, there were such other folk as the Hartmans, Edward Matthews, Virgil Thomson, Gracie Fields and an audience of celebrities that obviously hugely enjoyed a gargantuan evening.

And a Washingtonian watching it couldn't help thinking that even if you could corral those 600 performers for the Nation's Capital, you couldn't locate a stage to handle them as they should be and were handled at the elegant edifice that bears the Ziegfeld name.

D. C. Assessor Claims 99.96 Pct. Accuracy Record

Even the District tax assessor can make a mistake.

James L. Martin, assistant assessor, yesterday freely admitted this while pointing to the fact that 99.96 per cent of the time the District tax assessor doesn't.

That is the office's record for accuracy within the past five years, he said.

Martin said that while three apparent errors had been called to his attention, none of the complaining taxpayers had called at the assessor's office to have their errors corrected. "We are always willing and glad to correct errors when we make them," said Martin.

Greenbelt Council Indorses Mann

The Greenbelt, Md., Town Council last night urged appointment of Col. LeRoy S. Mann to command the District National Guard.

The council gave unanimous indorsement to Colonel Mann, who heads the 260th Antiaircraft Artillery Group of the District Guard, for his leadership in training the Greenbelt Guard unit. Colonel Mann lives at 5447 30th pl. nw.

Councilman Frank J. Lastner, author of the resolution, said the indorsement was "a precedent so far as towns are concerned."

The council cited Colonel Mann for his "personal efforts" in aiding the Greenbelt Guard unit during its formation and at camp last summer. It noted that the guard organization is presently "flourishing."

Copies of the resolueion urging Col. Mann as commanding general will be sent to all members of Congress from Maryland and to the Prince Georges County delegation to the Maryland State Legislature.

In other business, the council instructed Town Manager Charles T. McDonald to draw up an ordinance establishing a taxi franchise for the town and voted to ask the County's Red Cross chapter to appoint a Greenbelt resident to captain the forthcoming Red Cross drive there.

Caught on Floes

100 Escape Great Lakes Ice Breakup

Menominee, Mich., March 7 (AP).—Two big days of the upper Great Lakes shed their winter sheaths today, and gave nearly a hundred fishermen trapped on ice floes the ride of their lives.

Between 50 and 60 men were marooned off Menominee when a 44-mile offshore wind split Green Bay's ice off the mainland for several miles north.

As Coast Guard planes and boats and hundreds of volunteers rallied to help in rescue attempts, the vast ice cake, 20 miles long and 8 wide, was driven toward Deaths Door—gateway to Lake Michigan off the Door Peninsula

As alarm mounted, the floe ground to a temporary halt in a bank of crushed ice and all hands dashed ashore safely. They saved several vehicles, but abandoned a truck and lost a car and 75 expensive nets.

Thirty-five men were rescued in a series of smaller operations meanwhile on the other side of Michigan's upper peninsula, where the southwest wind pounded at Keeweenaw Bay.

Three of these were lifted from floes as they reached the bay's outlet into Lake Superior. Coast Guardsmen and State officers took about 15 men off a series of small floes in the bay and the rest saved themselves when their large floe washed ashore near Arnheim.

A $9,115,457 Arlington County budget for 1949-50, calling for an 89-cent increase in the real estate tax rate, was handed to the County Board last night.

The board will hold a public hearing March 24 at 8 p. m. in circuit courtroom on the budget, which goes into effect July 1, 1949.

To meet the record budget he submitted, County Manager A. T. Lundberg told the board it would have to raise the current $3.25 tax rate to $4.14 per $100 assessed valuation.

The 89-cent increase would be split into 39 cents for general county purposes, and the equivalent of 50 cents for school needs.

The Arlington School Board asked a $3,067,056 slice of the budget, or $849,056 more than school officials estimate they will spend this year. The County Board must pass on this request.

The county asked the board for $6,048,401, which tops estimated spending for the current budget by $924,224.

Last night, the County Board simply received the budget and took no action on it. Only a handful of citizens attended the meeting in circuit courtroom.

However, member Daniel A. Dugan urged that schools be given a fixed proportion of the tax levy for the new budget, instead of the lump sum they received last year.

Board member Freeland Chew, described the School Board's $3,067,056 request as "out of this world—it's ridiculous."

Chairman Basil M. DeLashmutt declared that as of June 30, 1948, the schools had an "unemcumbered surplus" of $424,000 when their 1948-49 budget listed the surplus as zero. He noted that this year the School Board again had listed no surplus.

DeLashmutt said the School Board "should explain what happened to this surplus."

In making up his county budget, Lundberg showed the board what it could get for a portion of the proposed 39-cent tax increase.

He submitted three alternative budgets, calling for a 2-cent, 17-cent, and 20-cent tax increase, and listed the playgrounds, highway improvements, sewer extensions, and land acquisition for which each would pay.

To help meet increased money needs, the county hopes it can count on an estimated $500,000 more annually from new business and auto license taxes.

It expects $215,358 more on its real estate tax at the $3.25 rate, due to newly assessed valuations.

And the possible 89-cent increase would bring in $1,089,380 in revenue.

The new budget jumps the police department appropriation from $299,045 to $338,422 to cover salary increases, addition of seven new men to the force, and new equipment.

The Fire Department increase of from $256,595 to $290,241 provides for higher pay, and new equipment, including two new pumpers.

Other major increases are: Sanitation, from $487,318 to $536,783; highways, from $864,770 to $979,545; planning division (land acquisition) $79,318 to $208,811; water department, $1,004,050 to $1,112,200.

Soil Experts Press Drive For Program

Southern Maryland agricultural leaders urged acceleration of the soil conservation program last night at a dinner meeting at the Springlake Hotel in Waldorf, Md.

Under the leadership of Dr. T. B. Symons, chairman of the State Soil Conservation Committee, 45 persons discussed the possibility of holding a "face-lifting" demonstration—during which five years of conservation work are done in one day—on a southern Maryland farm.

Attending the meeting were 25 supervisors of five conservation districts in Prince Georges, Anne Arundel, Charles, St. Marys and Calvert Counties, members of the State Conservation Committee, county agricultural agents and technicians of the United States Soil Conservation Service.

A committee of the five chairmen of the represented districts was appointed to study the advisability of holding such a demonstration, similar to the one held on the 175-acre Thrasher farm in Frederick County, Md., last year.

If the committee should decide affirmatively, they will select a time and site within 10 days.

The "face lifting" would show how an average tobacco farm could be converted to progressive soil conservation practices with hundreds of persons working in one day.

Bond Ceiling Hike Cleared

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, March 7.—The Maryland House of Delegates tonight passed a bill to permit charter counties to issue bonds to the limit of 1 per 0cent of their assessable basis instead of the present 7 per cent limit.

Montgomery is the only county in the State with a chater form of government. The bill was introduced by the Montgomery delegation. It now goes to the Maryland senate.

Increase in the bond limitation will permit Montgomery County to issue bonds for additional school construction. When the charter government became effective in January, the county already was bonded in excess of the 7 per cent limitation.

The house also passed a bill providing that candidates for office in the town of Washington Grove must be residents.

Prince Georges County bills passed tonight included increases in the tax rate limit for Fairmount Heights from 25 to 50 cents; a new charter for Cheverly; authorization for storm drainage projects in Cheverly; increase in the College Park tax rate limit from 25 to 50 cents, and a bill reimbursing the county sheriff for use of his auto in line of business.

The Montgomery County delegation split in the vote on a bill which would classify optometry as a learned profession and give the State Board of Optometry power to make and enforce rules.

Delegates R. Duncan Clark and Julian P. King voted in favor of the bill while Delegates Andera R. Lofstrand, DeWitt S. Hyde, John R. Reeves and Leona M. Rush voted in the negative. The entire Prince Georgs County delegation votd in favor of the bill.

A heated floor battle, in which charges of lobbying by both sides were leveled and enlivened by an impassioned plea by blind Delegate Charles M. See (R., Allegheny) that the eyesight of the children of Maryland be preserved through passage of the bill, preceded the roll call vote with 64 voting for and 38 opposed.

Takoma Park Mayor Pleads For Zoning Enforcement

Failure of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission to enforce zoning regulations in Takoma Park, Md., has left the town in an "intolerable" position, Mayor John C. Post charged last night.

In a letter to legislators from Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, the mayor appealed for a "permanent and proper" solution to zoning problems which, he said, leave the town virtually without protection in zoning matters.

The letter was connected with the controversy between the planning commission and the Montgomery County Council over a proposal to transfer zoning authority from the commission to the council. Under existing legislation, the commission functions in both Montgomery and Prince Georges.

Since Takoma Park is situated in both counties, Post said, it would be "logical for our purposes to have the power vested in a bi-county agency." However, he said, Takoma Park as well as other communities in the commission's jurisdiction are suffering from a "cancerous condition" resulting from its failure to enforce the regulations.

The best solution to the town's zoning problems, Post said, would be legislation giving it authority to enact and enforce its own regulations. The plan, however, would be practical only if the community were to receive a "proportionate" share of funds now allotted to the planning commission for zoning control.

An alternative, he said, would be continuance of zoning control by the planning commission, provided the regulations were rigidly enforced.

Van Mook to Lecture

New York, March 7 (AP).—Dr. Hubertus J. Van Mooke, former lieutenant governor general of Indonesia, arrived by plane today for a month's lecture tour. His lectures, he said, would deal with the Indonesian problem.

Injury to Scott Cancels Meeting

The Republican National Committee has canceled a Thursday meeting of its executive committee because of an injury to National Chairman Hugh D. Scott, jr. The session was called to act on Senate and House campaign finances.

William Murphy, committee publicity director, said Scott had wrenched his back when he slipped while taking a shower. He will be confined to bed in the Bethesda (Md.) Naval Hospital for a week or 10 days, Murphy said.

Murphy added that the executive group may meet here early in April.

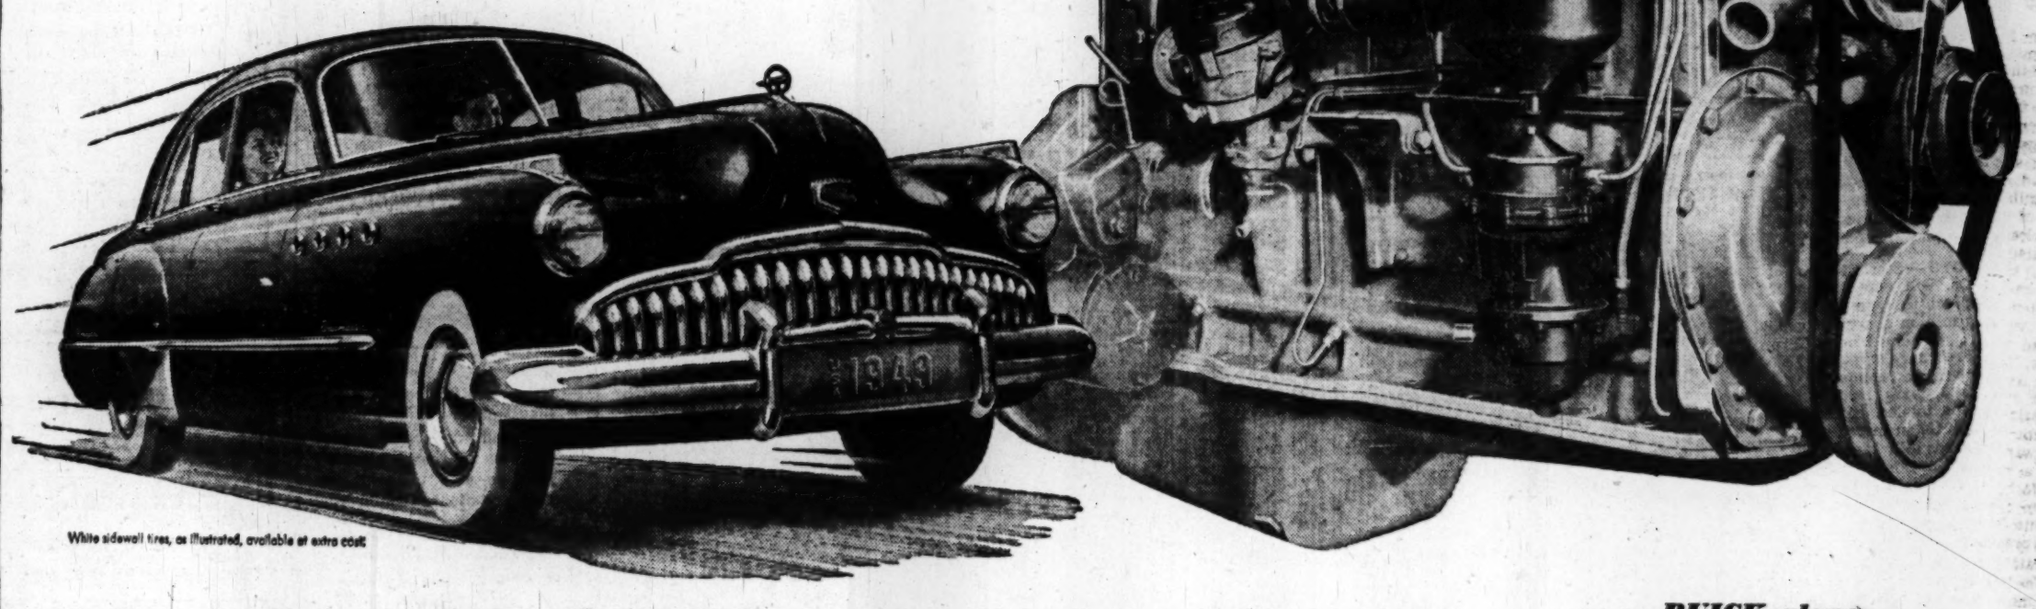
Valve-in-Head— and Fireball too!
FOUR KEY TO GREATER VALUE GM



White sidewall tires, as illustrated, available at extra cost

It seems that valve-in-head engine design is becoming quite the thing, now that gasolines are stepping up in octane rating and higher compression ratios begin to be worth while.

Well, that's dandy as far as Buick is concerned.

For more than forty-five years, Buick engineers have been working with, developing and learning all about valve-in-head engine design.

So quite some time ago Buick applied a principle, possible only in valve-in-head design, which still remains a Buick exclusive.

It is Fireball design — and it's an interesting engineering story.

It comes from a specially shaped piston, designed to roll each fuel charge into a compact, whirling, ball-shaped mass. It goes a step beyond high-compression ratios, because it means better mixing of fuel — and so better burning.

Result: More good from each fuel charge. A touch more life, pep, ginger. More of that happy, satisfying feel of power and zip that give Buick its good name as a performer.

So remember, as more and more cars climb on the valve-in-head bandwagon, that Buick is still calling the tune. Still ahead in knowledge and experience and development of a principle that has always been recognized for its greater basic efficiency.

With self-setting valve lifters adding new quiet and washing out tappet noise, it's plain that "Buick's the buy!" on engine design as in other ways.

Come satisfy yourself on that score — and get a firm order in either with or without a car to trade.

BUICK alone has all these features

Silk-smooth DYNAFLOW DRIVE* • FULL-VIEW VISION from enlarged glass area • SWING-EASY DOORS and easy access "LIVING SPACE" INTERIORS with Deep-Cradle cushions • Buoyant-riding QUADRUFLEX COIL SPRINGING • Lively FIREBALL STRAIGHT-EIGHT POWER with SELF-SETTING VALVE LIFTERS plus HI-POISED ENGINE MOUNTINGS • Cruiser-Line VENTI-PORTS • Low-pressure tires on SAFETY-RIDE RIMS • DUREX BEARINGS, main and connecting rods • BODY BY FISHER Plus Sound-Sorber Top Lining (closed models), Road-Rite Balance, Duomatic Spark Advance, Contoured Bumpers, StepOn Parking Brake, Permi-Firm Steering, Hideaway Hood Latches, Shielded Ignition. *Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER models.

Sperry Hints Rate Increase For Gas Here

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington Gas Light Co., whose current rates are lower than in the 1920s, is concerned over its rising expenses.

Speery

"Unless these higher costs can soon be absorbed in a still greater volume of business, it is inevitable that gas rates for some types of service must be raised," President Marcy L. Sperry stated yesterday. The gas firm is the only Washington utility which hasn't increased rates since the war ended.

"By bringing natural gas to the community," Sperry said in the annual report to stockholders, "the company has been able up to the present time to avoid the rate increases made by many gas companies and other utilities . . . While furnishing the community with one item in the cost of living at prewar rates, the company's own costs, except for its gas supply, have risen in comformity with the general price scale."

The gas company showed net income of $1,476,000 in 1948, compared with $1,224,600 in 1947. After preferred stock dividends, net of $1,036,000 was equal to $1.69 a common share in 1948 on the 612,000 shares outstanding at the end of December. This compared with net of $804,600 after preferred dividends in 1947, or $1.88 a common share on the 427,897 shares outstanding at the end of 1947.

Because of two new issues of common stock at different times during 1948, the average number of shares outstanding throughout the year was 535,507 and the income was equal to $1.93 a share on that amount.

As reported previously, sales of the gas company set an all-time high of 150,589,681 therms in 1948 (the company's 100th year of service). This was an increase of 18 million therms over the previous year.

Sperry pointed out that customers' meters in service at year-end numbered 252,052, a gain of nearly 10,000.

GLEN ECHO: Ever wonder how much the popular Glen Echo amusement park grosses in a year? Some light on the matter is shed by the Capital Transit Co. report to stockholders. The transit firm, owners of the park, says it took in $336,567 in 1948, compared with $357,766 in the previous year. Operating expenses were listed as $234,763 last year, against $243,505 in 1947. No breakdown on the park's net income is available because its earnings are lumped in with general income of the transit company.

MARGINS: A downward revision in credit terms for buying stocks again is being discussed in Wall Street. At present the customer must put up 75 per cent cash to buy securities. When and if the Federal Reserve Board acts, on the basis of its current review of the situation, a change to 50 per cent cash and 50 per cent credit is the figure with the greatest popularity in Wall Street minds. Today the stock market is in a position to take lower margin requirements in its stride, brokers contend, without inducing inflated prices or upsetting the national economy.

SIDELIGHT: In the seores of meaty items contained in a survey of convention delegates' habits is this sidelight—the delegates' retail store spending went up substantially when he was accompanied by his wife but his liquor outlay was far less.

ODD LOTS—Stockholders of Sun Oil Co. will vote March 15 on a proposal to issue an additional two million shares of capital stock . . . General Motors Corp. reported Frebruary output of 192,902 motor vehicles, compared with 149,027 in January . . . Frozen food packing totaled 1,125,000,000 pounds in 1948, an increase of 120 million pounds over 1947 . . . Steel industry output this week is scheduled at a record 101.4 per cent of rated capacity.

LOWER TREND: Sears, Roebuck & Co. reported gross sales for February totaled $128,340,618, a decline of 8.3 per cent from the $139,944,096 of the comparable month a year ago . . . Montgomery Ward & Co. reported sales for February totaled $68,316,441, a decrease of 9.7 per cent.

ANALYSIS: Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane in a current analysis of Peoples Drug Stores Inc. common stock says: "Present indications are that earning for the year ended December 31, 1948, were in the neighborhood of $4 a share as compared with $5.16 in 1947 . . . The outlook for continued satisfactory volume in current year is regarded as generally favorable, barring substantial increases in unemployment. In this respect, Peoples has about 75 per cent of its stores in the Washington area where employment is of a more stable nature than in other sections . . ."

EARNINGS: P. Lorillard Co., tobacco firm, reported net income of $5,644,939 or $2.21 a common share for 1948, compared with $5,515,925 or $2.15 a share in 1947. Other earnings reports:

Robot Nailer Among Week's New Products

A plastic inflatable boat, a rotary tiller for home gardens, a nailing machine, and a new battery for hearing aids are among this week's new commercial products.

A new commercial nailing machine, made by Food Machinery & Chemical Corp., Riverside, Calif., operates at 120 strokes a minute. It can drive up to 24 nails in practically any nailing pattern, using 3 to 10 penny nails. It is designed for making such things as pallets and shipping crates.

The vinylite plastic boats can be packed, deflated, into an overnight case, says the maker, the Bilnor Corp. of New York. It can be blown up like a football. A 72-inch model weighs 5 pounds inflated. A 56-inch boat weighs 2 points inflated. The boats are said to require no painting or calking.

A power tiller for use on small plots is announced by Rototiller, Inc., Troy, N. Y. It is a two-wheeler unit with four forward speeds. In addition to breaking and pulverizing ground, the machine has attachments for lawn mowing and even wood sawing.

Handling drums and barrels without manual exertion is claimed for an improved three-wheeled carrier by the Ernst Drumobile division of Brantwood Products, Inc., Buffalo, N. Y. The company says the device picks up the barrel, carries it upright and deposits it without being touched by human hands. It handles loads up to 850 pounds.

A new type of aluminum screen has been announced by Permanente Metals Corp., Oakland, Calif. It combines louvered shading qualities with insect protection. Direct sun rays are kept out of the room, but indirect light is admitted, and visibility is not impaired, the company says. The new nonrusting screen is said to be comparable to 18-mesh wire screens in keeping out insects.

A new interlocking construction for hearing aid "B" batteries is announced by Olin Industries, Inc., New Haven, Conn. Wafer-thin plastic cells interlock to eliminate soldered connections which frequently cause battery failure, the company says. The new battery also tends to minimize outside interferences and power leakage, the company adds.

The Telecoin Corp., New York, is offering a new coin-operated commercial Bendix automatic washer, more powerful than its predecessors. The company says the machine provides a new soak-to-wash automatic cycle, push-button control of water temperature, and a multiple-choice slug-rejecting coin mechanism.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, March 7 (AP).—Grains mostly ended higher today in a market which loafed along from the start to the finish. Price changes in most contracts during the entire session were less than a cent. Public interest in the market was next to nil, and commercial operations weren't much larger.

This left the market pretty much in the hands of professional traders, who could receive no stimulus from a day of news scarcity on which to base their activities. As a result, dealings were the smallest in the past few weeks.

Wheat closed ¼ lower to ⅛ higher; corn was ¼ to ⅜ higher; oats were ¼ to ½ higher; rye was unchanged to ½ higher; soybeans were ¼ to 1¼ higher, and lard was 12 to 23 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Bank Loses Wardman Note Litigation

The Wardman mansion at 2433 Massachusetts ave. nw. was declared immune yesterday from claims resulting from a $34,089 note given in 1933 by the late Harry Wardman, builder, who committed suicide in 1938.

The United States Court of Appeals ruled that the lapse of years since 1936 when the noteholder, Mount Vernon Savings Bank, obtained a judgment for the sum, barred it from trying to attach the home.

Shortly after the note was executed, Wardman built his home where now his widow, Mrs. Lillian Wardman, resides. According to the bank, the "entire transaction was conceived and designed by him (Wardman) in a purposeful scheme to defraud his creditors."

The bank explained its inaction in the matter by claiming lack of knowledge of the fraud.

But the court, through Judge Henry W. Edgerton, ruled that "there was available at all times for consultation, for the purpose of discovering the claimed fraud, public information of record. Possession of the means of knowledge of fraud is . . . tantamount to knowledge itself."

Leaders Push D. C. Tax Bill

"a plan to substantially increase the Federal payment to the Capital city would be a far more fit subject for early consideration."

Representative Foster Furcolo (D., Mass.), another House District appropriations subcommittee member, commented:

"I am not a bit hot for this sales-tax scheme. I don't like the idea of representatives from other States imposing such a tax on a city in which its residents do not have a voice in their own affairs." He said he may enter floor debate against the measure.

District officials have emphasized in their reports to Congress about city revenue that unless the sales tax is approved, the District might have to fall back on further increases in property taxes which were sharply hiked in 1947. The Commissioners strongly oppose a further increase at this time.

So far District legislative subcommittees have recognized the Commissioners' view on property taxes. One recognition was the vote of the tax-writing subcommittees against considering a property tax boost. Another was the decision of subcommittees in charge of the pay bills to tie the salary increases clearly to the new tax legislation.

Language in the pay bill now links it conclusively to the revenue legislation, by saying in effect that the pay increases are not to be issued until new revenue is available for them.

In yesterday's committee meeting, Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) protested the linking together of pay and tax legislation.

He said it was a "cloudy" and "if-fy" way to handle the pay bill. He said the same tieup was ordered last year—that pay boosts would be granted "IF" the sales tax went through—and the "IF" never went out of the bill.

Pay boosts were blocked last year in the Senate when the sales-tax bill, which had passed the House, was halted by oponents in the end-of-the-session rush.

Miller said he thought provision should be made for meeting the pay-raise costs with Federal funds. For all District employes they would amount to five million dollars a year—or a 10-million-dollar expense in the next fiscal year if the pay raise is made retroactive to last July as is now planned.

Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), chairman of the House subcommittee in charge of District tax legislation, asked Miller how the pay raises were to be met without additional revenue.

"Only by Congress providing a larger Federal appropriation," replied Miller. 'Congress should provide sufficient Federal funds to see that the pay raise bill is carried out."

Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.), ranking Republican member of the Smith subcommittee, said, however, that "it's obvious that if we don't develop a tax bill to provide revenue the employe pay increases just will not be paid. We have to make the pay increase bill conditional upon the ability to develop additional sources of revenue."

Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.) predicted the pay legislation with the retroactive feature would be cleared by the District committee at its next meeting.

British Conduct Gibraltar Games

Gibraltar, March 7 (U.P.).—Forty British warships—the largest concentration of Royal Navy units since the war—started a week of maneuvers off Gibraltar today.

Britain's home and Mediterranean fleets will attempt to "join forces" against a defending force consisting of submarines and the aircraft carrier Implacable. An Atlantic task force under Rear Admiral Earl Mountbatten will try to slip through the Straits of Gibraltar to rendezvous with the Mediterranean force commanded by Vice Admiral Guy Russell.

W. McKay, Los Angeles, Made Head of DeMolay

Kansas City, March 7 (AP).—Judge William R. McKay, Los Angeles, today was elected grand master of the Order of DeMolay at the organization's grand council. Judge McKay, deputy grand master of the order the past year, succeeds Bryce B Smith, former Mayor of Kansas City.

Edil Steen, Baltimore, was elected deputy grand master.

Wanted in Slaying

Extradition Appeal Won By D. C. Man

A 51-year-old construction worker will not have to return to North Carolina to answer to a 23-year-old murder, the United States Court of Appeals ruled here yesterday.

The subject of the decision is Roachell Young of 1800 2d st. sw., who is under indictment in North Carolina for the murder of his brother-in-law, Jackson Satterwhite, in Ashville, N. C., in 1926.

The history of the case shows that not long after the murder, Young was arrested on a minor charge in South Carolina. North Carolina authorities were notified but they declined to ask for his return. In 1940, Young was arrested in the District for investigation. Again North Carolina authorities did not ask extradition.

However, when he was arrested here last year for disorderly conduct, North Carolina authorities forwarded a first-degree murder indictment that had not been returned until 1948. His extradition was asked.

Young obtained a writ of habeas corpus and at a hearing in District Court, his sister, who had been Satterwhite's wife, and a cousin supported Young's story that he had been in Gaffney, S. C., at the time of the murder. However, District Court refused to halt extradition.

In reversing the lower court, the Court of Appeals, through Judge Henry White Edgerton, said:

"One who was not in the demanding State at the time of the crime cannot be a fugitive from justice. We think the testimony of appellant (Young) and his witnesses, together with the failure of North Carolina authorities to produce any opposite testimony, clearly and satisfactorily shows appellant was not in North Carolina when Satterwhite was murdered."

Truck Driver 'Didn't Know' About Meters

A driver who did not realize he was violating traffic regulations by parking his truck in a meter zone was one of 93 persons for whom traffic tickets were "fixed" by police last week.

Police said a ticket was changed to a warning for William R. Elliot, of 7430 Allentown rd., Md., after he explained he did not know it was illegal to park a truck in a meter zone.

Miss Cornelia Ball, a reporter for the Washington Daily News, was warned for parking in a crosswalk after she explained that her car had been pushed, police said.

Traffic tickets were cancelled for the following persons because of diplomatic immunity: Reuben J. Gordon, Embassy of Chile, parked in alley; Juan Guzman-Cruchaga, Embassy of Chile, parked in alley; Oscar F. Lozano Cantu, Mexican Embassy, parked in alley; William V. Pastor, British Embassy, parked in alley; Antonio Vega, Embassy of Chile, parked in alley; Gilles d' Boisgelin, French Embassy, parked with left wheel to curb; Percy C. Pell, British Embassy, parked with left wheel to the curb.

Errol Flynns to Part

Hollywood, March 7 (U.P.).—Screen Star Errol Flynn's wife, Nora Eddington, has announced she will leave for Las Vegas, Nev., this week to get a divorce.

Along Our Street

with Aunt Penny

Last week we had one of those dark, rainy days when it's good to hear the crackle of a warm fire in the fireplace. A perfect day, I thought, to chat with a few friends on the telephone.

A few calls would have been all right, but before I knew it, I was monopolizing our telephone party line.

So that it wouldn't happen again, I jotted down a list of "party-line points" to remember when using the telephone. At the top of the list, I wrote "Always allow some time between calls so that others have a chance to use the line." The rest of the points were little more than rules of common courtesy. Such things as not interrupting when someone's talking on the line, except to make an extremely urgent call . . . or giving up the line quickly when someone needs it in an emergency. All in all, it's the "little things" that make our party-line service good service.

Flimflammers Plead Guilty, Get One Year

He was a high-spending gent just up from North Carolina and he carried a roll of bills that would have stopped up a sewer.

Yessir, he made an impression.

But in Municipal Court yesterday, Arthur Beards, 40, of 1015 8th st. nw., let down his false front and pleaded guilty to larceny together with his confedrate, Charles E. Welles, 35, of 608 Kenilworth ave. ne.

Story Called Typical

After admitting fleecing Monroe Scott, 20, of 607 Meigs st. ne., of $54, and Willie Grayson, of 316 G st. nw., of $49, Beards and Welles were sentenced to a year in jail by Judge Armond W. Scott.

Scott's story, police said, was typical of both cases. On February 26, Scott walked happily from a store at 8th and H sts. ne. He was happy because he had $54 in his pocket.

Beards, nattily dressed, accosted him, flashed a large roll of bills, said he had just arrived in Washington from North Carolina and was looking for a good time.

Scott had no suggestions, but at this moment along came Welles. Sure enough, he knew just the place to have some fun, a house about two blocks away.

Stage Money Used

But, warned Welles, perhaps it would be dangerous to take all their money into the "fun house." Someone might take it. It was decided they would hide most of their money in a tin can in an alley.

Beards again produced his roll (later, he admitted it consisted of a $1 bill, a $32,000 stage money bill and a wadding of newspaper) and placed it in the can. Could Scott do less? He added his $54.

Several blocks later, Scott became suspicious and returned to the alley. The can was gone. When he returned to where he had left the two men, they were gone, too. However, detectives picked them up Sunday at the Greyhound bus terminal.

House Set to Debate Veterans' Pension Bill

A multi-billion dollar veterans' pension bill is expected to be cleared today by the House Rules Committee for House debate, which probably will start next week.

Committee action had tentatively been planned for yesterday, but the Rules Committee was occupied with other legislation and did not get around to the pension measure being pushed by Representative Rankin (D., Miss.).

$500 Fire in Greenbelt

Damage estimated at $500 was caused yesterday by a fire in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dodson on Edmonston rd., near Greenbelt, Md. Volunteer firemen from College Park, Berwyn Heights, and Branchville subdued the blaze, which destroyed part of a second-floor ceiling and sidewalls on the north side of the house.

Houses of Pleasure Declared Nuisance By Nevada Court

Carson City, Nev. March 7 (AP).—Another frontier of the old West—the red light district—tumbled under a court order today.

The Nevada Supreme Court ruled houses of prostitution are public nuisances and may be closed by county authorities.

The ruling stemmed from an appeal by a Reno madame, Bae Cunningham, that county officials acted beyond their legal rights in closing her brothel last fall.

Miss Cunningham contended State statute specifically provides houses of prostitution are illegal within 400 yards of a church, school or public thoroughfare—and thus are elgal elsewhere.

But the Sujreme Court disagreed. It upheld a Reno District Court order restraining Miss Cunningham from resuming her business.

With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, FLA., March 7.—Ted Williams says he plans to retire in 1951, and it won't be a minute too soon because you don't know what he has to put up with, aside from his $100,000-a-year salary.

"A ball player has to take too much abuse," the Associated Press quotes Williams. "I've been at it now for 11 years, counting my stretch in the Army. I figure by 1951 I'll have enough money so that I can afford to take it easy. That's what I want to do."

POVICH

Meanwhile, Williams will collect his hundred grand for 1949, and not less than $75,000 for 1950 because under the major league rules his salary can be slashed only 25 per cent. Still vague is whether Williams plans to stay on the Red Sox payroll through 1951, or quit before the season starts.

In any event he will have the kind of pile to tide him over and give him coffee and cakes purchasing power for the most of his remaining years. And if he can't quite make out on the $300,000 worth of salaries he draws in his last four years of baseball, then he can wait for his fiftieth birthday, on which date he can start drawing $100 a month as a 10-year man under baseball's pension plan.

THE DAY when he can retire to his fishing for the rest of his life is what Williams apparently is waiting for. As he says, you don't know what he's gone through. Baseball is a harsh business. The fans sometimes yell at you. The reporters ask you questions, and you only get six months vacation a year. How long can a man stand that kind of abuse?

Right now there are approximately 10 million kids who'd like to qualify for the major league's minimum salary of $5000 and forego the other 95 grand that Williams draws this year. The funny thing about it is that they can't quite understand what a ball player goes through, and they have a strange notion that big leaguers like to play baseball or they wouldn't be in it.

That shows how little they know about how badly-used big league players are. They are forced to travel in Pullmans, and must stop only at the fanciest hotels around the circuit. They must accept all traveling expenses from their clubs, and in the spring training they are compelled to take $25 a week extra for tipping money.

SEE WHAT Williams has to contend with? And when he hits home runs, there is a big noise raised, and all that racket by silly people is grating on the ears. And after he crosses home plate after hitting one out of the park and taking a leisurely stroll around the bases, he's expected to tip his hat to those folks in the stands.

In the Everglades, where he likes to spend the winter, it's different. Nobody to bother Williams, for four or five months. And the fish go for that new-fangled gear that he has in profusion from sporting goods firms that want his indorsement. He got $10,000 for a personal appearance a couple of years ago at a manufacturers' exhibit. He doesn't need baseball, after 1951.

By that time, he'll have all the new-model autos he needs. That's another thing about big-shot ball players. They must not wait in line, and put their order in months ahead for the latest thing in cars. They have to step right up and get a bill of sale, usually at a discount, from auto firms who want them to drive their models.

OH, IT'S GONNA be wondreful when Williams chucks the whole baseball business and gets out from under all that abuse. He won't have to put in those strenuous hours from 3 to 5, and stand out in left field waiting around for somebody to hit a baseball in that direction. And sometimes during those two hours he has to go to bat as many as five times in the same day.

He just can't stand it, apparently. Some people want his autograph, and that's a nuisance, you know. Ty Cobb and Walter Johnson stood it for more than 20 years, but how, Williams will never know. They must have been crazy about the game, or something.

Let's have no more abuse of Williams. The customers who pay their buck-20 or more must never boo, only applaud, because he's just a young fellow trying to make the best part of a million dollars before he says to hell with the game that got it for him.

'Jumpers' Will File Suits Today, Lawyer Says

By Will Grimsley

New York, March 7 (AP).—A group of major league players suspended for jumping to the Mexican League will file multimillion-dollar suits tomorrow against organized baseball, John L. Flynn, attorney, said.

Flynn mapped his legal strategy in a highly secretive conference tonight with Max Lanier and Fred Martin, former St. Louis Cardinal pitchers who are members of the banished list.

Lanier, now a resident of St. Petersburg, Fla., flew in by plane late today. Martin arrived earlier from his home in Oklahoma.

Flynn refused to give any details of the projected suits other than to say they would ask more than five million dollars in damages and would be "something sensational."

"We can't afford to tip our hand," remarked the lawyer.

He intimated the suits would follow the form of the Danny Gardella case, still pending in the courts, but would have a more far-reaching effect.

Gardella, former New York Giant outfielder, sued baseball leaders for $300,000, charging the game is a monopoly and in violation of the antiturst laws. He said the suspension deprived him of a livelihood. The suit challenges the reserve clause, the legal backbone of the national game under which a player is bound to one club for life unless he is sold, traded or released.

Flynn declined to say how many men would be involved in the newest suit, but declared there were "several."

It's known that 10 players were either contacted or were on a list to be approached about joining in the legal action. However, some of them have announced refusal to go along.

Owen Against It

The list, besides Lanier and Martin, includes Infielder Lou Klein of the Cardinals; Outfielder Luis Olmo of the Brooklyn Dodgers; Pitcher Sal Maglie, Harry Feldman and Ace Adams and infielders Roy Zimmerman and George Hausmann of the Giants, and Myron Hayworth, catcher, who played with the St. Louis Browns and Toledo in the American Association.

All these players were given five-year suspensions in the spring of 1946 for jumping to the Mexican League.

Mickey Owen, former Brooklyn catcher who is also under suspension, refused to join the group. Instead, he began a one-man campaign to dissuade the others from suing

Owen said that he and at least six other "jumpers" shunned any link with the suit.

"The story is a stab in the back to us," Owen said. "All we want to do is play baseball and we're hopeful that our appeal to be reinstated will be considered favorably."

Owen said he had telephoned Feldman, Maglie, Martin, Klein, Zimmerman and George Hausmann. Each, Owen said, denied any part in the reported suit.

Fan Proposes Fund To Aid Chandler

Des Moines, March 7 (AP).—J.V. Forrest, Oklahoma City business man came to the aid of Baseball Commissioner Chandler tonight, pledging "at least $100" to a fund to pay off the Mexican "Jumpers" should they win their proposed suits against baseball.

He asked other fans to join in saying:

"After all, baseball is a game for the kids. We must uphold its honor for the kids. We must teach them what honor is, that a contract is a contract and can't be broken for any old reason."

Ted Says He's Due More Credit

"After All I Led Hitting, Slugging Doubles," He Says

By Joe Reichler

Sarasota, Fla., March 7 (AP).—"I honestly believe I haven't been given enough credit for my work last year."

This was Ted Williams' prize remark today as he was the last to leave the clubhouse after a Boston Red Sox workout. It came in response to a question whether he expected to have a better year this year.

"What was the matter with my playing last year?" he wanted to know. "All I did was lead the league in batting, top all hitters in slugging percentage, draw the most walks and hit the most doubles."

Unbashful Ted was reluctant to leave the clubhouse. He wanted to talk baseball. Pacing up and down, Williams talked about the pannant race, his hopes for the new season and his future in baseball.

Ted, only several hours before, had affixed his signature to a contract which some believed, made him the highest salaried player in the game. No figures were announced.

"How much did you get, Ted," he was asked.

"Enough," was the reply.

"Did you get $100,000?" was the next query hurled at him.

"Pretty close to it," he grinned.

"They say Joe DiMaggio is making $90,000 with the New York Yankees. Does your salary top that?"

"Can't answer that one. Front office won't like," he answered.

What about his home run output? His 25 round trippers was his second lowest total in seven years in the majors.

"You would bring that up," Ted retorted. "Sure I hit only 25 homers, but except for 1942, I had fewer official times at bat last year than any other. Don't forget, I missed 20 ball games due to an injury, and I received 126 bases on balls. With all that I still managed to hit a home run every 16 times at bat. Look over my lifetime record, and you'll find that my overall average is just that—a homer every 16 at bats. So I didn't do any worse last year."

And what would he settle for?

"Well, it's hard to say, but I'll settle for the same average as last year—.369. I believe whoever reaches that mark will lead the league. That's what I'd like to do more than anything else—win the batting title for the fifth time. If I do, I'll be the only one besides Ty Cobb to win the American League crown five times or more. Right now I'm tied with Harry Heilmann at four each.

"Cobb did it 12 times, whew. . . ."

What about the report that he was quitting after three more years?

Sure I meant it. But once I get a monkey suit on and get the feel of a bat in my hands I feel differently. I love to hit. But every once in a while I get down in the dumps, and I feel like chucking it all."

Blackwood Gets Nod Over Hill at Arena

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Joe Blackwood perpetuated his winning streak at Turner's Arena last night with a unanimous 10-round decision over George Hill, Philadelphia middleweight.

Hill, who split two earlier bouts with Blackwood, was the first fighter to go the route with the District's latest kayo specialist since Ken Stribling.

Stribling lost a 10-rounder to Blackwood four months ago. Blackwood, who has now won five in a row, tried for a knockout most of the route, but came close only once. He threw uppercuts, hooks and bolo punches, but Hill weathered the storm and was actually the fresher of the two when the fight ended.

Except for the 7th round, the bout was devoid of any real action. In that round, Blackwood staggered Hill with a solid right to the head, but Hill rallied and landed a crashing right to Blackwood's head just at the bell.

Blackwood fought the last six rounds almost single-handedly. He injured his left hand in the fourth round and used it only three times afterwards.

Hill weighed 156, Blackwood 161.

Danny Petro, 127, of Washington, knocked out Oscar Goode, 128, Cincinnati, in the second round of the semiwindup, scheduled for eight rounds.

The show attracted 997 customers who chipped in to a net gate of $1686.

Lee Johnson, local welterweight, opened the show by defeating Roscoe Mercer, Washington, in a four. Little Dynamite outpointed Featherweight Puggy King, also of Washington in five; and Chuck Holley, 156, Washington, stopped Scott Richardson, 157, in the second of a schedule five.

Pay-as-You-Hunt Plan Set Before Wildlife Conference

Hunters, fishermen and soil conservationists from every section of the United States sat down yesterday for a series of heart-to-heart talks to determine the ills of the present wildgame siuation and methods to correct it.

talks to determine the ills of the present wild game situation and heard Thomas Beck, chairman of the board of the Crowell-Collier Publishing Co., outline a hunter and fisherman pay-as-you-go plan.

More than 1000 of the sportsmen here fo rthe fourteenth annual North American Wildlife Conference being held at the Statler Hotel

Beck, a former fish and game commissioner in Connecticut, said the time has come when sportsmen must be willing to pay a market price for game when they take it in addition to a license fee.

This amount of money is necessary, he said, to restock fish and game and must be paid by sportsmen because "no one else will put up the money for conservation."

Hoodlum hunters or "scoff-laws" came in for some hard words from many of the sportsmen, who declared free hunting is doomed unless sharp curbs are applied to the trigger-happy individuals who take more than the legal game limit and shoot at everything that moves, including the farmers' cows and children.

Soil conservationists pointed out to the delegates that soil erosion not only robs the land of some of it richest nutrients but covers fish spawning beds and natural gravel beds with silt.

The delegates gave unanimous approval to the Duck-Stamp Act about to be introduced in Congress calling for a $1 increase, making it cost $2 per year, and also approved the Dingell bill which earmarks the 10 per cent excise tax on fishing tackle to aid State fisheries.

The sessions will continue through Wednesday.

Hoyas Downed By Villanova

Villanova, March 7.—Georgetown's basketball team closed its season by dropping a hard fought 65-57 decision to Villanova's tournament-bound Wildcats before 4000 spectators here tonight.

The victory clinched the NCAA District 2 bid for Villanova, according to an announcement earlier today by Lew Andreas of Syracuse, head of the selection committee.

Georgetown, dropping its fifteenth game of the season against nine victories, gave Villanova a hard fight, especially since the Wildcats were forced to play without two regulars, Tommy Sabol and Joe Hannan. Both were injured against St. Bonaventure on Saturday night.

For most of the first half, Georgetown held the upper hand, but never more than a couple of points separated the two quintets. Only Paul Arizin's deadly sniping kept Villanova in the contest. The 6.03 sharpshooter bagging 25 points in the opening half to help his mates walk off the floor at intermission sporting a narrow 39-37 advantage.

Villanova broke the game open somewhat after the rest period, racing to a 48-40 edge aided by three goals on fast breaks. Georgetown never drew within eight points of the home team after the five minute mark, and Villanova was content to win by that margin.

Scolari Breaks Finger, May Be Out 3 Weeks

A finger broken by Freddie Scolari, chunky playmaker, yesterday dealt the Washington Caps a stiff blow as they prepared for their last five games in the regular season and the playoffs of the Basketball Association of America.

In a workout before tomorrow night's tangle with the New York Knickerbockers in Madison Square Garden, Scolari broke the middle finger of his right hand in a crack-up with teammate Dick Schulz.

He will continue exercising daily, it was announced, in order to keep his weight down for the championship playoffs. His chances of handling a ball for three weeks was declared very slight.

The Caps' next home appearance will be Saturday against the Fort Wayne Zollner-Pistons.

GW High Wins Metro Title, 41-31

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

George Washington of Alexandria stopped Jim Pantos with five points and defeated Central, 41-31, to win the Metropolitan Washington High School basketball tournament before 2476 last night at Ritchie Coliseum.

It was the twenty-third straight victory for the unbeaten Presidents this season, and gave them the Metro title for the first time in the 17-year history of the tournament. It was the second straight year in which Central lost out in the finals. Last year, the championship was won by St. John's.

The clever playmaking of Jim Gahagan and the deadly hook shots of Tony Daukas, who slammed in 15 points, were the key factors in the Presidents' victory.

Helpful to them also was Pantos' off night in the scoring column, and Central's generally poor showing in the first half, when it connected for only two field goals.

G. W. enveloped the driving Central team with a stifling zone defense. Only Lou Glickfield, who scored on a set shot in the opening minute of the game, and a lay-up by Jack Stringer, a minute before intermission, were able to score for Central from the floor before halftime.

Presidents Safe

Meanwhile, Gahagan, who normally shoots only six or seven times a game, was pitching in eight points in the first quarter, and Daukas was pouring in six in the second half. As the teams left for their halftime rest, G. W. was on top, 24-10.

Pantos, held to only one point in the first half, was shut out completely in the third quarter. However, Glickfield sank two set shots, and helped Central whittle its deficit to 30-19 going into the last period.

Pantos scored the first of his only two field goals early in the final quarter, and sparked a mild Central five-point streak, which put the Vikings behind by only eight points, 32-24.

But in the last five minutes, the 6-foot 5-inch Daukas hooked in two field goals and added a free throw to ice the game for G. W.

While it was the final game of the year for Central, which won 18 out of 25, it was merely a warm-up for G. W. The Presidents journey to Norfolk tohorrow where on Thursday, Friday and Saturday they shoot for the Virginia State championship.

In the preliminary, Washington-Lee of Arlington upset Gonzaga, 35-27.

Nats Have A Holdout, Garcia Fails To Show Up

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., March 7.—Ramon Garcia, the Washington club's top rookie pitching prospect, is missing from training camp, but not a bit mysteriously. He wants more of Clark Griffith's money before he can be induced to leave his native Havana.

Joe Cambria, the Nats' Cuban operative, who was supposed to usher Garcia into Orlando, arrived today empty handed. The little right-handed pitcher refused to sign a Washington contract.

There has been a change in Garcia's financial status, it seems, and the Nats are now bidding against the Havana Telephone Co. for his services.

"The telephone company promoted him to a foreman, or something, and he's getting uppity," reported Cambria. "We'll offer him more money and he'll come around, I think."

Against the drab array of rookie pitchers now in camp, none of whom, except possibly Dick Welteroth, will make the grade, Garcia was rated a shining light. He won eight and lost seven for Chattanooga last season in his first year in organized ball, but six of those victories came in the last few weeks of the season and he was one of the better pitchers in the Southern Association.

Meanwhile the Nats buttressed their pitching staff, they hope, by signing free Agent Paul Calvert without waiting for him to take what was to be a test run on Saturday against the Athletics at Palm Beach.

Lewis Still Clouting

Calvert, bespectacled right hander who was with Cleveland before jumping to the Mexican League, got a fancy contract from the Nats. The sum was far in excess of the $1500 he had paid for his release from Toronto after being reinstated along with minor leaguers who jumped to Mexico.

Buddy Lewis continued to be the big noise of the batting drills this week, and Manager Joe Kuhel is elated at the apparent success of his come-back after a year's voluntary retirement from the game.

"Lewis could be the best thing that has happened to us," said Kuhel. "How we need his kind of power. He'll bat either third or fourth and be the best clutch-hitter on our club." For the second successive day, Lewis pumped three balls over the rightfield wall, 361 feet distant.

Outfielder Sherry Robertson was a casualty in the workout today. He wrenched his back while batting, and may be out of action for a few days . . . Kuhel is impressed at the cuts being taken by both Clyde Vollmer and John Simmons, the rookie outfielders . . . Vollmer is currently rated over Simmons because the latter is a bit on the green side, but Simmons may be the better ballplayer . . . The Nats' team took shape today with the infield of Robinson-Kozar-Dente-Yost, clicking phantom double plays in the infield practice

Seven District Fighters Make Gloves Semifinals

New York, March 7.—Washington sent seven of its eight representatives into the quarterfinals of the Golden Gloves here tonight. Two, Leon Daughtry, 147, and Eddie Grant, heavyweight, drew byes; but the rest had to fight hard to get into the round of sixteen.

Jimmy Caraway, 118, was a victim of a KO by Noel Humphreys, Huntington, W. Va., slugger after 1:29 of the first round. Caraway was the first Washingtonian into the ring.

Eugene Smith, 112, stopped Stanley Howk, Miami, Fla., in 1:11 of the first round. Roland Randell, 160, knocked out Ernie Keith, Buffalo, N. Y., 0:24 of the second. Elliot Powers, 175, stopped Joseph Markle, Newark, N. J., 1:58 of the second.

D. C. Medics Bow, 78-61

Fort Dix, N. J., March 7.—The Washington Army Medical Center cage team lost its first game in the All-Army Basketball Tournament today when Brooke Army Medical Center of San Antonio, Tex., hung up a 78-to-61 triumph.

The Washington five will play in a consolation tournament that will be conducted for losing aggregations in the first and second rounds.

Dennis Costin, lanky Washington center, was high point man of the game with 22, collected on 10 field goals and 2 charity tosses. Latimer had 18 and Regan 10 for the losers.

Kentucky Wins Poll

New York, March 7 (AP).—Kentucky won in a walkover.

The Blue Grass basketball boys, who ran off with the Southeastern Conference tournament last week and who are aiming at two national tourneys, completely dominated the final Associated Press basketball ranking poll for the 1948-49 season.

Kentucky drew the first place votes of 136 of the 161 sportswriters and sportscasters who participated in the last week of balloting this season.

Coming in a rather distant second was Oklahoma A. and M. with five first-place votes and 1209 points. St. Louis, which was placed first by only one expert, but accumulated 1158 points and Illinois, the Big Nine champion, with 11 firsts and 1120 points were the only other teams that even came close.

The top teams figured on a point basis of 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 (first place votes and won-lost records in parentheses):

1 Kentucky (136) (29-1)	1546
2 Okla. A. & M. (5) (20-4)	1209
3 St. Louis (1) (20-3)	1158
4 Illinois (11) (19-2)	1120
5 Western Kentucky (2) (25-3)	604
6 Minnesota (18-3)	511
7 Bradley (2) (25-6)	495
8 San Francisco (21-5)	371
9 Tulane (24-4)	328
10 Bowling Green (21-6)	264
11 Yale (21-3)	143
12 Utah (24-7)	135
13 North Carolina State (25-8)	118
14 Villanova (20-3)	106
15 UCLA (21-5)	82
16 Loyola of Chicago (22-5)	70
17 Wyoming (1) (24-8)	55
18 Butler (2) (18-5)	54

NBA Agreed On Champ Bout To Avoid Scramble

Paterson, N. J., March 7 (AP).—The National Boxing Association agreed to recognize the winner of a heavyweight fight promoted by Joe Louis as the world's champion to avoid "an endless and pointless scramble," Commissioner Abe J. Greene said today.

Louis has matched Ezzard Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott in June, with the winner taking on Lee Savold or Gus Lesnevich within three months.

Savold was offered a chance to fight first for the crown, Greene said, but was unable to sign because of "previous commitments."

BAA Playoffs Start March 22, Says Podoloff

New York, March 7 (AP).—Maurice Podoloff, president of the Basketball Association of America, announced today that the circuit's playoffs will start Tuesday, March 22.

The teams that finish among the first four in the Eastern and Western division will compete in the playoffs.

The first-place team will meet the fourth-placers and the second-place team the third-place finishers in each division.

The winners of the opening series will then clash to determine each division's final-round representative.

Penn State Coach Resigns

State College, Pa., March 7 (AP).—John D. Lawther, outstanding exponent of the zone defense, today resigned as Penn State basketball coach and his assistant, Elmer Gross, was elevated to the post.

Dr Carl P. Schott, dean of the school of physical education and athletics, said Lawther had asked to be relieved of his coaching duties earlier in the year to devote his full time to teaching. He was persuaded, however, to finish out the season. He will continue as a member of the faculty.

The Case of the Wayward Pigeon

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

No one's quite sure whether he paid his way into the Armory, used a press pass, was smuggled through the gate under some boy's sweater or rode in on a woman's hat.

However, it's a fact that Mr. Pigeon, without portfolio or pedigree, not only made his appearance at the current Second Annual Sportsmen's and Outdoors Show, but stayed through at least three stage performances last weekend.

Perhaps he was lured by the tropical atmosphere in contrast to the chilling winds outside; maybe he followed the talking crow down from New York or could be that he wanted to enlist in the National Guard.

At first, the injection of some honest-to-goodness wildlife was considered cute. Mr. Pigeon made nonstop flights over the fancy motorboats, sporty trailers and rugged hunting sets, lending a touch of realism to the indoor-outdoor scenes.

In fact, a number of customers at Saturday's show believed officials were to be complimented on their efforts to create a true outdoors motif.

The exhibitors and employes adopted Mr. Pigeon as a sort of pet and there was some talk of a budding romance involving the gaily colored stray bird and the sleek, black crow.

However, this was before Mr. Pigeon became careless, if you know what I mean.

The management promptly stamped him as a nuisance and went about trying to determine a way to give him the bum's rush.

With at least a half million dollars worth of game-catching equipment on display, plus some of the nation's top wildlife experts on hand, several hours were devoted to ways and means of disposing of the situation.

I wish I could say that Mr. Pigeon obtained some adhesive tape, put it across his feet and sneaked into the retrieving dog act as one of the house ducks, but I can't.

As usual when diplomacy fails, man resorts to a weapon.

Mr. Pigeon was perched on the rail behind a working press seat in the gallery when Norm Willard, pistol and gun marksman, took a bead on him and it was all over.

I wouldn't blame the birds if they boycotted the joint.

Veeck Makes Short Work Of Holdouts

Tucson, Ariz., March 7 (AP). President Bill Veeck of the Cleveland Indians eliminated his holdout problem today, five players agreeing to terms.

In a busy day's work, the fuzzy-haired Tribe president came to terms with Pitchers Gene Bearden and Bob Lemon and Infielders Joe Gordon, Johnny Berardino and Roberto Avila.

A Tribe spokesman said that of the five who reached agreements today, only Berardino failed to receive a pay boost.

Lemon, one of the team's best hurlers last season, accepted a contract which observers said may earn him as much as $25,000. He is believed to have made $14,000 in 1948.

Gordon's contract, as in the case of Lemon's, contains a bonus clause. If the team draws as well as it did last year, he is expected to receive about $40,000.

Bearden's terms are believed such that he can earn about $22,000, a considerable increase over last year.

Yank Vets Rest

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7 (AP).—Manager Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees said today that Joe Dimaggio and four other players would not participate in spring training camp games until they feel they are physically fit to go into action.

The others are Charley Keller, Tommy Henrich, Phil Rizzuto and Babe Young.

Reese's Team Wins Again

Vero Beach, Fla., March 7 (AP).—With Gil Hodges clouting a 400-foot homer and Dee Fondy a pair of doubles, Peewee Reese's unbeaten Brooklyn Dodgers squad today romped 9-2 over Bruce Edwards' boys in Dodgertown's four-team league.

It was a 2-2 game, with Joe Hatten pitching against Willie Ramsdell.

Girls Have Deadline

All entries for the city basketball championships for girls must be phoned in to John Poston at FR. 5450 before Friday. Games will be played at the Merrick Boys Club starting Monday.

Villanova Has Chance For NCAA

New York, March 7 (AP).—San Francisco and City College of New York today accepted bids to the National Invitation Basketball Tournament and Villanova closed in on the District Two berth for the NCAA championships.

CCNY (17-6) and San Francisco (21-5) thus became the sixth and seventh teams picked for the eight-team NIT tourney in Madison Square Garden, March 12-14-17-19. The other five schools chosen are Kentucky, St. Louis, Western Kentucky, Utah and Bradley.

The last place will go to another New York City quintet, either Manhattan (18-7), New York U. (11-7 or St. John's of Brooklyn (15-8).

Asa Bushnell, chairman of the NIT's Selection Committee, who announced the CCNY and San Francisco acceptances, said he expected to name the eighth team shortly.

This will be San Francisco's first appearance in the NIT and CCNY's third. The far western independents beat CCNY twice this season, once here and the second time in San Francisco.

Lew Andreas, Syracuse cage coach and chairman of the district's selection committee, said Villanova may have to play off with Duquesne (71-5) for the berth.

"It will be up to the committee to decide if a playoff is necessary," Andreas added.

CCNY and NYU clash tomorrow in the regular season Garden finale. A decisive victory could put NYU solidly in the picture. There also is talk of a playoff between Manhattan, which beat CCNY last week, and St. John's. Yale, Illinois and Kentucky have been selected for the other three eastern NCAA spots and will meet in the Garden March 21-22.

Pullman Indorsed To Succeed Young

Manor Park Citizens Association last night urged appointment of Ernest H. Pullman, 64, former newspaperman and retired Government aide, as successor to Commissioner John Russell Young, whose term expires in May.

The group unanimously requested that a resolution indorsing Pullman, past president of the group, be prepared and forwarded to President Truman.

Discussion did not mention qualifications of Young. However, an association official said sentiment of members was that 't'hey ought to get rid of Young as soon as possible."

Pullman, who lives at 201 Sheridan st. nw., was a newspaperman for 25 years, and then served in the Government for 20 years. He retired last December as an administrative assistant with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

One of the founders of the Manor Park Citizens Association he served as president from 1923 to 1928, 1931 to 1934, and is a former delegate to the eFderation of Citizens Associations.

Married, he has three children. He is a veteran of World War I, a Mason and a member of the Order of the Eastern Star.

The association, meeting at the Whittier School, 5th and Sheridan sts. nw. also voted to urge:

Construction of an overpass or underpass at the Baltimore & Ohio railroad crossing at Sheridan st. near 1st st. nw.

Notification to citizens groups by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board when applications or transfers of ABC licenses are under consideration.

Police authorization of parking in driveways, between sidewalks and building line, in residential areas, where it will not cause obstruction of view or other traffic hazards.

Dupont Circle

The Dupont Circle Citizens Association yesterday asked for restoration of the $500,000 cut by the House of Representatives from the District Commissioners' proposed Health Department budget.

The resolution was adopted after a health committee report had been submitted which included excerpts from a Washington Post editorial calling the cut in Health Department funds a "severe blow to the community."

The 17 members present at the meeting in the Mayflower Hotel also went on record in favor of the cost-of-living increase for District teachers recently recommended by Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning.

Georgetown Meeting

Continuation of a child psychiatric clinic, now functioning without funds at the Addison School, was urged last night by four speakers at a meeting of the Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown. The meeting was held at Christ Episcopal Church parish hall, 31st and O sts. nw.

The speakers were Capt. Rhoda J. Milliken, head of the Woman's Police Bureau; Dr. Leopold Wexberg, director of the District Child Guidance clinics; Miss Mary Henderson, principal of the Hyde School, and Dr. William Sharp, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church.

The clinic is now treating 31 children in two half-day sessions each week, with a staff of five including a psychologist and a psychiatrist. The cost of $108 a month, which is normally donated by Georgetown residents, has not been raised for the months of January and February, it was said.

All the speakers urged that the clinic be continued and eventually be taken over by the city. The Citizens Association pledged its support of the project and resolved to raise the money.

Southwest

The Southwest Citizens Association last night voted to back proposed District slum clearance legislation in the form now being considered by Congress.

The group of 78 members meeting at Jefferson Junior High School, 7th and H sts. sw., also voted to ask Congress to force the District Commissioners to keep a 2-year-old promise to tear down the Old Harbor Garage adjacent to Jefferson playground.

Kingman Park

The Kingman Park Civic Association's meeting place for tonight has been changed to the Langston Terrace Apartments' recreation hall, 707 24th st. ne. The meeting was originally announced for the Langston Recreation Hall, Oklahoma ave. and E st. ne. The meeting will begin at 8:30 p. m.

Minnesota Center

The Minnesota Center Citizens Association, meeting last night in Benning School annex, indorsed a proposal of Dr. T. T. Roberts, pastor of Minnesota Avenue Christian Church, that a recreation hall be built on the church property.

The Christian Youth Fellowship group of the church is sponsoring the recreation hall as a memorial to one of its members, Lieut. William Herren, killed in World War II. The young people are enlisting aid of civic groups in raising necessary funds.

About 20 persons were present at the meeting.

Michigan Park

Michigan Park Citizens Association last night went on record opposing a request by Howard University medical department for animals to be used for vivisection in university courses and experiments.

The association's 75 members, meeting at the Bunker Hill School, 14th st. and Michigan ave. ne., also favored a motion to ask District Traffic Director George E. Keneipp for stop signs on all corners of the intersection of 12th and Taylor sts. ne., and a "slow" sign at 13th st. on Taylor.

Floods Spread In Midwest

By The Associated Press

Floodwaters swirled across vast areas of rich Iowa and Nebraska farmland yesterday driving thousands of persons from their homes.

The waters claimed two lives in Iowa. The body of George W. Johnson, 77, was recovered from his flooded Missouri Valley home. Gerald Perrin, 10, of near Denison, Iowa, was drowned when he fell into a swollen stream.

In Nebraska, the normally peaceful Big Blue River swept over an area 2 miles wide in the eastern part of the State. It inched into Seward, a town of 2800, forcing at least 40 families from their homes.

Meanwhile, a cold wave, with snow, was forecast for Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa Tuesday.

Farther downstream in Nebraska, the Big Blue surged over eight residential blocks at Crete, a town of about 3000, and drove 15 families from their homes in Beatrice, a city of 11,000. The high water forced a shutdown of Crete's sewage disposal plant.

But in Iowa, where the swollen Missouri River forced about 1000 persons from their homes over the weekend, the water receded over most of the flooded area and the homeless prepared to move back.

Leses than a tenth of the persons who earlier were given emergency food and refuge still were in need of help. Highway 75 was reopened through the town of Missouri Valley and rail traffic was resumed.

Gas service still was off and water still was being rationed in the town of some 4000 persons.

A mile-long ice jam in the Platte River upstream from Ashland, Nebr. sent the river off its course. One stream poured into Salt Creek, the other flowed across lowlands.

Comfort with the "custom" touch!

WHY do we believe that the new 1949 Lincoln Cosmopolitan is so much more luxuriously comfortable than other automobiles?

Simply because of the many extra "custom" touches this fine car offers . . . "custom" touches such as these:

—The broad choice of rich interior upholsteries and elegant appointments you're offered.

—The deeper, more restful, foam-rubber cushioned seats you enjoy—and the ample leg room in front of them.

—The one-piece curved safety glass windshield almost five feet wide! (What a comfort to your eyes!)

—The push-button windows! (This is so luxurious an automobile, they're "standard equipment.")

—The superbly smooth, ultra-relaxing ride . . . and that wonderful, soundproofed freedom from road noises.

—The comforting safety of those powerful new brakes—unsurpassed for safe, gentle stopping.

—The thrilling smoothness of that powerful, yet thrifty great new Lincoln V-type "Eight" engine!

Why not enjoy a sample of all this comfort soon? You can drive a Lincoln Cosmopolitan for the asking!

White side-wall tires and road lamps are optional.

Indian Affairs Shift To FSA to Be Proposed By Hoover Commission

FSA: Interior's Bureau of Indian Affairs would be transferred to the Federal Security Agency under a recommendation to be made public soon by the Hoover Commission. In that event, FSA would be made into a department of security, education, and Indian affairs. As reported here previously, the Hoover Commission would transfer several of FSA's bureaus to other agencies.

PAY RAISES: These are the 15 additional Federal officials whose salaries would be raised to $16,000 by the O'Conor subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee:

The commissioners of Immigration, the Bureau of Reclamation, the Customs Bureau, the Bureau of Internal Revenue, Public Roads Administration, and Social Security Administration; the three assistants to the Defense Secretary; the general managers of TVA and the Atomic Energy Commission; the FBI director; the REA administrator; the Farm Credit governor, and the Chief Forester of the Forest Service.

A formal report on the District-Foreign Service-Executive pay bill won't be made by the subcommittee to the full committee until Wednesday at the earliest. The death of Senator Broughton (D., N. C.) caused the postponement of today's session. Broughton was the third ranking Democrat on the Civil Service Committee and he was the chairman of a subcommittee which was appointed to examine all Civil Service bills.

PAUL GRIFFITH, a past commander of the American Legion and a former Federal official, is a good bet to be appointed an assistant to Louis Johnson, the new Defense Secretary. Griffith may go back into uniform as a general or else he'll be appointed to a top civilian post.

ICC: Five career men are reported to have been among those recommended to the President to fill the vacancy on Interstate Commerce Commission. They are:

JAMES K. KNUTSON, an Agriculture attorney; HOWARD HOSMER and EDWARD M. READY, both ICC officials; DAVID MATTHEWS of the Justice Department, and ARNE WIPRUD of the Postoffice Department.

OHE: A week ago 30-day lay-off notices were handed out to the 4800 employes in the Housing Expediter's office in something of a jest. No one took the notices seriously as it was taken for granted that rent control would be continued in a day or so.

Then came the Senate filibuster—and now, more determined opposition in the Senate to rent control. Unquestionably OHE will be continued beyond the end of this month—but not before its employes are given a big scare. The agency has barely enough money to pay salaries through March.

RED TAPE: The Agriculture Department is fresh out of it. That's literally true. This is the story:

A board was set up to show the progress of the Red Cross campaign among Agriculture's various bureaus. Red tape was used on the thermometer-like percentage pole. The supply of red tape gave out at 82 per cent. Yesterday the campaign director there began to use green tape to complete the job.

OVERSEAS JOBS: State's Foreign Service is accepting applications for stenographer and clerk-typist jobs in its embassies, legations, and consulates throughout the world. The base pay is $2520, plus allowances. Applicants must be between the ages of 21 and 35. Also, applications from nurses with public health experience are being accepted. These jobs pay $3600 plus allowances. The age range is from 25 to 40.

Applicants should apply in Room 1603 of Temporary H Building, 23d and C sts. nw. Incidentally, if the $330 pay raise for Foreign Service personnel goes through as expected, the above jobs would be covered by it.

GEORGE D. GARNER is the new civilian personnel officer of the Army's Adjutant General's Office. He succeeds the late G. Carroll Dimond. Gardner entered Government as an assistant messenger in 1917. He served as a colonel in AGO during the last war.

EXAMS: Civil Service is accepting applications for two exams—investigator-auditor, $3727, for Farmers Home Administration vacancies, and museum art specialist, $2974 to $8509, to fill vacancies in the National Gallery of Art, Smithsonian Institution, and the National Collection of Fine Arts.

AMC: At the Army Medical Center here a permanent efficiency rating committee has been set up to hear and settle employe appeals. The chairman is William J. Moon and serving with him are Virginia Flora, Charles Smith, Todd F. Shaulis and Capt. William H. Poe.

BACK PAY: An interesting Federal worker decision was handed down yesterday by the U. S. Court of Claims here. The court ordered the Army to pay more than $600 in back pay to David Simon, who, it agreed, was arbitrarily dismissed from his job in 1944. Later the Army laid off Simon according to the rules. Simon was an employe of the U. S. Signal Depot in Philadelphia [illegible] here by [illegible]

Oil Heater Fires Peril 5, Cause 2d Child's Death

Warning on Use Of Portable Stoves Is Issued by Fire Marshal Roberts

A blaze caused by explosion of a portable oil heater endangered the lives of five persons last night as earlier in the day a second death from a similar fire Sunday was recorded.

Last night's blaze also came as Fire Marshal Raymond C. Roberts warned citizens about the dangers of using portable oil heaters carelessly.

Roberts' statement was prompted by the death yesterday morning of Sylvester Gaither, 2, at Providence Hospital from burns received in a blaze at 313 O st., sw., Sunday. The O st. tragedy had previously taken the life of Sylvester's 1-year-old brother, Joseph, and sent 16-month-old twins, Donald and Delores Middleton to Providence Hospital in "very critical" condition.

8 Children at Naps

A fifth child, trapped in the house by flames, was taken to Children's Hospital for observation, while three others escaped injury.

All eight children were said to be taking naps in a second-story bedroom of the two-story brick home when the oil stove flared up, setting the room on fire. Police said one of the children apparently had attempted to light the stove and had tilted it over.

Last night's blaze damaged a downstairs bedroom, burned a hallway of the two-story brick house at 438 New York ave. nw., and sent five occupants fleeing from the house.

Joseph Hall, owner of the house, said a portable oil stove "busted wide open" throwing flaming oil on his shoe and on his wife's dress. They quickly smothered the fire on their clothes and together with their 9-year-old daugher, Helen, made their way out unhurt.

2 Escape Through Window

James Garrett and his wife, Elinor, tenants of an upstairs apartment, had to climb through a window into a neighboring house to escape the thick fumes.

Fire Marshal Roberts said, "The portable oil heaters have always been a source of trouble in the District. There is no way of checking up on them or of controlling them."

"Such stoves are a cheap medium of heat, and until we can offer a substitute stove, which will be just as inexpensive, we can't take away the means of keeping warm," he declared.

Has Facts to Outlaw Oil Stove

"I've made a 10-year study of the number of fires we've had here which were caused by portable oil stoves and I've got the ammunition if the fight ever gets started to outlaw them here. But right now, I can't do anything, except warn the users to keep such stoves away from inflammable materials, away from young children and to always handle them with utmost care," he stated.

To date this year, 11 persons, including the Gaither children, have perished from fires in the District as compared to 17 for the same date last year. Of the 11 fatal fires, 3 were believed caused by cigarettes. Three persons were fatally burned when their clothes ignited while they were standing close to stoves and two died of burns received in a fire caused by a short circuit in a fuse box. One person died in a fire caused by an electric burner.

Arcanum to Honor Supreme Regent

The Grand Council of the Royal Arcanum will join with other local councils in honoring Supreme Regent Edmund A. Kneoppel on March 9 when he makes his first official visit to the District of Columbia jurisdiction.

The meeting will be held at the Fort Dupont Post Hall, 74th st. ne., at 8 p. m. Regent Henry A. Taylor of Oriental Council will be the presiding officer. Medals will be presented to five 50-year veterans of the organization.

House Group Acts

Rent Control Extension, DST Voted

A 15-month extension of District rent control, and another summer of daylight saving time for Washington, were approved yesterday by the House District Committee.

Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) announced the decisions after an executive session. He said the daylight-saving-time bill cleared by a 10-to-9 vote, but at the same time voiced belief that the margin was closer in the committee than it would be in the House. He said there were two votes against the rent bill.

McMillan said both bills were approved as recommended by the District Judiciary Subcommittee headed by Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark).

The one-year daylight-saving-time bill follows the model of the past two years, and differs from the one already passed by the Senate to let the District have daylight saving time every summer by order of the Commissioners and without action of Congress.

The rent-control bill, besides extending the local law from March 31, 1949, to June 30, 1950, would make two major changes in the present act. One would restore controls to housing accomodations which are the result of conversions costing less than $1500. Those costing more would remain free of control. Housing accomodations created by conversions were first taken out of controls here last year.

The second change would add new safeguards for tenants of buildings whose apartments are being sold through a cooperative arrangement. It would require that after March 1, 1949, 65 per cent of tenants in occupancy be members of the cooperative before it could take over. Otherwise tenants would be protected from eviction during the life of the act. Where the coop sale was made befor March 1, 1949, buyers could obtain their apartments through legal evictions.

The committee also approved a bill authorizing the Commissioners to retain less than the present legally fixed 10 per cent of construction contract payments once a project was 50 per cent or more complete. The Commissioners asked for the legislation, saying that the present law required them in some cases to hold back payment of substantial sums for some time after building projects had been finished.

McMillan said he expected the bills to be presented to the House for action during next Monday's District Day program.

Bus Driver Ends Life in Family Row

A 24-year-old Capital Transit bus driver ended his life with a bullet from a foreign-make automatic revolver during a family argument early yesterday.

He was William B. Ford of 732 4th st. ne., who shot himself in the rgiht temple while quarreling with his wife, Mrs. Rosemary Ford, 21, in their second-floor bedroom about 1:30 a. m., police said.

Ford died at Casualty Hospital less than two hours after the shooting. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

Mrs. Ford told police her husband had been drinking before he came home and the quarrel ensued. She said she started to pack her bags as a means of "bluffing" about leaving him and had her back turned when he fired the shot.

The Fords had been married about three years. Police said they have a 19-month-old son and that Mrs. Ford is expecting another child in September.

Residents Protest ABC Application Of Liquor Firm

A group of Northeast residents and representatives of the Eastland Gardens Civic Association appeared before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday to protest application of a liquor firm to transfer its store to a location in their neighborhood.

The application was made by Ridge Liquors, Inc., to move from 87 Florida ave. nw. to 1015 Kenilworth ave. ne. The company has a Class A license for off-sale of all types of liquor.

The neighborhood residents protest it on the grounds that the new store will decrease the value of the property there. Moreover, they pointed out, there are woods right behind the building where the new store would be located. This would be a temptation for purchasers of whisky to get into more trouble, they said. The hearing will be resumed today at 11 a. m.

Freak Accident at Bolling Field . . .

THE WIND DID IT—The pilot of this Beechcraft C-45 was awaiting take-off instructions yesterday at Bolling Field when a gust of wind lifted the tail and plane nosed over. The craft was manned by Lieut. Col. E. C. Hardin, jr., 32, of 1223 S. Taylor st., Arlington and T/Sergt. J. D. McIntyre, 30, of Oklahoma City. Neither crewman was injured but the plane's two engines and propellers were damaged in the unusual accident

Jobless Pay By D. C. Grew 10.1% in '48

Compensation Board Issues Benefit Checks Totalling $3,026,552

Benefit checks totaling $3,026,552 were issued by the District Unemployment Compensation Board in 1948, an increase of 10.1 per cent over the 1947 outlay.

The board also disclosed in its thirteenth annual report issued yesterday that more than 178,500 benefit checks were issued during the year to 13,100 individuals.

The average length of unemployment for each claimant increased from 12 weeks in 1947 to 13½ weeks in 1948. Only in 1940 was the average greater.

The average check issued amounted to $16.94, 50 cents more than the 1947 average.

March was the worst month for unemployment, both in number and amount of payments made. Unemployed to totaled 22,030, to whom $374,661 was paid. November was the quietest month for the UCB. Unemployed totaled 11,752 persons, to whom $199,555 was paid.

In a section on recommendations, the board urged only that "if Federal legislation is passed, immediate steps should be taken" to make the District laws conform."

Forwarded by Director C. A. Wharton for review by the District Commissioners, the report showed that the average number of employes and employing units participating in 1948 increased over 1947.

Contributions due from District employers totaled $2,239,182 during fiscal 1948, a 9.1 per cent increase over fiscal 1947. Taxable wages for fiscal 1948 totaled $478,251,'37, an increase of 6.8 per cent over 1947.

The cost of administering the program decreased by more than $50,000, Wharton said, despite the increased unemployment activity.

Resolution Against Drivers Defeated

The Stanton Park Citizens' Association last night defeated a resolution criticizing Capital Transit operators for discourtesy. Although several instances of discourtesy were cited, a majority of the 23 members present at the meeting in the Peabody School, 5th and C sts. ne., decided that such conduct was not the general rule.

As Deadline Nears

Tax Experts' Aid Sought By Hundreds

Hundreds of Washingtonians filed through the corridors of the Bureau of Internal Revenue yesterday for free advice on their tax problems, as the March 15 deadline for filing Federal income tax returns crept closer.

It was the biggest crowd since the crew of 90 deputy collectors started handing out advice in January. An average of 150 persons stood all during the day in a block-and-a-half-long line outside the Tax Collector's office, Room 1002, 12th and Constitution ave. nw.

A big rush of business was also reported yesterday by District tax collectors, who said about 1200 persons sought advice from a dozen examiners on the first floor of the District building, at 14th and E sts. nw.

District income tax returns are dut April 15.

Tax forms are available at any bank or postoffice and in room 1014 of the Internal Revenue Building.

You must file a Federal income tax return if your gross income was $600 or more in 1948. (This is $100 higher than the 1947 minimum.)

Doctors Hospital Marks 9th Year In Celebration

Doctors hospital, here, yesterday celebrated the ninth anniversary of its opening, and individual birthday cakes were presented its staff and some 250 patients.

The occasion was also marked by start of instructions for 20 nurses' aides, first section of a new 40-member class of Jangos (Junior Army-Navy Guild Organization Services).

For display in the hospital lobby, a four by two-foot high replica of the hospital was erected in spun sugar by the hospital's chef, Joseph Mallett.

Cards distributed to patients with the birthday cake listed hospital accomplishments since its start. These included care of 63,772 patients, delivery of 12,792 babies, and performance of more than 42,000 surgical operations in its nine operating rooms.

3 Assailants Of Cab Driver Go to Prison

Prescott Tells Them They Are Lucky to Be Standing Trial

Three youths, all 19 years old, drew prison terms yesterday for their part in an assault-robbery termed by Montgomery County Circuit Judge Stedman Prescott "one of the ugliest crimes that has ever come to my attention."

The defendants were Pvts. John J. McCabe and Michael Vurchio, both of Fort Myer, and Arthur Zamora, a former soldier whose home is in Los Angeles. They were given terms in the Maryland Reformatory ranging from 26 to 29 months for assaulting and robbing Louis Grasso, a District cab driver, near Forest Glen, Md., last July. All pleaded guilty.

Judge Prescott told them: "The fact that you not only robbed this man and beat him into unconsciousness, but then added insult to injury by urinating on him as he lay helpless, makes this one of the ugliest crimes that has ever come to my attention."

"Perhaps," the jurist added, "you're lucky that you're here standing trial. I know of many an American who would want to avenge himself in a case of this kind without waiting for the law to take its course."

Grasso, who lives at 1274 Meigs st. ne., had testified at an earlier hearing that he had lost several teeth and suffered several broken ribs as a result of the beating.

The term imposed in each case was 2½ years, with credit given for the time the men already have spent in jail.

Also sentenced yesterday was Louis Watkins, a laborer, who had pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the rifle death of William L. Diggs, 44, during a drinking party near Rockville last November. He drew a term of seven years in the Maryland Penitentiary.

Correction

Mrs. Ramona Hunter, writer of the radio serial "Portia Faces Life," who was reported in the March 5 edition of The Washington Post as having been granted a divorce, is a resident of New York City. The item in The Post did not mention her place of residence, causing confusion in identity with a Washington resident of the same name.

To Reach Low-Income Group

Birth Control Clinics Urged

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Establishment of birth control, sterility and marriage counseling clinics in all Washington nonprofit hospitals was advocated here yesterday—by a Baltimore obstetrician.

Such impetus to the planned parenthood movement, said Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher, could be promoted here more readily than in his own "more conservative" city.

And until such service is freely available to persons in low-income groups, he said, "planned parenthood will continue to be a rank class privilege for those who can afford the fees of private physicians."

Besides the hospital clinics, Dr. Guttmacher urged that planned parenthood work eventually be taken over by State health departments.

Dr. Guttmacher, associate professor of obstetrics at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine and chief obstetrician at Sinai Hospital, in Baltimore, spoke at the annual meeting of the Planned Parenthood Association of the District of Columbia.

Commenting of the difference of attitudes between Baltimore and Washington, he declared:

"I'm afraid my own city fathers, and some of our bishops, would be quite shocked if we attempted to give (birth control) counsel to unmarried women, as your officials report you do."

He referred to a previous report at the same meeting in which Dr. Walter Stokes, head of the organization's medical advisory board, said such service was available at the association's clinic, 715 E st. sw., to "cases referred to us by the various health organizations."

Dr. Anna Rand, medical staff head, explained that the service, generally, is given to women who live in common-law marriage and have given birth to one or more children.

"We feel that they need and are entitled to this help if they want it," she declared.

Dr. Rand said it was "certainly not done on a wholesale basis, and never for mental defectives or prostitutes."

Dr. Rand, in her own report, disclosed that during the past year 1463 persons took advantage of the local organization's child spacing service, and 108 registered with the infertility service program. Nine pregnancies were attained during the year among those who sought guidance of the infertility program, she reported.

Association officers, elected yesterday, are Mrs. B. Lowndes Jackson 3d, president, succeeding Mrs. Montgomery Blair; Mrs. M. A. Selinger, vice president; Mrs. E. R. Finkenstaedt, secretary, and Mrs. Henry King, reelected treasurer.

Approximately 100 members, including about 10 men, attended yesterday's annual luncheon meetiong at Barker Hall, YWCA Building, 17th and K sts. nw.

Attorney General Pleads for More District Judges

Hospital Case

Fund Theft Is Linked to Gambling

Most of the $40,000 embezzled from the Columbia Hospital for Women went to cover gambling losses incurred at Jimmie La Fontaine's establishment, it was charged yesterday.

Indicted on charges of embezzlement of the money was Frank K. Jenkins, 35, of 8341 Colesville rd., Silver Spring, Md. The District grand jury charged the embezzlement went on at the hospital in 1948 and 1949.

Police quoted Jenkins as saying the bulk of the money went to pay his gambling debts at "Jimmie's" at the District line off Bladensburg rd. ne. The house there is now closed.

Suit Discussed

Col. John McDiarmid, administrator at the hospital, said the possibility of suing the gambling house "has been discussed."

Statutes here and in Maryland give the right to losers in gambling transactions to sue for their losses.

Police have a letter in which Jenkins allegedly confessed in full to McDiarmid. Jenkins, who is out on bond pending arraignment on Friday, was quoted as saying he wanted to vindicate his family and hospital employes. The letter concluded:

"At the time of the reading of this letter I will be dead. I desire no sympathy and ask for none. Be considerate of those who must suffer."

Woman Indicted in Theft

The mother of a 15-year-old schoolboy accused of burglary of $3600 in jewelry and radios from a Boomtown, Md., store was indicted on a charge of criminally receiving $1585 of the stolen property. She is Mrs. Vanlear P. Robey, 40, 668 B st. se.

Indicted on the same offense was Orville Kerbur, 44, 668 B st. se., whom police described as her common-law husband.

John J. Bruno, 38, and James T. Skeens, 27, of Baltimore, were indicted on charges of assault with dangerous weapons and illegal possession of the weapons.

The indictment grew out of a shooting February 15 on the sidewalk in front of 913 9th st. nw. Police said its origin was over debts in a crap game that had taken place earlier at the Mayflower and Ambassador Hotels.

Harold S. Russell, 54, of Arlington, was charged with misrepresenting himself as a United States Senator to get Philip S. Helig of 3207 Mst. nw. to cash a worthless $500 check.

James Taylor, 36, of 3620 N st. nw., was charged with taking indecent liberties with his 8 and 10 year old daughters.

Jesse L. Mason, 24, of 2522 13th st. nw., was charged with having carnal relations with a 6-year-old girl.

Thieves Enter Two Schools And Church

Two public schools and a church were entered over the weekend, with the thieves getting about $25, police reported yesterday.

From the cafeteria of Randall Junior High School, First and I sts. sw., thieves took 48 forks, 36 knives, 60 teaspoons and 60 soupspoons, Elizabeth Simms, manager, reported. Entrance was through a basement window.

Four boxes of assorted candies and 50 cents were taken from candy cabinets in the Webb School, 15th and Rosedale sts. ne., after thieves broke into the school through a side door, according to George C. Campbell, principal.

"An unsuccessful attempt to force open the safe in the office of the Church of the Reformation, 212 E. Capitol st., was made some time early yesterday, police said. The lock on a rear door was forced and the offices were ransacked.

District Polio Chapter Elects Elwood H. Seal

Elwood H. Seal, former Corporation Counsel for the District now engaged in private law practice, last night was elected chairman of the District of Columbia Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The following officers were reelected: Vice chairman, Ford E. Young; treasurer, Robert V. Fleming; assistant treasurer, John M. Christie, and secretary, Albert W. Howard.

Miss Sarah E. Wilson was reappointed executive secretary.

The annual report of the chapter for 1948, given at the election meeting, showed an expenditure of $93,494.32 to provide care and treatment for 279 polio victims. This figure is an increase of 135 cases over the 112 cases reported during 1947.

Clerk Says Courts Should Be Example For Whole Nation In Their Efficiency

Attorney General Tom Clark yesterday made a personal plea for additional Judges on the District Court bench, declaring it "imperative" in the interest of "swift justice."

Clark was testifying before a House Judiciary Subcommittee on bills authorizing three more judges for District Court and two additional jurists for the United States Court of Appeals.

The Attorney General also urged House committee approval of some 20 other pending bills to increase the number of Federal Circuit and District judges throughout the country.

Singling out staff inadequacies in District Court, Clark emphasized that "swift" justice should be obtained here as an example to the rest of the country and "to the world that democratic processes are working."

Statistics Given

"Courts here are the most important in the entire Federal system from the Government viewpoint," said Clark, "because legal action involving the Government is filed here."

"It is therefore imperative that the court be provided with an adequate staff of judges. The present staff of 12 judges, despite splendid organization of their work and great efforts on the part of the individual judges, is wholly inadequate."

Clark supported his appeal for additional judges here with these statistics:

In 1944, each District judge carried a 372.2 caseload, as against last year when the load jumped to 540 per judge, or more than a 45 per cent increase. This represents twice the average caseload throughout the Nation.

For the five years immediately preceding 1938, there were 7350 cases on an average filed each year, while for the past five years the average has increased to 9233 cases, or 25 per cent.

Justice Laws' Praised

The Attorney General praised Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws' actions in stepping up disposition of criminal cases here, stating that 85 per cent of all criminal cases are heard four weeks after indictment.

"A tremendous increase in civil litigation is causing the court congestion everywhere in the court system," said Clark. He pointed out that District Court is unique because divorce, probate and other cases, normally handled in other courts in the States, come to the Federal courts here.

Chief Judge Harold M. Stephens of the Appeals Court and John J. Carmody, former president of the District Bar Association, and probably Chief Justice Laws of District Court, are expected to testify Wednesday when subcommittee hearings will resume.

Bar Association Polls on Bench Vacancy

The District Bar Association began polling its membership yesterday for nominations for the successor to the late Judge John P. McMahon of Municipal Court.

The membership will be given five days to submit candidates to the committee on judicial selections, according to Chairman Walter M. Bastian.

Meanwhile, the bar group announced, the Attorney General has declared he will withhold recommendation of his choice to the President until the bar association submits its nomination.

Husband Pays 'Fine' To Wife for Blow

Municipal Court Judge Armond W. Scott yesterday ordered James M. Booze, 28, to pay a $25 "fine" to his wife, Betty, 26, for blacking her eye during a quarrel February 28.

After Judge Scott had found Booze guilty of striking his wife in their home at 32 16th st. se., the wife pleaded that if her husband was sent to jail or fined she and her two children would suffer.

"Well, I guess you need it more than the District does," said Judge Scott. "I see that your husband has posted $25 collateral. I was going to fine him $25, but instead I will turn him loose on his personal bond, and I will send a deputy marshal down to make sure that he pays the $25 to you."

In the financial clerk's office, a deputy marshal watched as Booze collected his $25 and handed it over to his wife.

Clerk Wins National Prize

Margaret Rafferty, a Washington cosmetic clerk, today was named winner of first prize in a Nationwide sales suggestion contest sponsored by the Toni Co. of Chicago. The contest was open to more than 50,000 salespersons throughout the country.

For her suggestion, Miss Rafferty will receive a $100 Savings Bond. She is employed by the Whelan Drug Store at 1401 H st. nw. She has been with the Whelan chain since 1940, starting in their Parkersburg, W. Va., store.

Two Motorists Fined

Two motorists were fined $100 each yesterday in Municipal Court for driving while drunk. They are Frank E. McCord, 43, of 20 Quincy pl. nw., and Irven F. Viands, 34, of 4055 Forest Lane, Falls Church, Va.

Suit Over False Teeth

A set of false teeth figured yesterday in the filing of a $625 suit in Municipal Court. The action was entered by Orille C. Gaudette, an attorney, against Dr. Morton D. Finn, a dentist, of 1835 I st. nw. According to the action, Gaudette's uppers and lowers were wrongfully taken by the dentist who claims a $100 fee is due him.

Books Memorial Gift

Columbia Technical Institute has received 75 technical volumes on civil engineering as a memorial gift from Mrs. H. M. Patton, 1704 N. Uhle st., Arlington, in honor of her husband, the late Commander Horace M. Patton, USNR, the institute announced yesterday.

Court Ruling Returns $642.09 To U. S. Worker

A Civil Service employe who is separated from the service in violation of Civil Service regulations and later reinstated, is entitled to recover his salary for the period of separation, the United States Court of Claims ruled yesterday.

In the case of Daniel Simon versus the United States, the court awarded Simon, a former historical clerk at the Philadelphia Signal Depot, $642.09 for his period of unemployment following dismissal when his position of historical clerk was abolished.

The court ruled that abolition of a position does not necessarily mean that the services of the incumbent of the position be terminated automatically and therefore his dismissal was not in accord with the regulations governing the "firing" of employes when reductions in force are effected in an

Citizens Group Seeks Police Aid

Kenilworth Citizens Association last night voted to ask Fourteenth Precinct Captain William T. Murphy for more police protection for Kenilworth Elementary School children during play periods on the school's playground and on area streets.

Mrs. Mabel Hubbel, association secretary, said the students have been "attacked by Negroes while on the playground" and while en route to and from home and school.

The association's letter to Captain Murphy, Mrs. Hubbel said, will request an investigation, together with further police protection.

At last night's meeting in the Kenilworth Recreation Center, Kenilworth ave. and L st. ne., members discussed recommendation that Commissioner John Russell Young be reappointed to the Board of Commissioners when his term expires May 17, but tabled action for further consideration.

The group indorsed Herbert P. Leeman, a District lawyer and past president of the District Society of Natives, to fill the District Municipal Court judgeship vacated by death of Judge John P. McMahon.

Where Bread Sells for 8 Cents a Loaf . . .

The Washington Post

OVER THE COUNTER—Willis Gregory, 35, Herald Harbor, Md., stops to take home five loaves of bread which cost 8 cents each at the O'Henry Bakery, 3923 Bladensburg rd. ne., in Colmar Manor, Md. Gregory works in D. C. as upholsterer. Betty Schlorb, 16, 3408 42d ave., Colmar Manor, is shown waiting her turn to buy from Henry Streicher, 37, 3953 1st st. nw. (right) owner of the bakery

Bequests Left To College And Church

Michael J. O'Donoghue, 84, retired filling station operator who died last February 6, left an estate of $154,892.

This was disclosed yesterday when a petition for probate of his will was filed in District Court.

O'Donoghue, who lived at 1823 North Capitol st., executed the will on December 9, 1948. It lists $94,373 in real estate and $60,519 in personal property.

The will leave $5000 to the pastor of St. Aloysius Church to pay for masses for the souls of O'Donoghue and deceased members of his family. The church also receives a bequest of $6000.

Woodstock College at Woodstock, Md., is to receive $5000 immediately for "propagation of the faith."

Two sisters, Julia and Ellen O'Donoghue of the North Capitol st. address, will get a life income from a $67,400 trust fund. After their deaths, the $67,400 will go to Woodstock College.

The rest of the estate is distributed among relatives.

Baker Slices Price of Bread To 8 Cents

Henry Streicher is casting 8-cent loaves of bread upon the sea of high prices.

The gesture is bringing a wave of new business into his Colmar Manor bakery.

"I've gotten sick of paying high prices myself," explains Streicher.

So he cut the price of sliced, wrapped white bread from 14 cents to 8 cents.

"You can call it one man's protest against inflation," says the coproprietor of the O. Henry Bakery, 3923 Bladensburg rd. "It's also an invitation for goodwill."

Streicher, stubby and 37, has a blond hairline fast receding as the cost woes of running a soda fountain, delicatessen and restaurant, as well as bakery continue to advance.

He's hoping his slicing of bread prices will prove to retailers in other lines the blessings of increased business through decreased tariffs.

His white bread business has tripled since Friday night, when he dreamed up the slash. He has had to limit sales of white bread five loaves to a customer.

Incidentally, the customers just don't believe it. Fearfully, suspiciously, they pointedly inquire:

"Is it stale? . . . Why do you sell it so cheap? . . . How can you make money that way? . . . What IS the matter with the bread? . . .

Mrs. Fanny H. Quarles

Staunton, Va., Feb. 7 (AP).—Mrs. Fanny Harrison Quarles, wife of Judge James Quarles, died here Sunday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Clarke Worthington. Mrs. Quarles was the daughter of the late Judge George M. Harrison, of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals, and the late Mrs. Betty Kent Harrison.

Born in Staunton, Mrs. Quarles lived here until her marriage in 1898 when she moved to Louisville, Ky., her husband's home. She resided in Louisville for many years and subsequently in Milwaukee, Wis., and Washington, D. C. She had made her home in Staunton since 1938.

Surviving, besides her husband and sister, are two daughters, Miss Caroline F. Quarles and Mrs. Alexander F. Robertson, jr.; two grandsons, James Agnew and Thomas A. Agnew, all of Staunton, and a brother, J. Kent Harrison, of Butler, Pa.

A native of Roanoke, Va., he served in both world wars. He was chief of medical service at a Phoenix (Ariz.) camp for German prisoners in World War II.

Al Bernard

New York, March 6 (AP).—Al Bernard, 61-year-old radio performer, who made a recording of the "St. Louis Blues," in 1919 with inventor Thomas E. Edison, died today. Bernard came to New York in 1919 as one of the last of the traveling ministrels.

Charles H. Longfield

Clearwater, Fla., March 7 (AP).—Charles Henry Longfield, 56, vice president of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., Youngstown, Ohio, died at a hotel here early today. He arrived for a winter vacation three days ago.

Four Business Buildings Swept By Fire in Luray

Luray, Va., March 7 (AP).—Four two-story frame business establishments were gutted by fire tonight on East Main st.

Robert Keyser, a Luray attorney, said a dry goods store, an auto store, a radio shop and a storage and warehouse were all destroyed in the blaze which swept most of the block. The alarm was sounded about 7 p. m. (EST).

Firemen called departments at Berryville, Front Royal, Shenandoah and New Market to aid in extinguishing the flames which at times shot 150 feet high.

The fire was brought under control about an hour and a half later. No injuries were reported.

The buildings destroyed included a storage warehouse of the Northern Virginia Power Co.

16 Senators To Attend Rites For Broughton

Sixteen Senators will represent the senior legislative body at the funeral services of their late colleague, Senator Melville J. Broughton (D., N. C.), in Raleigh this afternoon.

Broughton died at Bethesda Naval Hospital Sunday, almost two months after he first was treated for a heart ailment by the congressional physician, and only one day before he was to have made his first Senate speech.

Dr. George W. Calver revealed today he had treated Senator Broughton for two heart murmurs, and that only "indomitable will" had kept him alive.

The Senate recessed out of respect to Senator Broughton after a half-hour session devoted almost wholly to tributes to the 60-year-old former Governor, who was serving the first year of his first term in the Senate.

Vice President Barkley announced that the following Senators would represent the Senate at the 3 p. m. funeral services at the Tabernacle Baptist Church in Raleigh:

Clyde R. Hoey (D., N. C.), Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill), Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.), John L. McClelland (D., Ark.), Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.), John C. Stennis (D., Miss.), Robert S. Kerr (D., Okla.), Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.), Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.), Edward J. Thye (R., Minn.), James P. Kem (R., Mo.), and Forrest C. Donnel (R., Mo.).

Senator Broughton's body will lie in state in the Capitol Rotunda at Raleigh before the funeral.

William F. Collins

Pittsburgh, March 7 (AP).—William French Collins, 77, retired banking consultant and foreign correspondent, died today.

Born in Rutland, Vt., Collins began his newspaper career on the Springfield (Mass.) Republican in 1894. He later served in executive capacities on the Worcester (Mass.) Evening Gazette, the Hartford (Conn.) Courant, and the Newark (N. J.) Evening News. He served as a war and foreign correspondent in World War I.

In 1919 he became secretary of the commerce and marine commissions of the American Bankers Association, starting a career as banking analyst and economist.

Traffic Death Of Child to Be Ruled Accidental

A certificate of accidental death will be issued today in the death of James Grover Pearson, 8, of 3601 O st. nw., who was killed Sunday evening when struck by an automobile in front of 3611 O st. nw., Coroner A. Magruder McDonald said yesterday.

As a result of the coroner's decision a technical charge of "hold for action of the coroner" was dismissed against the driver of the car, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Moody, 65, of 3416 Porter st. nw., police said.

Police said the child, apparently on his way to join some other children playing across the street, dashed out from behind parked cars into the path of Mrs. Moody's auto. He was pronounced dead on the scene.

Mrs. Moody was charged with driving with an expired District driver's permit and was released in the custody of her attorney for appearance at a Municipal Court hearing March 17.

Virginia Rites Scheduled for Mrs. Marcey

Funeral services for Mrs. Nora Muir Marcey, 82, mother of a former captain of the White House police, will be held at 10 a. m. Wednesday in St. Agnes Church, Cherrydale, Va. Burial will be in St. James Cemetery, Falls Church.

Mrs. Marcey

Mrs. Marcey had been suffering from high blood pressure for the past two years. She died of a heart attack Sunday at her home, 2029 N. Kenmore st., Arlington.

Born of a Scottish father and an Irish mother in Maryland, Mrs. Marcey moved to Arlington at the age of 17 and lived there until her death. Besides raising a family of three children, she was a nurse for 35 years until her retirement 20 years ago.

Her son, Herbert L. Marcey, 1817 Queen's la., Arlington, was captain of the White House police from 1940 to 1946. His 24-year career included service under the Harding, Coolidge, Hoover, Roosevelt and Truman Administrations. He is now employed by the Hamilton National Bank.

Mrs. Marcey's husband, Samuel Marcey, a farmer and foreman of a stone quarry, was killed in a quarry cave-in near Chain Bridge on January 5, 1898.

Besides her son, Herbert, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. Nettie M. Branson, with whom she lived; another son, Lawrence Marcey, Walkers Chapel, Arlington, and a brother, William J. Muir, 1002 K st. ne.

Jack Nichols Reburial Set In Oklahoma

Reburial services for former Representative Jack Nichols, Democrat of Eufaula, Okla., who died in an airplane crash in Asmara, Eritrea, on November 5, 1945, will be held Sunday in Eufaula. Burial will be in the family plot there.

Mr. Nichols

One-time member of the House District Affairs Committee, Jack Nichols resigned from Congress July 3, 1943, to accept a vice presidency in the Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., and was on a company mission in Africa when he was killed. He was buried in an American cemetery in Cairo.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Marian E. Nichols; a son, Dan; and a daughter, Jean, all of Eufaula, Okla., who had lived with him here at the Marlyn Apartments; three sisters, Mrs. Chleo Nichols Spencer, 2802 Wisconsin ave. nw., a past president of the Democratic Women's National Council; Mrs. George Payton of Joplin, Mo., and Mrs. N. M. Flatt, of Colorado Springs, Colo.; and three brothers, Clark Nichols, 2720 Wisconsin ave. nw., an attorney with the Federal Trade Commission; Waldo Nichols, 4633 S. 4th st., Arlington., owner of the Arlington Yellow Taxicab Co., and George E. Nichols, of Los Angeles, Calif.

Mechanic

Glenn Bond, 23, of 307 Carroll ave., Silver Spring, was treated at Washington Sanitarium for burns of the hands and face, suffered when a container of gasoline was ignited seconds after the fire broke out, according to Silver Spring fire officials.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined. Damage was confined to the ceiling of the shop and flooring on the second floor of the two-story building.

A mechanic was painfully burned yesterday in a flash fire which swept the repair shop of the Capital Motor Co. in Silver Spring, Md., causing damage estimated at $3000.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Long Suppressed by Husband's Decree, Wife Breaks Out of Social Isolation by Starting Gym Class for Other Mothers; Now He's Wild

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Jud is 41, I am 29, we have been married 11 years and have three children. Jud had been married before and was a drunk until the night we married, but he hasn't touched a drop since. He loves his children but doesn't treat me as a human being.

If I enjoy anything he finds fault with it; and thinks I should always be home unless he goes with me. During the war I stayed home night and day for four years, while he did defense work. Now we have a small business that takes most of his time, and since last August he has been a law enforcement officer, which calls for lots of night work and sometimes he is out until 4 a. m. One night a week we go to the movies to see a picture he likes.

This year I started attending monthly meetings of the Parent-Teacher Association, and because I loved athletics as a girl, I suggested a mothers' athletic club, and was urged to organize one, which I did. We met in the school gymnasium one night a week, from 7 to 9 p. m., for exercise and recreation—and the ladies love it. They seem as starved for clean fun as I am.

Husband Exploded After Fourth Class

JUD SHOWED his displeasure from the start, in many indirect ways, wasn't cooperative about staying with the children, and I took them with me to the third meeting—when he had business across town. The children sat and watched our games, then we had a round of cokes before coming home—and for days Jud acted as if I had committed a sin.

This week, after the fourth meeting, he blew up. He said I never should have started the club; that it was just an excuse to "run around"; that most of the ladies were "no good So-and-So's"; that my reputation had been good so far, but it wouldn't be good for long; and that if I wasn't satisfied to stay home and tend the children I had better "get out."

You don't know how this hurt me. For 11 years I've had to beg and fight for every scrap of "equal rights" I've got; and do I have to fight now for a little decent fun, or should I pack and go? I think of my children and what a broken home might do to them; but is this a good home? I believe God means us to enjoy life; but should I just give up and kill myself with work? Please advise.

E. C.

Trouble's With Man; He Detests Himself

DEAR E. C.: Jud's problem is this: away down deep, he doesn't think much of himself. He doesn't feel himself to be the equal of other people. In ordinary social situations he feels himself to be a flop, and this self-damning notion was ingrained by his childhood history, of course, and drove him to drink at an early age, in quest of "nerve tonic."

He is afraid of human competition, such as healthy natures take in stride; and to avoid it he aims to be top-dog or high mogul in whatever roles he undertakes—the fellow who is "boss," whose word is "law," who treats others as puppets and demands that they "take it."

Everything you say about him bears this out. He heads his own small business, has become a law enforcement officer, shuns normal social life, and has tried to isolate you from all adult company (save his) from the time you married him. You are the victim of his abiding fear of losing ground in the eyes of those whose favor he craves, if he permits comparison between himself and average folk in situations where everybody mingles on a "par" basis.

Doesn't Feel Equal to Good Wife He Won

JUD KNOWS you are a treasure, a person whom everyone must admire for her outstanding fine qualities, gallant conduct and sweet nature; and he gave up drink because of you, partly due to respect for your worth, also because he knew alcoholism would hang him with you. But at heart he has never felt equal to the prize he won; and to hold you he has tried to keep you locked up, tried to hide your light under a bushel, except when taking you out on leash.

In all probability your expansive friendliness drew Jud in the first place, because he wanted that sunshine in his dank existence; and of course he needs exercise in neighborly fellowship as much as you do, preferably in ways that knit you closely together in companionship,—but he's afraid to open the door to it, for reasons aforementioned.

Jud's present stand is bad for the children. It denies them the moral safeguard of a happy home, and if his attitude forces you out, he will be the author of any harm done them by divorce. His attack on the innocent gym classes is downright wicked, in my opinion; and in writing mostly at him, my aim is to open his eyes to his error, in the hope that he may correct it in time, for the good of the whole family.

No One Liquid Will Remove Every Stain

What you use to take out a spot on clothes depends on what made the spot, says the Woman's Home Companion. However, there are a few general rules which apply to all types of stains:

First household investment should be a good all-purpose cleaner because it contains a solvent for grease. Next step in spot removal is to determine the cause of the spot. Third step is to go into action as soon as possible, before the spot can "set." An important step in spot removal is to always use a clean bath towel or similar pad under the fabric to help absorb part of the stain.

If it's an ice cream stain you want to remove from Johnny's party coat here is the procedure: First wipe the excess ice cream from the fabric, then apply cleaning fluid sparingly. A brisk cleaning with soapy water follows the cleaning fluid and then a final rinsing with clear water.

REPRESENTATIVE KATHARINE ST. GEORGE (R., N. Y.), is greeted by Miss Betty Ann Paisley, president of the George Washington University Chapter of the Mortar Board, honorary society for senior girls. Mrs. St. George spoke on "Marriage and a Career" last evening at the Mortar Board's fourth annual Career Conference held in Government Hall. With the Mortar Board president and the speaker are the Misses Jane Shanks (left) and Nancy Groves (second from the right), members of the Mortar Board who presided over special sessions of last evening's conference

Advice From Rep. St. George

Mother's Career Should Come After Child Is 10, Students Told

REPRESENTATIVE Katharine St. George recommends that women wait for an active career until their children have reached the age of 10. The New York Representative made her suggestion in a talk to women students at George Washington University last evening.

The audience also included a number of high school students invited to attend the Mortar Board's fourth annual career conference at Government Hall. They were advised by the Congresswoman from New York to take their place in the world of work, but only after they have given their children a proper amount of mother's care and "especially love and affection . . . during the first formative years of a child's life.

"If we sacrifice our children's infant years to any career, no matter how successful and useful, we are doing them and ourselves an irreparable injustice," Representative St. George said. "However," she continued, "in a very few short years this part of our lives is over and we must have the courage and intelligence to untie the apron strings, to let these children of ours stand on their own feet and to strike out and have lives and careers of their own."

'Mom' Complex

Women will be doing their country a great service this way, according to Mrs. St. George, because "one of the curses of life in the United States is "Momism" . . . with the mother complex and mother fixation that are bad for the mother and ruinous for the child."

It is only a question of time and education she feels until all men will be satisfied to let their wives have careers if they want them and are qualified.

The great danger in reconciling marriage and a career comes when women exaggerate the importance of their work, declared Mrs. St. George. "They talk shop continuously . . . It is well to say to oneself that however fascinating our work may be to us, it may be uninteresting and actually boring to most people," the Congresswoman continued.

"We should teach our children and ourselves . . . that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, and it also makes Jill a very dull girl," Mrs. St. George concluded.

Hear From Experts

Following Mrs. St. George's address, the audience split up into 10 groups for special sessions with experts in particular fields.

Among the speakers at the special sessions were Jane Watson Crane, art editor of The Washington Post, discussing careers for art majors; Vi Sutton, chief of welfare and counseling at Hecht's, who discussed advertising, fashion and department store work; Margaret Kiser, education specialist, Pan American Union, who explained careers for language majors; Volna Curry of Mount Vernon Seminary, talking on possible uses of physical education training; Helen Morrill Wolfe, head of placement service of the American Psychological Association, talking on personnel, mental hygiene and social work; Mildred Winston, United Lutheran Church Board of Education, who explained the opportunities in the world spiritual community for teachers, nurses, social workers; Dr. Catherine Birch, discussing opportunities in the biological and medical sciences; Lee Bielski, George Washington University Speech Department, who pointed out the careers in speech training and correction; Bess Schreiner, Theater Guild, who talked to the students interested in theater, television and radio, and Helen Denison, State Department, who dealt with foreign affairs work.

Dinner Honors Gen. Reyes

A DINNER was given last evening by the Argentine Ambassador, Jeronimo Remorino, to say farewell to Brig. Ben. and eSnora de Reyes. Brigadier Reyes has served in Washington as chief of the Argentine Aeronautical Delegation to the Inter-American Defense Board. With Senora de Reyes, he is leaving Washington in a few days for New York, whence he will sail for home on the SS Argentina.

Last evening's dinner guests included Gen. and Senora de Lopez, the Argentine Air Attache and Senora de Hermansson; the Argentine Counselor, Carlos A. Quiros; the Naval Attache and Senora de Rumbo, and the Assistant Military Attache, Col. Julio A. Maglio.

LOOKING over the program of the Adas Israel Sisterhood golden anniversary donor luncheon at the Mayflower yesterday are (left to right) Mrs. Philip Goldstein, luncheon chairman; Mrs. Eliahu Elath, wife of the first ambassador to the United States from Israel; Rabbi Israel M. Adas Israel Sisterhood Marks Anniversary

The Adas Israel Sisterhood celebrated its golden anniversary at a donor luncheon yesterday in the Mayflower Hotel. The $3500 raised at the luncheon will go to the organization's educational, philanthropic and social programs.

Rabbi Israel M. Goldman, spiritual leader of the Chizuk Amuno Congregation of Baltimore, spoke on "Seeing the Invisible." The eye of the spirit can see what the eye of the physical cannot, he said in reference to the dream of a Jewish state, Israel, which is now a reality.

The 50-year growth of the sisterhood has paralleled the two other movements in Jewish life, he said; the growth of the American Jewish community and the growth of Zionism.

"American Judaism stands as a mighty structure today," Rabbi Goldman said, comparing the 250,000 Jews in America in 1880 to the five million here today. He termed the Jewish religion today as "conservative Judaism" in which the American Jew has criticized the orthodoxy of the past and rediscovered "the gem of Judaism."

Commending the Jewish women for "the decisive and important role" they played in these two movements, he especially paid tribute to the woman Zionist leader, Henrietta Szold.

Rabbi Goldman urged the sisterhood to study the past, but not to stop there. "Make the past serve you," he stated, "and go on to greater achievements for American Judaism and to happier Jewish living."

Mrs. Meyer Goldberg, president of the sisterhood, foresaw the "easing up of problems in this country through the formation of Israel." Mrs. Philip Goldstein was the chairman of the luncheon.

Miss Mullan to Head Junior Service Society

Miss Joanne Mullan, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. William E. Mullan, USN, was recently elected president of Tau Omicron Phi, national Army, Navy Junior Sorority. She succeeds Miss Betty Caldwell.

The other new officers include Miss Dorothy Bearcle, vice president-corresponding secretary; Miss Florence Leman, recording secretary; Miss Ruth Cooper, treasurer, and Miss Beverly Harris, pledge mistress.

Democratic, G. O. P. Clubs Hear Labor Law Attacked, Defended

By Genevieve Reynolds

TWO CAPITOL HILL Senators yesterday gave the pros and cons on Taft-Hartley Law repeal to distaff members of their respective political parties.

In a morning address before the members of the D. C. League of Republican Women, Senator Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.) defended the Taft-Hartley Law and opposed its repeal by the Eighty-First Congress.

Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.) attacked the Taft-Hartley law and supported the Administration's pending bill to abolish it, in a luncheon speech at the Woman's National Democratic Club.

The Admanistration bill reported out of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee over the opposition of GOP members by a vote of eight to five, was described by Senator Donnell as having these major provisions: (1) Repeal of the Taft-Hartley law; (2) reenactment of the Wagner Act; (3) reenactment of unjustifiable boycotts; (4) placing the Labor Mediation and Conciliation Board back under the Labor Department.

Challenges Clark

Senator Donnell contended that to return the Mediation and Conciliation Board to the Labor Department would destroy its objectivity and fairness. At the same time, he challenged Attorney General Tom Clark's statement that the President had inherent powers to prevent emergency strikes threatening the Nation's public welfare.

"There is no provision in the new bill granting the President power to settle strikes threatening the Nation's welfare," asserted Senator Donnell. "And I doubt the inherent power of the President to act in an emergency strike as outlined by Attorney General Clark," he continued.

The Thomas or Administration Bill repeals the right of management's freedom of speech and restores the secondary boycott as well as the closed shop, concluded the Senator, predicting, "There will be a heavy vote on the labor bill which will maintain in law some of the Taft-Hartley provisions."

Defends Wagner Act

Defending the Wagner Act, Senator Douglas told the Democratic Women that it is the most simple law ever written; that its main provisions stipulated that an employer should not coerce or fire a man because he joined a union and that if the majority of workers in a fair election voted to have a certain union bargain for them, the employer must do so.

"The Wagner Act aimed to produce a marriage between union and employers, but didn't work out the details," he explained. "Passage of the act led to a large increase in unionism."

Asserting that the Wagner Act is one of the greatest acts of all times, the Illinois Senator averred, "It will stand. People who were sniping at it never could get at it under a Democratic Congress. But the Republicans axed it when they put through the Taft-Hartley Act."

Senator Douglas said that he did not object to the Taft-Hartley law's provision for an 80-day cooling-off period of workers before striking, but that he objected to the fact that the Labor Relations Board can't make recommendations following its fact-finding survey.

"The board can conduct a referendum among workers to see if they will accept management's last offer as the eightieth day approaches," he explained. "There's no provision, however, for management to hold a referendum to see if it will accept the workers' last offer on pay raises.

Asked his opinion on the closed shop issue in the Thomas bill, Senator Douglas replied, "closed shop for unions is a debatable issue I don't think you can justify both a closed shop and a closed union in the interest of society."

Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington, league president, presided at the organization's morning session. Mrs. William S. Culbertson, chairman of the nominating committee, reported that Mrs. Carroll Kearns, wife of the Pennsylvania Representative, had been nominated for the presidency of the league.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman presided at the Democratic Club's gathering and introduced Senator Douglas.

Capital Finds Meredith As Informal as the Heroes Of His Own Documentaries

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

BURGESS MEREDITH, who's been staying with the Francis Biddles, dropped in from Paris to attend the British Information Services' showing last night of his documentary film, "A Yank Comes Back." It is the third film achieved by Meredith in dual actor-director capacity, and follow-up of his first wartime picture "Welcome to Britain."

In England last year, starring in a British-made movie "Mine Own Executioner," he was much moved by Britain's tough postwar rehabilitation struggle. Asked by the Central Office Information to dream up another documentary, he decided to recreate the first film's Yank hero on a return visit to his British wartime buddy.

The Meredith effort is purposely mock-amateur, not intended as a slick, expensive production He had absorbed sufficient postwar atmosphere in the six-month toil on "Mine Own Executioner" to line up the picture in three, shoot it in 11 days. Now the picture's done, he's afraid of a too fancy presentation, having it shown indiscriminately in this country since it's beamed entirely for British home consumption.

The first Meredith documentary, "Welcome to Britain" was made in anticipation of the descent of some three million GIs on that tight little island. An orientation film, it started off with Meredith as narrator, remarking he was just the guy to explain Britain as he'd been in England precisely two weeks. Bob Hope was called in to explain British currency and naturally succeeded in short changing Meredith. Bea Lillie popped in, too.

Secret Salute

THE FILM ended with Meredith chatting comfortably lying prone on a hotel bed, then being routed out by his sergeant with a curt "Get going." Last shot was Meredith, quivering on the brink of battle, explaining he hadn't time to finish explaining. Though the picture was intended solely for GI consumption, it was so entertainingly instructive, permission was obtained to show it in British theaters. The British enjoyed the somewhat cockeyed portrayal of themselves, but it was never screened over here because of this caricaturish slant.

Meredith's second, and less known film, was a wartime documentary "Salute to France," photographed in utmost secrecy behind locked doors almost immediately previous to the Normandy invasion. The narrator, a French actor in England, was sworn to military secrecy and almost passed out cold on reading the first words of his script "Soldiers of the United States and Great Britain, you are about to go into France!"

New Paris Film

BURGESS MEREDITH off screen is as unpretentious and real as the documentary films he takes such pleasure in creating. His russet-orange hair is stranger to brush or comb, his blue shirt tieless, open to brisk Washington breezes, the soles of his seasoned moccasins almost worn through.

His most recent cinematic achievement is the Paris filmed "The Man On the Eiffel Tower." It's a detective chase-around, done in Technicolor, featuring Inspector Maigret. Charles Laughton and Franchot Tone are starred and Meredith directed

He has just returned from a brief film-cutting jaunt to Paris, and in some four months the picture will be released over here. Right now Mr. M. is relaxing, looking around for a play and, on the side, owns a small company busy turning out films strictly for television. His wife, Paulette Goddard, is out in Hollywood finishing "Anna Lucasta."

Scandinavian Translation

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S "S. O. B." remark ran into some curious overseas transmission snags. When the story was wired to Sweden, the Stockholm boys queried immediately, excitedly for a translation of the mysterious initials. The wire service, which had flashed the story, was hard put to reply in language sufficiently refined as to be uncensorable. After exhausting effort, they came up with a deliciously dainty reply which went as follows: "S. O. B. may be interpreted as meaning a disparaging remark about a person's parentage on the maternal side."

How do you suppose Stockholm's journalists figured it out, translated it to the palpitating Swedish public?

MRS. Edward Martin, president of the National M. Eleanor Brackenridge Club, welcomes the Rev. C. C. Hung of Chinese Community Church (center) and Senor Mario Prieto of the Chilean Embassy to the eleventh annual Friendship Day Celebration of the Club held last evening at the Kennedy-Warren. Both gentlemen were among the speakers on last evening's program of friendship greetings.

Atlantic Pact Hailed as Peace Instrument

Diplomats Join Friendship Celebration

THE NETHERLANDS Ambassador, E. N. van Kleffens, last night termed the North Atlantic Pact a great instrument for peace when he appeared as principal speaker at the National M. Eleanor Brackenridge Club's eleventh annual friendship day celebration.

"I have just returned from a conference with Secretary of State Dean Acheson and some of my colleagues," he explained, "and the prospects for the North Atlantic Pact seem good."

"This pact is not aimed at any one," he continued. "Its purpose is peace." He pointed out that it is impossible for friendship to flower between nations or individuals without a basis of security.

Envoy van Kleffens told the club that "in Holland there is a conscious friendship toward the United States, born out of the generosity of individual Americans and organizations who contributed so many food and clothing parcels." In each bakery, he said, a sign is posted telling the Dutch people, "Don't forget that such and such per cent of this flour was given by the United States."

While discussing the club's banquet theme, the envoy remarked about the paucity of literature in the world dealing with the "friendship theme."

Special friendship greetings were given to the some 70 club members and their guests by the Finnish Minister, Dr. K. T. Jutila; the Second Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy, Aluzio Napoleao; the Second Secretary of the Chilean Embassy, Mario Prieto; the Rev. C. C. Hung, pastor of the Chinese Community Church, and Miss Ella Mae Croft of Africa.

Highlights of the program also included a group of Greek folk dances by Olga Sianis and Weldon Barr; an invocation by the Rev. Thomas E. Boorde, pastor, Anacostia Baptist Church, and a welcoming address by the club's president, Mrs. Edward Martin.

Sharing honors with the speakers were Mme. van Kleffens, Mme. Jutila, Senhora Napoleao.

Special guests include Mrs. Edward C. Madgburger, president of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Gertrude Parks, past president of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs; Col. and Mrs. Louis Renfrow.

Among others present was Mrs. Eric W. Schwartze, one of the founders of the Washington National M. Eleanor Brackenridge Club.

Each year the club adopts some friendship project to better increase international friendship. In previous years it has given scholarships to several Latin American girls to study in the United States. Last year, the group gave friendship food and clothing parcels to the people in the Netherlands.

William T. Raymond, president of the club, announces that tickets may be obtained from Jean Howard, District 2315.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Though it's not nearly as common as it used to be, there are still times when children appear to dislike school. It's easy to figure that such a reaction is normal—that something would be wrong with them if they didn't. But that's not a very helpful answer. There is always a reason, and it's important that parents understand that reason.

Perhaps Seymour is really ahead of his class and is so bored that he dislikes the whole thing. Jimmy may not be able to keep up with most of the other kids and his dislike stems from always feeling that he's failing. Or there may be physical reasons—poor eyesight or lack of full hearing—that make the school experience an unpleasant one. When I was teaching in the grades, I remember a youngster who learned to "hate" school because one of the teachers was pretty harsh in her disciplinary methods.

These are only a sampling of dozens of possible causes for dislike of school. As parents, we shouldn't be concerned about every little complaint. It is important for the child's future school experience, however, that the root of any continued dislike be found and matters set right. If we approach the school in a friendly and cooperative way, we can usually count on good cooperation in ferreting out the difficulty.

About Making Color Candles

How can you color candles made at home. MRS. J.

One way is to scrape the colored portion of the wax (the outer part) from old candles and use this to make the new ones. Another very good method is to melt a high-grade wax crayon with the candle wax. Be sure to use the best grade of wax crayon because the color in the less expensive ones tends to settle to the bottom of the wax as it cools and it doesn't completely color.

I found fresh, frozen red raspberries at the store. Some time ago I read a recipe for strawberry preserves made from commercially frozen and sweetened strawberries. Do you have a recipe for making red raspberry preserves from frozen ones? MRS. J.

Red Raspberry Jam from Frozen Berries

2 packages of frozen berries (about 4 cups)
5 cups sugar
Juice from 2 lemons
½ bottle of commercial pectin

Let fruit thaw and put into a large kettle. Add sugar and juice of lemons. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hot fire. Stir constantly, before and while boiling. Boil hard one minute. Remove from fire and stir in pectin. Stir for 5 minutes and pour into hot glasses. It takes at least 12 hours for this to become completely jelled. Makes 6 to 8 glasses of jelly.

Is it considered good taste, or is it permissible for a young bride to wear a very light colored ice blue satin dress for an informal wedding in June? Also, if a double-ring ceremony is desired, is it necessary for the two rings to match? If the bride has a wedding ring, set with diamonds, that matches her engagement ring, then is it all right for the groom to have a plain gold wedding band? P. L.

The answer to both questions is "yes." Often the very pale tints are more flattering than pure white. Since your wedding day is your shining hour, by all means the dress should be in every way just as you want it. As for the ring, a visit to any jewelry store will convince you that the conventional groom's wedding band is a plain or slightly engraved one, regardless of the elaborateness of his bride's ring.

I plan to start a collection of silverware soon, and am not very well informed as to quality, weight, pattern, etc. What should the ratio of silver and alloy be? Is it true that silverware gains beauty through the years when it is used everyday? How should silverware be kept if it is collected piece by piece? Also, whose initial is engraved on it? Is it correct to put the initial on the back if there is no place for it on the front? L. B.

According to Government specifications, sterling must be 925/1000 pure silver. In appearance, silver plate offers most of the advantages of sterling at only a fraction of the cost. While no silver plate lasts as long as sterling a good silver plate will last for many, many years. Plating should be heavy, and each piece should have extra inlays of silver at points of greatest wear.

Silver patterns need not be selected to match any style or period of decoration. If the pattern is well designed in itself, it will harmonize with any type of interior.

Yes, it is true that the "patina" that develops on constantly used sterling silver only adds to its beauty. This is formed by minute scratches, plus the polishing that in time imparts the soft luster associated with old and cherished silver. Silverware tarnishes, too, when it is used regularly and washed with soap and hot water.

Unused silver should be packed away in a tarnish-proof chest or in cloth cases or paper especially treated to resist tarnish.

If the silver belongs to a married couple, it should be engraved with the initial of the husband's family name. The initial can be engraved on the back of the pieces if there is no place on the front.

I am using an old rug as a pad for my newer rug in the living room and find that the top rug creeps frightfully, revealing the under one. Have you any suggestions how this might be prevented? A. B. McP.

Do you have the under rug laid with the pile up? If so, the movement of the pile on the under rug may cause the upper rug to creep. Try turning the pile of the under rug down, leaving the two backs of the rugs together.

Do you know of any way a Mexican tin tray can be restored after becoming rusty and marked? Or, if it cannot be restored, what type of paint could be used to cover the surface satisfactorily? I. T. D.

There is a chance that you can remove all the rust and marks from the tray if you will first soak it in kerosene, then rub with very fine steel wool. After the metal is clean and bright, wipe with turpentine. If you are successful in removing all the rust and other marks, you can prevent further rusting in the future if you will apply a coating of clear brushing lacquer followed by a coat of liquid wax. If two coats of lacquer are applied and the article is waxed after the lacquer dries throughly, it's appearance will be highly resistant to rust. Occasional rubbing and rewaxing when necessary should keep it in good condition.

If the scouring does not completely remove all blemishes, then you could apply any good enamel to the tray after the wiping with turpentine.

Flower Artist Gives Tips on Arrangement

Speed is an important element in modern flower arranging, Mrs. Frances F. Merriam, noted arranger and flower show judge, told those attending the third annual Garden and Flower Symposium at Colonial Williamsburg, Va., last week.

"For ordinary home use, flower arrangements shouldn't take more than 10 minutes each," Mrs. Merriam said, adding that practice and use of familiar materials can speed up individual arranging to meet the tempo of modern life.

Mrs. Merriam, who is from Mountain Lakes, N. J., and was chairman of the national council exhibit for the New York Herald Tribune International Flower Show in 1947 and 1948, discussed and demonstrated "Contemporary Floral Arrangements."

She listed several rules: (1) Fill the container up to the neck with water. (2) start with either the top line or part way down, (3) never let any of the mechanics or background of the arrangement show, (4) try not to have any two flowers on the same level and (5) don't make dinner table arrangements over 18 inches high.

She added that the back line of the arrangement should be directly over the container and suggested that pinching off the tips of gladiolus would make the blooms come out quicker. She called especial attention to an arrangement of yew and lilies, one of the 10 arrangements prepared and displayed by her during her talk, as very inexpensive because it would last about 10 days.

Portraits

By James J. Metcalfe

I Leave the Ashes

When winter fades and welcome spring . . . Appears with smiling face . . . I stir the last cold ashes in . . . My idle fireplace . . . And then I leave them undisturbed . . . While weeks and months go by . . . For they are like the gentle ghosts . . . Of dreams that never die . . . They bring back memories of days . . . When laughter filled the room . . . And of the bright, enchanting nights . . . When love began to bloom . . . The ashes in my humble hearth . . . Are silent souvenirs . . . Of all the whispered promises . . . And hopes of yesteryears . . . The sweetness of a stolen kiss . . . The softness of a sigh . . . And every tear that underlined . . . The meaning of goodby.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Gracious Sakes! Aren't We Grouchy Today

I've reluctantly reached the conclusion that people don't read:

1. My captions and headlines.
2. The little box which suggests that you listen to my radio program.

Very often I spend more time trying to think of cute headlines than I do on the remainder of the item.

But there is ample evidence to support the theory that nobody notices them except the proofreader—and sometimes I'm not even sure of him.

As for that plug for the radio program, I'm sure I could run it in pure double-talk some day, and nobody would be any the wiser. In fact, I think I'll try it one of these days.

I'm a bit weary of people who say: "I read your column every day, but what's happened to your radio program? You're not on WINX any more."

CAPITAL TRANSIT BOOSTER

P. E. Fuller of 2121 H st. nw. gives me the distinct impression that he does not approve of some aspects of Capital Transit's service. He says:

"I thought it was bad enough to ride these buckaroos at all . . . then the jump in fares made 'em worse . . . then they started dishing out some clatter they call music, so that I couldn't talk to my wife without letting everyone in on our personal affairs . . . and now I leave my wife at home but they won't let me read my paper, because some bat-eyed numbskulls switch off the lights at night. On the whole, I'd rather live in Columbus, and for a Michigander that's sinking to the last depths."

District Liner Fuller reminds me of W. C. Fields' epitaph: "On the whole, I'd rather be in Philadelphia."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Medium-sized short-haired dog; extremely gentle, friendly, perfect with children." (Hillside 4279.)

"Two darling little kittens, fat and very healthy, 4 months old. They don't want to be separated." (Overlook 5246.)

"Don't want to part with our larkish little kitten, but landlord insists. 'Onyx' is 4 months old—the kind of kitten you read about but seldom see." (Twining 1491.)

"Seven-month-old female retriever, ideal for anybody owning shore property, or one who likes duck hunting." (Hughesville, Md., 74F2.)

WEEK'S NEATEST TRICK

One of our afternoon contemporaries recently published a picture of a young lad viewing moving pictures of himself, taken as he won a soap box derby.

The most newsworthy aspect of the picture was overlooked in the explanatory caption. The projector was "showing a picture" while the film was in "rewind" position.

At our house we have to thread the darn stuff through the sprockets before we can see pictures.

HOGGING THE SPOTLIGHT

Henry M. Lesser of 5921 14th st. nw. takes me to task for not knowing about the eating contest between the Michigan undergraduate and the hog.

He says that I must have missed the announcement that the contest was called off because it had attracted too much publicity.

I thought that was the reason for scheduling such silly stunts. I'm sure that the college boys of my day didn't gulp those goldfish for their nutritional value.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Green of 8201 Grubb rd., Silver Spring, Md., Michigan alumni, suggest that the student withdrew his challenge because he was afraid the hog would out-eat him.

Maybe so. Another possible explanation might be that the Michigander didn't want to jeopardize his amateur standing by competing against a pro.

Ensign Douglas D. Swift of 6910 Wilson lane, Bethesda, Md., sends me a clipping from the "Michigan Alumnus" which reveals how the contest idea originated—and then died.

The whole thing started as an oyster eating competition among various undergraduates. When a doctor at the University Health Service was asked for comment, he said the whole thing was "disgusting and silly." Then he added:

Student Paul H. Smith took him up on the idea, and scheduled the contest with Broadview Perfect Lad. Both contestants weighed in at 165.

But the Ann Arbor police chief and Student Smith's Alpha Tau Omega brothers frowned mightily, and the deal was off.

Jim Davies of Ann Arbor, Mich., postcards that the presence of reporters and newsreel cameramen also served to convince Student Smith to drop the idea, and adds:

"However, the hog retained his enthusiasm for the contest to the very end."

Milton R. Frank of 102 W. Woodbine st., Chevy Chase, Md. —also a Michigander—points out that the same report of the "Battle of the Breadbaskets" contains an account of a co-ed's participation.

She said she'd crack the eating mark held by a California student, who gulped 13 hamburgers in 30 minutes. But when put to the test, she could eat only 12-and-a-few-bites in 35 minutes, whereupon the defeated co-ed ruefully remarked:

"Next time I'll keep my mouth shut."

Now there's a girl who, if she keeps her promise, will make somebody a wonderful wife.

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—At the beginning of the presidential campaign Louis Johnson presided at a fund-raising luncheon. He promised to each one, as a Victory token, an 1848 penny. One of those who attended the luncheon was Philip Perlman, the Solicitor General of the United States . . . When Mr. Truman won the election, Perlman waited to receive the 1848 penny, and when it didn't arrive he prepared a legal document to prosecute his 1-cent case against Johnson and Mr. Truman. He served the paper, and two days ago he received the formal reply.

In his legal answer to this suit Johnson admitted full responsibility, admitted that he had the penny and that Solicitor General Perlman had a right to replevin it. Attached to the document was the 1848 penny, wrapped in a leather cover which bore the likeness of President Truman. The prayer for dismissal of the suit was signed by Johnson, the two Senators from West Virginia, and Howard McGrath, head of the Democratic National Committee. The name of Harry S. Truman appeared as counsel for the defense. But before permitting his name to be used as counsel, the President conferred with the plaintiff, the Solicitor General, seeking advice on his right to use the "counsel" designation.

During the conference of the American National Theater and Academy, there was a discussion about the Javits-Ives bill for governmental support of a national theater. Robert Porterfield, who directs the Barter Theater—the State theater of Virginia—told of the practical methods he had to employ to get the support of the Virginia Legislature. Porterfield first made a three-hour logical appeal to the legislators, who paid no heed . . . Then he switched to: "Do you know that 30,000 damyankees drive daily over our great Virginia roads without leaving one damyankee dollar here? That's because we have no night entertainment to keep them here. But if we have a theater, the damyankees will stop and spend" . . . One Virginia senator arose and roared: "Give the boy his $10,000."

A fine idea, m'boy! I'll get some books. A bit of Plato Theophrastus too—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Messenger Serves Brotherhood

By Drew Pearson

Down in Florence, South Carolina, in the heart of the Old South, is a Western Union Negro messenger named James Jones, who has become one of the leading money-raisers for the March of Dimes.

Pearson

Jones has been raising money for the March of Dimes ever since the campaign was started, and every year sets a higher goal for himself. His goal for 1949 was $2000. He topped it by $500.

James Jones pedaled around Florence on an old bicycle—until his friends and neighbors bought him a motorcycle the other day—peddling good will as he goes. He is a one-man salesman for better race relations, largely by making himself an everyday example of better brotherhood.

Partly because of the example of James Jones, partly because of other public-spirited citizens of Florence, race relations are on a kindly, neighborly basis in that city. The other day when a little Negro girl needed an eye operation, the Hi-Y Boys' Club put on a campaign to raise money for the eye operation with the result that the little girl's eyesight was restored.

This is the kind of neighborliness and friendship—rather than name-calling—which makes democracy live. Therefore, James Jones, the Western Union messenger boy, and the Hi-Y Boys' Club of Florence are hereby made members of the Servants of Brotherhood.

Poker Partner

Southern leaders have quietly passed the word to block appointment of Mon Wallgren, the President's crony, as the first act of reprisal against President Truman's stubborn stand on the filibuster and civil rights.

First hint of this came when Southern Democrats joined Republicans in delaying a vote on Wallgren behind the closed doors of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Wallgren has been the target of bitter charges from Senator Harry Cain, Washington Republican, ever since Truman named his old crony and poker partner to head the National Security Resources Board.

When the appointment came up for a vote by the Armed Services Committee, Senator Styles Bridges, New Hampshire Republican, demanded that a subcommittee investigate Cain's charges and prove Wallgren either innocent or guilty. This didn't suit Chairman Millard Tydings, Maryland Democrat, who wanted an immediate vote. But he was overruled by a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats.

In acid tones, Tydings set off the fireworks with a few cutting remarks about Senator Cain.

"Senator Cain has adopted a mass of charges based on innuendoes from newspaper reports," crackled Tydings. Then he read a statement from Wallgren retorting to Cain's charges.

Desert Palace

In the statement, Wallgren claimed he had spent $20,000 building a so-called palace in Palm Desert, Calif.—not $60,000 as reported by the Associated Press. His wife had sinus, Wallgren explained, and the doctor had ordered her to stay in a dry climate.

Wallgren also denied that his business had gone bankrupt in 1933. It had slipped into poor financial condition, he admitted, but he had managed to salvage it. He owed his present healthy bank account, he added, to wise investments.

After reading the statement, Tydings wanted to take a vote on Wallgren at once. But Bridges held up a warning hand.

"I intend to approach this question with an open mind," declared the Senator from New Hampshire. "I had the pleasantest relations with Wallgren while he was in the Senate, but Senator Cain has raised some very grave questions—so grave that the Armed Services Committee can't close its eyes without a thorough investigation."

He served notice that he would offer a resolution to authorize a subcommittee to get to the bottom of Cain's charges.

The tip-off on how the South stood was given by Virginia's Senator Harry Byrd who announced bluntly that he was "not prepared to vote" on the appointment and demanded that it be held over at least a week.

Before the meeting, Georgia's Senator Dick Russell had given the signal to sabotage the Wallgren appointment as an act of defiance against Truman's fight-to-the-finish on the filibuster.

In line with the Southern bloc, Kentucky's Senator Virgil Chapman agreed to the postponement and even suggested that the full committee instead of a subcommittee investigate Wallgren.

This got up the dander of Administration Democrats who protested bitterly.

"We have heard a lot of political innuendoes and wild charges," bristled Wyoming's Senator Lester Hunt. "The hearings have gone far afield, and nothing has been proven."

Tennessee's Senator Estes Kefauver agreed that the hearings had already been overloaded with irrelevant material and that Senator Cain had nothing else to prove. The charges against Wallgren, he warned, also reflected upon Washington's Democratic Senator Warren Magnuson and President Truman, himself.

"Any further delay," Kefauver declared, "will only do damage to the Nation, the agency and Wallgren."
